Saudis Flog Britons

LONDON (AP) — Two Britons have been publicly flogged in Saudi Arabia and jailed for six months for violating the Moslem country's ban on alcoholic beverages, the British foreign office said.

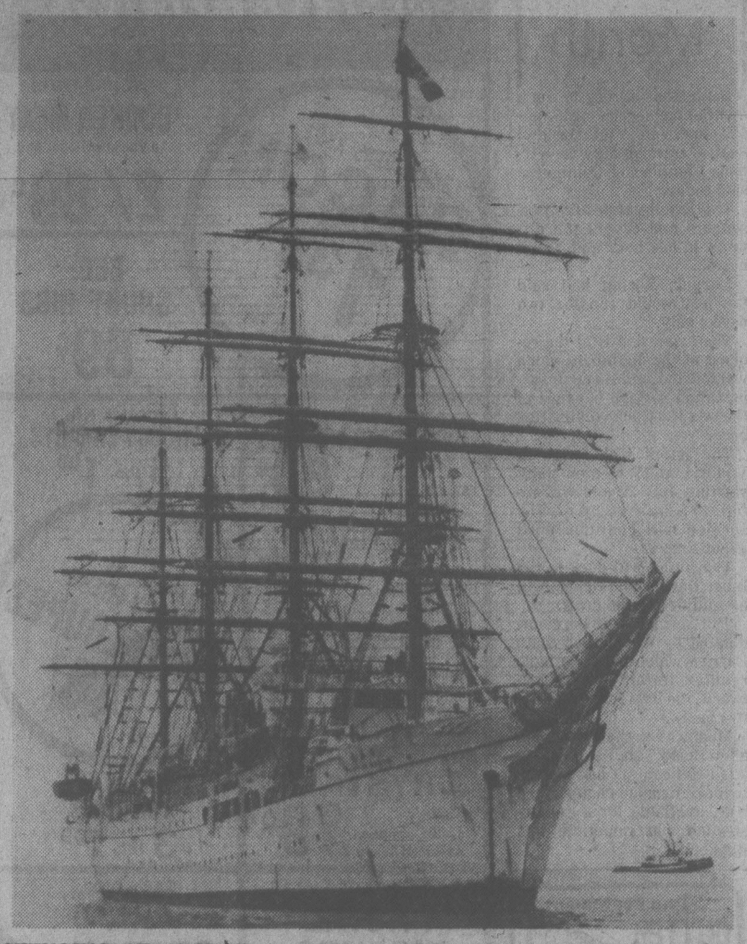

Press reports said the pair may have received as many as 70 strokes of the cane because they were suspected of making alcohol available to Arab workers.

The foreign office said seven other Britons working in Saudi Arabia have been sentenced to be flogged for alcohol violations. It said it is trying to ensure that the sentences are not carried out.

A spokesman said the British government has protested to Saudi Arabia.

He said the flogged men were Nigel Maidment, 27, and Brian Cooper, 35. They are engineers for Prismo Universal, a British firm enlarging an airport at Ha'il, a caravan crossroads town 400 kilometres north of Medina.

Maidment and Cooper were reported to have been arrested last December and flogged in the town square at Ha'il on May 15.

4,000 Beer Layoffs

About 4,000 B.C. hotel industry employees have been laid off or have had their hours of work drastically reduced as a result of the strike-lockout that has dried up beer supplies, a union spokesman said today.

John Phillips, business agent for Local 40 of the Hotel, Restaurant, Culinary and Bartenders Union, said the labor dispute is having a terrible effect on the province's economy.

He said the breweries are responsible for the situation because they locked out their employees last Thursday.

"If they are concerned about the problems with the B.C. economy then they are the ones who should call it off," Phillips said.

He said those employees laid off so far represent about 30 per cent of the hotel industry workers.

Phillips said he expects both parties will get down to some serious negotiations next week in an effort to end the dispute.

Talks between the brewery workers union and the Brewery Employers' Labor Relations Association were adjourned last Friday because some of the union officials had to attend a convention in Eastern Canada.

No date has been set for a resumption of negotiations.

PANCO PUT ON BLOCK

The provincial government today formally put Panco Poultry up for sale.

The operation, which produces 35 per cent of the poultry raised in B.C., has been appraised at $10 million — double what the former NDP government paid for it, Agriculture Minister Jim Hewitt told a news conference.

B.C.'s Schooner Runs Aground

The 100-foot schooner Freelance, recently bought by the provincial government, is aground in the San Blas Islands, east of the Panama Canal.

Dr. Phillip Ney of the Quest Star Society, which will operate the vessel for the government, received a ham radio message Tuesday. The message said the crew was safe but the condition of Freelance is uncertain.

Ney and marine surveyor Dick Meadows left Victoria for Panama Canal today and will assess the damage.

Weather and sea conditions at the time of the grounding were not reported but there had been recent torrential rains.

Captain of the Freelance for the trip to Victoria is Capt. Creston Ketchum of Nanaimo, who holds an unlimited home trade master's certificate.

With him aboard Freelance are Ralph Higgins, a volunteer from the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, and Robert Hirschfield, a mechanical engineer who helped bring the society's Lunenberg schooner Robertson II through the Panama four years ago.

Also aboard are Gerald Main as business manager, Graeme and Verna Isbister and Michael Ker, all of Victoria.

The Freelance is insured and $70,000 has been invested in her.

When Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf announced the purchase of Freelance, he said the purchase price was $125,000.

Another Strong Quake Rattles Japanese

TOKYO (CP) — An earthquake strong enough to shake houses and topple vases struck today in the area of a stronger quake that killed 22 persons in northeastern Japan on Monday.

Police said there were no immediate reports of casualties or damage in the hardest-hit city of Fukushima, where the quake registered four on a Japanese scale of seven.

Fukushima, 240 kilometres north of Tokyo, and Sendai, 288 kilometres north of the capital, suffered a quake registering five on Monday. In that quake, 254 houses were wrecked and 130,000 houses in the area still were without natural gas supplies today.

Today's quake at 8:34 p.m.—4:34 a.m., PDT— also was felt throughout northern and central Japan. Its intensity was two in Tokyo.

Earlier reports said Japanese officials are coming to the conclusion that the country might be sitting on top of an environmental bomb.

The bomb is in the form of nearly 3,000 giant storage tanks containing billions of gallons of oil, many of them located beside rivers or seacoasts.

The detonator might be another big earthquake like the one on Monday, which cracked open three large oil-storage tanks.

Gov't Fires Back on Heroin

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

Mounting criticism of B.C.'s controversial compulsory heroin treatment legislation triggered an emotional counter-attack in the legislature Tuesday by Health Minister Bob McClelland.

He insisted the program will work without contravening civil rights.

Speaking during debate in principle, McClelland said he is convinced heroin addicts "can be successfully coerced into bettering their lots in life."

And he challenged recent statistics that suggest heroin-related crimes are on the decrease in B.C.

Opposition members continued to condemn the program, with some suggesting free heroin for addicts might offer a better solution.

In a call for more effort to take the profit away from heroin trafficking, opposition health critic Chris D'Arcy (Rossland-Trail) said McClelland "should be less concerned with the addicts of today than with the addicts of tomorrow and future generations."

And Norman Levi (NDP—Vancouver Burrard) said one option that has to be considered is to give addicts free heroin.

McClelland denounced critics who say the legislation trammels an individual's civil rights. On the contrary, it will give addicts a chance for the same civil liberties enjoyed by others, he said.

Calling the civil liberties issue a red herring, McClelland said heroin addicts have no freedoms anyway because they are chained to the drug and continually forced to find ways to feed their habit.

"What kind of civil liberties can a person enjoy in those kind of conditions?"

"Heroin addiction has caused immeasurable human misery and degradation and is an intolerable burden to the citizens in regard to health, social and criminal justice system costs, he said.

In the first quarter of this year heroin offences increased 90 per cent with 230 offences compared to 121 in the same period last year, he said.

B.C.'s crime rate is still the highest in Canada and increasing, McClelland claimed.

Break and entry is up 8.6 per cent and theft over $200 is up 27.8 per cent, he said.

INFLATION NOW AT 9%

Food Price Rise Six-Year Record

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's annual inflation rate, boosted by the highest food price increases in six year, hit 9 per cent last month, Statistics Canada reported today.

The federal agency said a 3.3 per cent hike in food prices in May, led by beef and imported fresh vegetables, was the major cause of a cost-of-living increase of 1.4 per cent over April.

The 9 per cent, 12-month rate was the highest since last December and a departure from the one-month moderation in April with resulted from the reduction of provincial sales taxes.

Prices of beef, which is the largest meat item for most consumers, rose by 10.5 per cent in the month and were 52.5 per cent higher than a year earlier. In recent years, however, beef prices have been largely depressed because of over-supply, producers say.

Fresh vegetable prices were up 22.2 per cent in May from April and were 39.3 per cent higher than in May, 1977.

The jump in food prices accounted for about seven-tenths of the over-all increase in the cost of living.

The 1.4-per-cent rise in the over-all cost of living was the highest since July, 1975, before mandatory wage-and-price controls were brought in by the government in October of that year. Food prices are largely uncontrolled by the program, which the government began dismantling in April.

Besides food, higher housing charges and costs of tobacco and alcohol increased the index. Non-food prices rose by six-tenths of one per cent in May, 6.2 per cent in the 12-month period.

The consumer price index, which is the most widely-used measure of inflation, stood at 173.6 in May, compared with 171.2 in April and 159.2 in May, 1977.

That means a standard selection of consumer goods and services costing $173.60 in May, would have been valued at $171.20 in April and $159.20 a year earlier in May.

The 3.3-per-cent rise in food prices compared with increases of 3.2 per cent in June, 1975, and August, 1973.

In July, 1972, food prices rose by 3.6 per cent.

In 1973, with food prices climbing at the fastest rate in two decades, the government set up the food prices review board to investigate the causes of the rise.

The fast rise in food prices continued over the next two years before some moderation in 1976 which helped bring down the inflation rate.

But since 1976, the over-all inflation rate, largely due to food and energy costs, has risen again. The government, in introducing controls in 1975, had hoped for inflation in 1978 of four per cent initially.

Now, officials have been talking of a seven-per-cent, 12-month rate by the end of 1978.

Tory financial critic Sinclair Stevens said in an interview that the government had underestimated the impact which devaluation of the dollar, now about 89 cents U.S., has had on inflation.

Many Canadian-produced goods, including beef, lumber, fish and metals are priced on continental basis, he said, meaning Canadian prices for those goods will have to go up.

If the government could show dramatic spending restraint and reduce its deficits, there would be a renewal of confidence in the country, a reduction of inflation and economic growth, he said. The government expects an $11-billion deficit this year.

'TAKE YOUR LUMPS'

REGINA (CP) — Members of the Consumers Association of Canada were urged Tuesday not to come out swinging against higher beef prices.

C.M. "Red" Williams, head of the department of animal and poultry science at the University of Saskatchewan, said it was time for consumers to pay more for beef in exchange for a healthy cattle industry.

"You've had it so damned good for five years, take your lumps," Williams said.

And in London, Ont., Charlie Gracey, manager of the Canadian Cattlemen's Association, says Canadians are hoarding sides of beef for their freezers now like people used to hoard cans of beef for the pantry and this has helped to increase the price of beef.

"It; s the old psychology of scarcity," he said Tuesday at a farm machinery seminar.

Best Buys In Food

The second of a series of weekly reports prepared by two UVic economic students on prices in 28 of Victoria's retail food stores was released today.

Purpose of these reports is to assist consumers in the Victoria area in deciding which food stores offer the best buys in the purchase of family grocery orders.

A basic food basket, listing 65 items important in the average family's shopping budget was used to record food prices in the Victoria food stores. The prices obtained have been "weighted" in proportion to their importance in the average family food budget as published by Statistics Canada, 1976, for a large B.C. city.

This week's report is the first to include a history of previous store performance. The public is urged by the students to consider a store's history, as week-to-week aberrations may occur. As the study develops, store performance over time should prove to be the better indicator of its price level.

To further public use of this index it should be noted that stores are listed in an order that would assist a shopper living in one area of Victoria in comparing neighborhood stores. The shopper should find the store in which he or she normally shops, and then note that the stores immediately before and after that store are located nearby. This allows the consumer to make the best use of the information as travelling across town to take advantage of the least priced store on this list may be impractical.

The percent of average beside each store is based on the average price of all 28 stores being 100. The store with the lowest price for the "food basket" is No. 1 and the highest No. 28.

The study, under a grant from the federal ministry of labor, will continue through August and results will be released each Wednesday.

Tall Ships Come Sailing In

The first of the Tall Ships to visit Victoria this year dropped their hooks in Royal Roads this morning.

The Nippon Maru and her sister ship Kaiwo Maru soon attracted an unofficial welcoming party made up of local boats which gathered around them in the fog.

The square-rigged four-masted barques left Japan May 10.

Aboard the two merchant marine training vessels are 38 officers, 92 crew and 154 cadets.

The cadets are fifth-year navigation students of the University of Mercantile Marine.

The 318-foot ships with their 160-foot mainmasts will stay at Royal Roads until Friday morning. The time spent at anchor will be used to titivate the vessels after their long voyage.

The Nippon Maru was built in 1930 and her sister ship in 1931.

The two ships will dock at Pier B at Ogden Point docks at 9:30 a.m. Friday and will be open to the public from 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Depending on weather conditions, the cadets of both ships will carry out a sail drill on Sunday, handling each ship's 32 sails that cover an area of 25,000 square feet.

The ships are slated to leave for Vancouver 9 a.m. Tuesday, travelling via Haro Strait, Boundary Passage, East Point and Sand Heads to Point Grey.

The Nippon Maru is commanded by Capt. Hiroshi Nakazawa and Capt. Yosshizo Ichihara is in command of the Kawoi Maru.

Meanwhile, the Captain Cook Bicentennial Committee made it official Tuesday — the race of the Tall Ships from Hawaii to Victoria has been cancelled, the ships withdrawing for either technical or political reasons.

The race for smaller boats will still take place.

Later in the summmer the United States Coast Guard's training ship Eagle and other Tall Ships will visit Victoria.

Jetfoil To Run Month

Boeing has agreed to run a month-long service of its jetfoil between Victoria and Seattle starting July 22, Victoria Chamber of Commerce said today.

The jetfoil carries 245 passengers and covers the distance in one hour and 40 minutes.

Earlier, Boeing had said the test would run for two weeks only.

The expansion is at the request of the chamber, which wanted the additional transportation service because of the Capt. Cook festivities here.

The jetfoil will arrive in Victoria at 11:15 a.m. daily starting July 22 and will return to Seattle at 2 p.m. The service will continue until about Aug. 22.

The jetfoil will dock in the Inner Harbor and tickets will be sold beside the craft.

The service will be co-ordinated by Washington State Ferries which hopes to have regular jetfoil service between the two cities within two years.

Meanwhile, chamber manager Brian Small said Okanagan Helicopters had agreed to make its huge chopper, the S-61, available for a demonstration run sometime this weekend.

McClelland Answers Back

(In Vancouver, the B.C.College of Physicians and Surgeons says there has been an alarming increase in drug thefts and prescription forgeries.

Dr. J. A. Hutchison, college registrar, said in an article in the B.C. Medical Journal that there were 1,163 thefts of drugs in 1977, more than double the number in 1973.

The College of Pharmacy currently lists 26 physicians whose names have been forged to prescriptions.

Hutchison said there were 978 drugstore break-ins, 19 forced entries of doctor's offices, 67 break-ins at hospitals and 19 at wholesalers'. There were 40 losses in transit and 40 armed holdups.

"The amount of drugs involved is enormous," he said).

McClelland gave one new detail of the treatment aspect of the program. A street unit treatment centre will be established in the downtown core of Vancouver which will be "a case-finding unit operating at the street level."

It will operate from a house capable of handling 100 people — 22 on a residential basis.

McClelland repeated there will be a 150-bed residential treatment centre at Brannen Lake — a move the area's NDP MLA Dave Stupich, said could destroy Nanaimo as a community in which people can live in relative peace and quiet.

Stupich told the legislature the centre will do nothing for drug treatment, but the frequent breakouts of the resident addicts will result in a lot of damage in Nanaimo.

Outside the house, Levi elaborated on his suggestion of free heroin for addicts.

He said that heroin directly or indirectly costs $600 to $800 million annually in B.C.

The province has to look at whether it wants to see this cost increase even more as well as involve more police, or whether it will consider other alternatives.

He said he would like to see a pilot project giving addicts free heroin in a controlled situation.

If successful, it could lead to legalized heroin, he said.

He also questioned McClelland's health priorities saying that $14 million would go a long way in cancer research.

D'Arcy said the constitutionality of the controversial Bill 18 should be tested in the courts before millions of dollars are poured into the program.

He said he feared the program as outlined by McClelland might create two markets for heroin — a captive market of those addicts in Brannen Lake, and a new market of young people that pushers will seek out if their regular customers are taken off the street.

Heroin dealing is far too profitable for the dealers not to seek other markets, and the young are most susceptible, he said.

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson objected to the appeal procedure which he called an "unneccessary infringement and one more small erosion of the freedom of due process of law."

Tory leader Vic Stephens spoke against the bill for the same reason.

Faces Charges

A 20-year-old Chemainus man arrested Monday in Chemainus will be escorted to Toronto where he's wanted for murder and armed robbery.

Dennis Dubinsky, also known as Dennis Clare, appeared in Victoria provincial court Tuesday and was remanded in custody on a Toronto warrant charging him with robbery and second degree murder in connection with an incident at a downtown Toronto department store March 27. He is being held in the Saanich police lockup.

An RCMP spokesman said Dubinsky was awaiting trial on weapons charges laid in Chemainus April 20 after a man discharged a sawed-off shotgun in a beer parlor.

TAX DEBATE GETS THE AXE

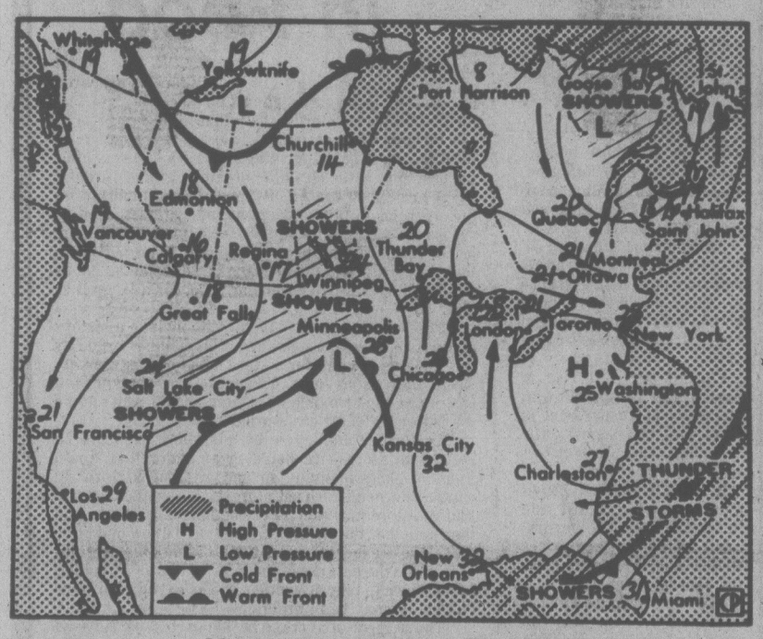

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal government Tuesday choked off debate for the second time of its controversial April 10 budget measures over bitter complaints from the opposition that it has no respect for Parliament.

The Liberal majority outvoted the combined Opposition 100 to 76 to force an end to clause-by-clause study of the proposed legislation by Monday night.

This means that next week the bill will only require third and final reading by the Commons before it moves on to the Senate for approval before becoming law.

The government intends to adjourn the Commons for a summer recess no later than June 30.

Map valid until noon Thursday

The large trough of cool air responsible for the weather of the last few days is continuing eastwards as a ridge of high pressure builds towards the coast. The ridge will be over the west coat by this evening bringing drier air to eliminate the showers. The ridge will build slowly inland producing sunny skies over most of the province by the end of the week and warmer temperatures for the weekend.

$240,000 Welfare Fiddle Cited

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A woman who allegedly collected $240,000 in welfare overpayments by claiming to have 47 children is being sought in what county officials say may be the biggest case of welfare fraud in U.S. history.

"She was very professional and very sophisticated in her dealings," says fraud investigations director Michael Collins.

Officials identify the woman as Barbara Jean Thompson, 33. A woman believed to be Ms. Thompson was seen driving away from her Ladera Heights home in an expensive sports car last Wednesday, shortly before authorities arrived with a search warrant, said Joan Manley, welfare fraud investigator for the county department of public social services.

An arrest warrant issued last Wednesday charges Ms. Thompson with 13 counts of perjury and 10 counts of welfare fraud. Mrs. Manley said that during the last seven years Ms. Thompson received cheques at eight different addresses by using eight false identities documented by driver's licences and social security cards.

Ms. Thompson, who has four children, allegedly claimed a total of 47 children, investigators said, by documenting their existence with false birth certificates.

Authorities say she had lived for less than a year in a home that carries a $119,000 mortgage. A house in that neighborhood recently sold for $169,000. Authorities said Ms. Thompson owned a Porsche, a Cadillac and a Mustang.

In addition to welfare cheques totalling $239,587.50, Ms. Thompson also is alleged to have collected non-cash benefits—food stamps and medical services.

Collins said the six-month investigation into Ms. Thompson's activities began when a routine computer screening found that two cheques were being sent to the same address. An investigator was sent to the address and further computer searches were made.

"Additional cases kept popping up that looked similar," Collins said.

Ms. Thompson's husband, Danny Williams, was arrested last week and booked for investigation of making false identification. Authorities said they found duplicating equipment and other items used in manufacturing fake identification in the home, which is in Williams's name, but he was released pending further investigation.

Carter Rejects Castro Meeting

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The White House has turned down an offer by Cuban leader Fidel Castro to meet President Carter as Washington and Havana continue to stick to their versions of events that led up to last month's invasion of Zaire.

The offer to meet Carter was brought to Washington from Havana Tuesday by two Democratic congressmen along with some harsh words by Castro for national security adyiser Zbigniew Brzezinski.

The two members of the House of Representatives international affairs committee, Stephen Solarz of New York and Anthony Beilenson of California, told reporters they met for nine hours with President Castro.

He denied any role by Cuba in the training or supplying of the Katangese rebels who invaded Zaire's Shaba province with the loss of several hundred lives.

He also told the U.S. visitors that he was willing to discuss the matter with the president personally, although he doubted such a meeting was possible.

A senior White House official confirmed the Cuban leader's pessimism later when he commented: "I simply cannot imagine that."

Carter continued to take his hard line on Cuba Tuesday night at a dinner for visiting Indian Prime Minister Morarji Desai when he noted that the prime minister was a "superb representative of the non-aligned movement."

Then, in an unusually pointed diplomatic reference for a state dinner, he said: "I think he would agree he recognizes the fact that Cuba is not indeed a non-aligned country but he hopes that Cuba will change in the future."

In his remarks to the two congressmen, Castro told them that U.S. policy in Africa was based on a lie.

"He said the lie was manufactured in Brzezinski's office," Beilenson said.

It's Unnecessary

A few small changes to the Medical Services Act of British Columbia have the province's medical profession puffed up with righteous indignation. Amendments approved by the cabinet will require patients to sign their doctor's billing card before he can send it in to the Medical Services Commission for payment under medicare. Patients may also be banned from medicare if they use an expired medical insurance plan card or someone's else's card, or if they abuse it to obtain excessive drug prescriptions.

Health Minister Bob McClelland said the change was made because of an "avalanche" of letters and phone calls from the public suggesting such an innovation. They want some record of services received, the minister said. Specifically, he said his target is people who go "prescription shopping" from one physician to another, looking for a compliant practitioner willing to give them the drugs they want.

Even stranger, McClelland said: "We have no evidence of people abusing the medical services plan on a large scale but we should have residual power to take action against patients who obviously do."

If he has no evidence that such abuses are taking place now, if he cannot say confidently that such abuses are highly possible, then what is the rationale for such a move at this time? Why the government would risk damaging a good relationship with the medical profession merely to have a club handy just in case people do abuse medicare is impossible to understand. Perhaps the minister has misjudged the profession's sensitivity to suggestions of wrongdoing.

Predictably just the barest imputation that some doctors are diddling the system has aroused B.C.'s medical establishment. Doctors are hopping mad at the suggestion that they are billing the government for phoney services. The one change that affects doctors directly does seem relatively straightforward. As it has been explained, not very much extra work at all will be required of a physician or his staff.

Doctors now send to the medical plan cards requesting fees for services rendered. Patients never see a statement or a bill unless they are receiving treatments not covered by medicare. Now they will have to sign the cards before a doctor can be paid by the government.

Despite all of the minister's assertions that he is out to lay a trap just for possible cheating patients, doctors suspect that there is more to it than that. They suspect that they are being set up as scapegoats, again, as the profession was badgered a decade ago by the provincial government when with great fanfare it published the payments made to every doctor under medicare.

It is a reasonable suggestion that British Columbians have no idea of how much medical services actually cost and thus may overuse or abuse them. There is no longer a direct cost-benefit relationship, as the systems analysts would say, between a patient and his doctor.

Heaven forbid that we should return to pre-medicare days, when medical bills could bankrupt someone, or people foreswore necessary treatment because of the cost. But we do need to get a handle on health costs — hospital bills and medicare amount to about $1 billion of the provincial budget in the current fiscal year — but these changes are not the answer.

They will only mystify most patients and alienate many physicians from the government they depend upon.

"... slowly I count 'till 1981 and a new constitution will appear before your very eyes! ..."

Laughing Stock

From London, England, comes word that British MPs have been warned they are making a "monumental laughing stock" of themselves throughout the country since they began a few months ago to broadcast House of Commons debates on radio.

The warning came from William Price, parliamentary secretary at the British privy council office who said: "Every MP to whom I have spoken on the subject tells me of the reaction, often quite violent, of his constituents. The trouble is always the same — our behavior."

Similar results were obtained in an opinion poll conducted by a television station. Of 60 MPs contacted, three-fifths thought the image of parliament had suffered since broadcasting began.

Price said many listeners had been appalled at the noise — "the bellowing, the abuse, the baying, the hee-hawing and the rest." His explanation? "People simply do not understand that the House of Commons is an excitable, emotional and noisy place."

Perhaps. Or perhaps the British voters, like their counterparts in Canada, just insist on believing that they are paying their elected officials to take part in serious debates on the issues of the day, not to get their jollies by encouraging parliament to be excitable, emotional and noisy.

FRANK RUTTER

Pannage, Turbary and Marl

LYNDHURST, England — In its 900th year, the forest first enclosed by William the Conqueror is being again restricted to the public.

In 1079, William had trespassers maimed. Today the British Crown's approach is more subtle toward preserving the priceless national heritage of the New Forest, 145 square miles lying between Southampton and Bournemouth and stretching from the coast almost to Salisbury Plain in southern England.

Canadians might be amused to hear the New Forest described as "the nearest thing we've got to truly wilderness country" as it was by Charles Begley of the government forestry commission.

But in fact, the New Forest has got just about everything in a compact area — relatively a huge one in tiny Britain.

Fir and Oak

It has stands of Douglas fir, redwood, 200-year-old oaks, wild animals, moors, rivers, relics, ruins, remains of a wealth of history from the Bronze Age through the Middle Ages, Elizabethan times and even a more recent historical marker — a war memorial to members of the Third Division of the Royal Canadian Army Signal Corps.

Since 1079 it has been Britain's most used forest — for hunting, for cutting, for recreation and just for living. But by the early 1970s the New Forest was being trampled to death by the feet of the picknickers, campers and sightseers — six million visitors a year —and crushed by the wheels of their cars and trailers.

The conflicting interests of industry, recreation, conservation and the local residents, known as "commoners," were juggled around in a new multiple-use program which attempted to make room for all in a controlled environment.

After six years of the new management plan, the forestry commission has just decided that enough is enough. Donn Small, the government's chief manager for the forest, said that controls gradually introduced during those six years have succeeded in curbing what was unrestricted access.

"We could go on building car parks or we could call a halt," he said. The government has decided to call a halt. There will be no new car parks or campsites. There may be further restrictions on public use, including charges for admission.

"A tree never answers back so we have to make the decision," said Small. "The forest is not here to continue to meet more and more demand." No further provisions should be made until we are assured the forest can take it."

The number of campers and vehicles in the forest have been reduced from a peak in the early 1970s by the introduction of controlled parking (gravel but never asphalt) and camping (absolutely no fires) and installation of unobtrusive barriers to vehicles such as ditches and low stumps. There are at present 5,500 car spaces and 5,000 camping "pitches."

Many existing roads are deliberately kept narrow to discourage traffic. No further new intrusion by vehicles on scenic routes for vehicles will be opened. Access points have been reduced from 1,200 to 140.

Cutting timber was a punishable offence in 1079, but during the last war the New Forest provided more than 350,000 cubic metres for such things as Mosquito aircraft. Today timber production confined to about one fifth of the forest area is 30,000 metres a year. All cutting is carried out by or for the government.

Other people besides tourists and sightseers use the New Forest. The rights of "commoners" are jealously guarded, and administered by the quaintly titled verderer — another name whose origin no one seems to know, who is appointed by the Queen.

Sir Dudley Forward Forward, the current verderer, explained that there are five basic rights of commoners: pasture, fuelwood, pannage, turbary and marl.

Pannage is the right of pigs to eat acorns from the forest oaks, and this takes place during a six week "season" in fall. Turbary is the right to dig peat. Marl is soil rich in natural fertilizers such as lime, and the right to marl is to dig the soil and cultivate it.

The right to pasture is the most important because it is used by several thousand ponies, often popularly thought to be wild, but in fact all branded and owned by "commoners," who pay an annual tax of $9 for each animal.

"The forest can only be kept today by the animals," said Sir Dudley. "They are the browsers and the grazers and they keep the grass cut."

Rather like sacred cows the ponies are allowed to roam everywhere and traffic must defer to them. There also are about 1,500 deer in the forest and they are wild. Foresters cull them annually by shooting. An annual "take" of up to 50 brace of foxes also is permitted to the forest's master of foxhounds.

Wildness Returned

But some creatures are being put into the forest. The government maintains a reptiliary where it breeds adders and vipers — Britain's only poisonous snakes — and releases them into the forest.

"The New Forest is to be regarded as a national heritage and priority is to be given to the conservation of its traditional character," said Small.

"Those who knew the forest in the early '70s will still remember the incredible sight of thousands of caravans, cars, tents, and people scattered far and wide. Those who managed it can still recall the acres of litter, the polluted streams, damaged turf, hundreds of unofficial tracks through heathland indeed well summarized as chaos in the wilderness.

"Today it is hard to believe that only in the passage of six years has the naturalness and wild character of the forest returned."

RICHARD GWYN

A Lot that's Old and 'Blue'

OTTAWA — If you believe that written constitutions really matter (Britain has got along without one for 900 years) then it's hard to disagree with Quebec Premier Rene Levesque's dismissal of Prime Minister Trudeau's constitutional package as "profoundly insignificant."

Except for a new House of the Federation to replace the Senate as the cockpit for federal-provincial trench warfare, Trudeau's proposals are unchanged in their essentials from the Victoria Charter of 1971 which, but for an eleventh-hour veto by Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa, would be Canada's constitution today.

Again, our constitution would be brought home from Britain. Again, a Bill of Rights and Liberties would be attached to the constitution. Again, minority language rights would be guaranteed. Again, the provinces would be involved in appointments to the supreme court. Again, there are vague promises of improved "federal-provincial consultation."

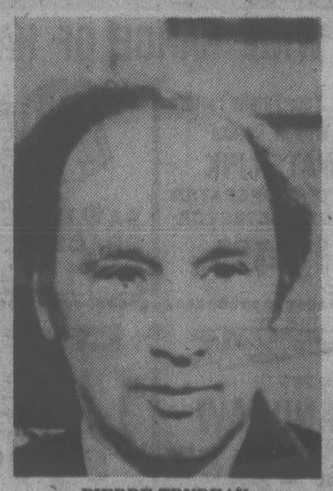

Hurried to Press

Because it was leaked to the press, Trudeau's long-awaited constitutional brainchild has been hurried into the world without the customary rhetorical ruffles and flourishes. It looks, therefore, in the 13-page summary published in the newspapers, pretty scrawny.

If you believe, though, that constitutional debates are about as important as those about the number of angels on the head of a pin, and that people settle relationships among each other by political give and take and by the spirit rather than by the letter of the law, then Trudeau may have started the process of bringing the endless constitutional wrangling to a merciful close.

For one thing, Levesque was bound to dismiss Trudeau's proposals whether they were inspired or were inept. The only constitutional changes Levesque could accept as "significant" would be those which created an independent Quebec protected by an economic association with Canada. Even so, Levesque has toned down his own rhetoric to demanding "self government," a term so vague that most mayors and township reeves could claim that it also was what they really wanted.

At the same time, the wind for some kind of miracle constitutional fix, or third option, has begun to blow itself out. The Canadian Unity Task Force, which invented the third option slogan, has had to abandon its plans for an early report because its members could not agree on what to recommend. Quebec Liberal leader Claude Ryan, a lifelong advocate of "special status," now talks only of "distinctive status" (which Quebec already has), and has dropped his notion of a Canada reorganized into five regions. Lastly, talk about a massive decentralization of power from Ottawa to the provinces, once advocated by Conservative leader Joe Clark, is no longer heard.

PIERRE TRUDEAU
... deadline is two years

Unintentionally, the summary (A Time for Action) of Trudeau's constitutional proposals expresses the inescapable dilemma of everyone who has been searching for a dramatic constitutional pollution to our problems of national unity. Of its very nature, Canada is probably the world's most contradictory and certainly most illogical country, now that Pakistan is no longer divided into two parts.

Thus, in succeeding paragraphs, Trudeau's summary declares both that a "renewed federalism" must promote "the autonomous development of the regions," and that it must promote "closer economic integration among the regions." This is another way of trying to say, as an example, that Alberta's oil belongs to Albertans, but also to Canadians. The proposition is blatantly contradictory. It's utterly illogical. But it is quintessentially Canadian.

Trudeau's propositions are bound to be attacked as unimaginative, undramatic and familiar. Which they are. The single novel notion, for a House of the Federation, its members appointd by the provinces and by Ottawa, to replace the Senate, is a carbon copy of Conservative MP Flora MacDonald's three-month-old proposal for a House of the Provinces. Yet Trudeau's critics (MacDonald excepted) have themselves not advanced a single specific new idea for constitutional change in the 18 months since the Parti Quebecois election victory.

If neither Trudeau nor his critics have anything better to offer than what Levesque called "cosmetics," then maybe the constitution we have now, pancaked up here and there, is enough to do the job. Maybe the problem of national unity has nothing whatever to do with the letter of the law, but only with the spirit of Canadians.

A New Spirit?

That spirit may be tested soon. At the constitutional conference due in Ottawa in September, provincial premiers will have to offer their own detailed proposals, in reply both to the white paper and to the draft legislation (on aspects like the House of the Federation) to be tabled within the fortnight.

Levesque, for his part, will have to decide whether to attend or to boycott the meeting. If Levesque comes, he will have to for the first time specify what he means by sovereignty/association. If he stays away, he will have to justify to Quebecers allowing Canada's future to be debate without their own voice being heard.

National unity won't be healed by a single conference. The Ottawa meeting, though, may narrow the debate to two, sharp, alternatives. Either a federal system pretty much as we have now, little changed in its letter though with some profound changes in the spirit of Canadians, or a Quebec that is quite independent, in its economics as well as in its politics. At the very least, the long-sought third option, which no one ever has been able to define, will have been buried.

First of two articles.

Polish Choir

We were proud to host the recent B.C. visit of the Szczecin Choir of Poland, and would like to thank the people of Victoria for the warmth of their response at the concerts at the Metropolitan Church and Pearson College and for the fantastic hospitality shown to our Polish guests.

We shall be happy to forward any words of appreciation to Jan Szyrocki and his delightful choir, and to the touring office of the Canada Council, who helped us substantially to make their-tour a reality. — Joyce O. Maguire, Szczecin Tour Manager, Vancouver Bach Choir, 3526 West Fifth Avenue.

Hydro's Move

The move of B.C. Hydro offices to West Saanich Road has caused a great number of people a lot of trouble, especially those who do not happen to have a bank account. In this case they have to buy a money order which costs 35 cents plus 14 cents for postage, or pay 25 cents to an agency when the Hydro account is due. It seems to me that the company should have an office downtown. They alreadg have a sevice charge of $3 and now they want more.

There is now the question of raising the bus fares. How much more can the senior citizens take? — Alfred Chrisp, 205-874 Fleming Street.

Abuse of the Law

If you can afford it, law, or the lack of it, can do one of two things. It can either delay well into the future that which is the inevitable or it can slap you on the wrist and say don't do that again!

Recently in our city, a local resident ran a red light on a bicycle. Big deal! But how many drivers and pedestrians have had to make sudden stops or changes in direction or have generaly cursed the riders of bicycles in this city where they seem to own every inch they can cover. It seemed a straightforward traffic offence but the cyclist resisted the attempts of the officer to apprehend him and in the ensuing scuffle, the cyclist received a broken finger and was charged with resisting a police officer. This still seemed straightforward.

Our cyclist, with help from you and me, in the name of legal aid took the whole deal to court. To qualify for legal aid our hero had to be on welfare and he qualified for welfare on the grounds that he didn't want to pay taxes to the federal government. I can only assume that he didn't want to support social leeches.

Initially the court system found in favor of the defendant but an appeal court saw the light and reversed the decision.

Undaunted our hero pockets $170 of his ill-gotten gains and mounting his bicycle, sets off to Ottawa to pursue his goal. Suffering from cold and wet and the odd flat tire for which he begged replacements he finally arrived at the city which houses the supreme court of Canada.

First stop had to be legal aid, of course, and lawyers eager to make a name for themselves jumped at the chance to make it onto the pages of coast to coast newspapers. The people of Canada once again pay the bill for this high-priced help but it's peanuts compared to the fees or salarys paid to the seven supreme court judges who sat for three hours listening to the story of how our hero ran a red light on his bicycle and received a broken finger for his trouble.

Although the end result won't be heard until autumn, the supreme court is notorious for its noncommital positions so little can be expected. Meanwhile, we have a police officer who has been made to look a fool, a provincial court system that proved itself (even if it took two tries), and an unemployed cyclist on welfare on a holiday in Ottawa.

If the federal court fails to bounce this idiot out on his ear and set a good example for the future it may as well shut its doors. The decision to return to some form of sanity regarding the laws of this country has to come from somewhere, and what better place than the supreme court of Canada. — K.W. Molyneaux, Victoria.

Big Changes Coming in Pension System

LEONARD SHIFRIN

OTTAWA — The changes in store for Canada's private pension system in the next few years "will be immense"; the Canadian Pension Conference was told recently by a member of the Ontario Royal Commission on Pensions. "Anyone who thinks the private pension system can survive on band-aids", said insurance company executive Donald Coxe, "is either deluded or ill-informed".

The Ontario government commission, of which Coxe is one of the five members, concluded its four months of public hearings in May and is expected to complete its studies and present its report early next year.

The report of a Quebec government commission with a similar mandate was released several months ago.

While proposing a number of ways in which private pensions could be improved, it concluded that their deficiencies were such that they should be regarded only as supplementary to public pension programs — the reverse of what has been the case to date — and that these public programs should be expanded accordingly.

Ottawa too has been laboring in the vineyards of pension evaluation, though by way of an interdepartmental task force rather than an appointed commission. That task force report is now virtually complete and, assuming cabinet decides to release it, could be available in the next few months.

The one certain result of all this activity is that Canada's pension system is in for a major overhaul.

When the Canada/Quebec Pension Plans were created in the mid '60s, they were deliberately limited to providing maximum benefits of 25 per cent of the pre-retirement earnings in order to leave the lion's share of the pension field to private insurers.

But in failing to occupy the ground it had claimed, the private pension industry proved to be less a lion than a dog in the manger.

Only 40 per cent of Canadian workers currently participate in private pension plans, and only a fraction of that number will actually receive pensions.

With very few exceptions, pension rights vest only after a worker has reached the age of 45 and spent ten years with the same employer.

"We had one witness who left an employer at age 46 after nine years and nine months of service, only to learn that he had lost all his pension credits", said Coxe.

Given the mobility of today's work-force, he told the Pension Conference and, in another recent speech, the Toronto Personnel Association, "vesting and portability will have to be improved", with "absolute entitlements after some short period of employment (becoming) the order of the day".

Likewise, he said, private pensions will have to come to terms with indexing. The public will not accept benefits which erode annually in the face of inflation as adequate retirement protection, he told his industry.

Among the other issues on which he faulted private pensions was their general lack of benefits for surviving spouses and absence of provision for splitting of pension credits on the dissolution of a marriage.

On all of these counts, he pointed out, the private pension system fails to match the public system.

Nonetheless, it is clear that, for all his criticism, Coxe holds a very different view of the future role of private pensions than did the Quebec commission.

Where the Quebec group had concluded, on the strength of present evidence, that the private pension system is incapable of being the primary vehicle for meeting retirement needs, Coxe seems to believe that somehow it could be if only it would try.

Chastising those in the industry who "have spent so much energy defending the system and so little energy in devising improvements to it", and warning that private insurers risk being relegated to the role of "providing the garage to a house financed by the government", he pressed what must seem a very radical message on a very conservative group.

As a result of the various reports there will unquestionably be major improvements in the private pension system. The deficiencies that are being exposed are simply too glaring to be ignored.

But the essential question that will remain is whether a system which, by its nature, is limited to large workplaces with relatively stable labor forces, can reasonably be designated as the primary provider of retirement income for all Canadians.

The Canada/Quebec Pension Plan mechanism can cope with seasonal fishermen, casual laborers and the whole range of marginal workers for whom private pension plans are not designed. The question is whether, in the political decisions that lie ahead, it will be permitted to play more than its present limited role.

The three key actors in the process by which those decisions will be taken are the Quebec government, which can ignore parallelism with the CPP if it chooses and go its own separate route with its Quebec Pension Plan, the Ontario government, holding an effective veto over the CPP because of the size of its population in relation to the other participating provinces, and the federal government as custodian — but not master — of the national plan.

Israel Suffering a Crisis of the Spirit

ANTHONY LEWIS

JERUSALEM — Of all countries on earth, Israel is in many ways the most thrilling to visit. There is a sense of wonder about the place, of challenge met, odds defied. The air is full of ideas.

For someone who has not been here in nearly 10 years, the physical changes are impressive. Trees cover once-bare hills. New museums and housing and university campuses have sprung up. With all the building, only a few ugly higher-rise structures mar the beauty of Jerusalem — and people are fighting to prevent more. Even Israel's much-lamented food has improved.

But the psychological state of the country is something else. Israelis of all kinds say it: This is a troubled country today, uncertain, divided, discontented. And the doubts touch fundamentals. People speak of a crisis of the spirit.

The all-absorbing issue is territory: the territory occupied by Israeli forces in June 1967. Should Israel withdraw from it, and if so, to what lines? Should there be Jewish settlements on it, and if so, where? Is all or part of it necessary for Israel's security? The questions preoccupy politicians and the public alike.

The great victory in the 1967 war, it is now clear, has left Israel with a burden of political and moral choice. Before then most Israelis took the country's existing borders for granted. The security problem was serious but straightforward — not a political issue. But since 1967 clarity has become anguished complexity.

Gun-toting Israeli father participates in pro-annexation march on West Bank

At first the occupied lands were seen as bargaining chips, to be traded to the Arabs for peace. Then settlements of a clearly military character were started, to guard against threats to Israel itself. "But appetite came with the eating," one man said — once settlements were there, people liked the idea of territory. And the Messianic strain in Israeli politics, the revisionist dream of a Greater Israel, flourished.

The Sadat initiative and its dispiriting aftermath have confronted Israel with the fact that withdrawal from the occupied territory, or most of it, is the price of peace. Many still want to avoid the reality. Arguments for security are mixed with continuing visions of territory. But even some in Menachem Begin's government know that in the end there must be a choice. And the choice is traumatic.

Something still deeper is involved, I think: the nature of Zionism. Do its great qualities, its courage and idealism, depend on the challenge of the frontier? Or can Israel adjust to the end of the physical frontier, as America had to, and turn her strength to social and scientific and ethical challenges?

From the beginning of the Zionist movement a great question, debated again and again, has been its relationship to the Arab inhabitants of what was Palestine. The occupation of Arab lands, especially the West Bank, has given that old question urgency.

What has happened since 1967 demonstrates a striking historical irony: Zionism created two nationalisms, Israeli and Palestinian. Many Israelis understand that, and talk about it. Several said to me that the Palestinians, in their search for a homeland, "are the true Zionists of today."

The question is whether Israel can come to terms — not so much diplomatic as psychological terms — with the reality. It is an urgent question because the present status, with the Israeli army as occupiers, is so corrupting to Israel. Most people here still prefer to dismiss as Arab tales all accounts of injustice in the occupation. But some are beginning to see what it may do to the character of Israel, just as many were shocked when they realized the destructive impact of the Israeli invasion of civilians in southern Lebanon.

Still another cost of failure to move toward normal relations with the Arabs is an increasing and unhappy dependence on the United States. That dependece is totally at odds with the Zionist ideal of Jews standing on their own feet in their own state. Many in Israel fear, and I agree, that in the long run reliance on a single outside power for survival may be a fatal mistake.

Israelis have every reason for concern about security. The old Arab threats are not forgotten so easily. But in their hearts many Israelis understand that the Arab world is changing, that there is a chance for peace — and that it may be slipping away. And many know, too, that a Ben-Gurion would not let it fail.

Diplomats talk about this plan and that. The details matter, and the Arabs still have their distance to come. But the essential choice is for Israel. It can now almost certainly negotiate extraordinary security provisions: demilitarization, a temporary military presence, international guarantees. But it all depends on accepting the principle of withdrawal. Israel must choose: territory or security.

Away With First Class!

THE GLOBE AND MAIL

The Canadian Air Line Pilots Association, smarting from an Air Canada decision to discontinue allowing airline employees to travel first class, argues that a 1971 letter of intent from the airline provided those privileges for all pilots flying during duty hours between assignments. The pilots, now in a legal position to strike, refused to continue negotiations for a new contract until Air Canada agreed to send the contentious issue to arbitration.

Shed a tear for the lowly economy passengers. Not only must they sit in narrow seats with little leg room and dig into their pockets to pay for alcoholic beverages, but even the airline's employees would rather go on strike than sit by their side.

The real insult is that the fare paid by the economy traveller already subsidizes the high rollers on the other side of the curtain. Three years ago, Air Canada's director of pricing admitted that first-class passengers were not carrying their weight; to recover the full cost, the airline would have to raise first-class fares to a level 80 per cent above those in the economy section. The first-class rate, then 145 per cent of the economy rate, has since climbed to 160 per cent; it is still insufficient to cover costs.

The solution to Air Canada's problems would seem to be simply to abolish the first-class section — or, to put it another way, to designate the entire aircraft first-class. Do away with the free drinks and the dazzling cutlery, and revamp the first-class sections along the lines of the economy model, increasing the number of seats and accommodating a greater number of paying passengers. Away with class distinction. Down with losses, and a fig for the pilots' squabble over privileges.

Counting the Milestones

LONDON — May 29 was the birthday of Bob Hope and Charles H. G. K. Chesterton and John Kennedy. As well as being the birthday of Baby Jesus and uncounted numbers of children called Noel, Christmas Day is the birthday of George Orwell and Mountbatten and Philip Toynbee; April 1 may be All Fools Day but it produced Rachmaninov, Brillat-Savarin and Bismarck — who was the one who said, come to think of it, that there was an especial providence that looked after fools, Americans, and drunken men.

All this I learn from Birthdays, a book just out by Linda Rannells Lewis (an American) which is a pudding book of the best sort — a pudding book being one with too much surrounding sponge to be a straight anthology, too many plums to be simply a discourse. Designed, I suppose, to be given as a birthday present: a marked improvement on the knife Lewis Carroll sent one of his little girl friends with the suggestion she stick it into the hands and faces of her brothers, or the entrails of her firstborn (favored as a birthday present by the husband/brother of Cleopatra II).

But less splendid than the bubble-car a friend of mine manoeuvred into the hall of his house and presented to his wife with a vast ribbon bow round it; or the castle of Chenonceaux Henry II gave Diane de Poitiers; or even the mohair sweater I got the first birthday I was married, apparently knitted, my husband gloomily admitted later, "by millionaires — their time costs money."

Birthday stories, I realize, are like ghost stories or bomb stories: hear one, and you can't wait till you've pinned the speaker against the wall and made him hear yours. Especially, of course, the ghastly-ones. I remember a Penelope Mortimer story about a family that traditionally makes an enormous fuss of the mother on her birthday — which meant she had to work twice as hard the day before in order to "do nothing" on the day. They left her alone most of the time while they made secret preparations, and they all hated her for it.

On my twelfth birthday, away at school, I was given my first fine stockings, my first zipper boots and an alabaster clock; by evening I had caught the stockings in the zip and, rushing headlong with the clock, had fallen over and broken it. And this book quotes from Dormer Creston's "Enter a Child," the account of a four-year-old who spent days and days coloring some pictures for her father's birthday, laid them beside his plate at breakfast and stood back, bursting with pride, waiting for his thanks — which never came; he glanced at them briefly and turned back to his newspaper.

Making birthdays for other people ought, of course, to be even more fun than having them: only children's birthdays, it seems to me, are usually designed to remind the mother as vividly as possible of the original agony of the birth. Little kids' parties are like trying to sing the Messiah while being bounced around in a concrete mixer.

For a child, though, it is quite simple: it is the one day in the year when the rest of the world acknowledges what he knows already: his own supreme importance. But why should it be confined to children? Who needs the once-a-year recognition more? Do we spend our days being anxiously asked if we've got the right socks for school, if we've got the money for the bus? Do people bother if we get to bed on time, take enough vitamins, live in an enriched environment? They do not. All the better, then, when they grudgingly admit, once a year at any rate, that on the whole they are glad we were born.

I'd take it further: my kids think it infamous that anyone should have to go to school on their birthday; and if no school, why not no work? If I've done my calculations correctly that would be enough man-hours, added together, to make 90,000 more jobs. Add extra days for wives' birthdays, children's birthdays, husbands' birthdays and we'd have solved the unemployment problem at a stroke.

Milestones, milestones; children love them because they feel they are getting somewhere; we hate them because we're afraid we're not getting anywhere any more. And some horizons seem farther off all the time: I used to think by the time I was 30 I'd have stopped caring what people think of me . . . 35 . . . 40 . . . no. Perhaps when I'm 90?

I once worked for a magazine where they made a great fuss of birthdays, and provided the wine of the relevant year. So once when the editor turned up with a bottle of brandy a few days after mine, I carolled, "The year I was born in! How lovely!" "Really?" he said with surprise. "I just asked them for the oldest one they'd got." Perhaps that is the trick: to be as old as Napoleon brandy, and have everybody say you're Wonderful; if you only live long enough, birthdays are something to brag about again.

Radical Changes Seen for Cars

SASKATOON (CP) — Radical changes are in store for the automobile industry in the area of servicing, says Roy F. Bennett, president of Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd.

By the 1980s, he said, on-board computers, exotic materials and alternate engines "will bring about vast changes in the back shop."

"All the evidence I have seen indicates that dealers will be spending more time, more energy and more money on service," he said in a speech to the Saskatchewan Motor Dealers Association.

"Successful dealers in the next decade, even more than their predecessors of the 1970s, must realize what service customers want, figure out how to deliver it, put it in place, and then develop a feedback system which will immediately identify any breakdown."

Service technicians in the near future would be working with sophisticated equipment on complicated parts.

"Not only will they have to know how to repair the part," he said. "They will have to know how to maintain and properly operate the equipment that diagnoses the problem."

Frances Finds Father

WHITE ROCK (CP) — After 20 years of searching, frustration, misunderstandings and two trips to Canada from the Netherlands, Frances Uny arrived here Tuesday to greet her father — for the first time.

Her father, John Henry Carpenter, had never seen his daughter, either.

Times were hard in Winnipeg in 1925, he said. He had five children to raise, and when his wife died shortly after the birth of the sixth, he saw only one way out.

"I never saw her," 80-year-old Carpenter said of his daughter Frances. "I didn't want to, because I knew she had to be adopted.

Frances was adopted but never realized it until she was in her thirties and married to a Dutch man. She decided to seek out her natural family after a friend dropped some hints.

But she ran into obstacles, her brother George said: "Her husband and friends kept mentioning the word Carpenter and she thought it was her father's trade. Finally, it dawned on her that it was her family's name."

BCMA Ready To Sue Gov't

VANCOUVER (CP) - The British Columbia Medical Association said Tuesday it will sue the provincial government for breach of contract for insisting that patients sign medical services claim cards.

"We expect to go before a judge on Friday to seek a temporary injunction to restrain the Medical Services Commission from issuing new cards," a spokesman for the association said.

The spokesman said the BCMA's agreement with the government contains a clause requiring the consent of both parties for any change to the claim card. Under the government directive, a space for the patient's signature would have to be added, he said.

Health Minister Bob McClelland announced Friday patients would have to sign the cards to prove their doctors had seen them. McClelland said the system would give the ministry power to forestall persons going from one doctor to another for drug prescriptions.

The BCMA said the measure was "a stupid piece of legislation for a stupid reason" and would waste a doctor's time.

In Victoria, McClelland said the threatened suit is foolish.

"There was full discussion with the B.C. Medical Association," he said in an interview. "I talked with the president throughout the negotiations.

"The whole thing is just crazy. I had no idea this would happen."

Spring Traps Banned in Bill

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson Tuesday introduced a private member's bill in the legislature which would restrict the use of spring traps in the province.

The bill is similar to one which was introduced during the last session.

CHIEF CLASSIFICATION AND EMPLOYEE RELATIONS

The Public Service Commission of the Yukon Government requires a Senior Personnel Officer to administer the Classification and Employee Relations Division. The successful applicant requires a strong background in classification and demonstrated ability in employee relations. Work entails the supervision and co-ordination of personnel officers; the administration of the Government's classification and pay plans; conducting and co-ordinating job audits, class series reviews, classification appeals, pay research and fringe benefit analysis. The second major function encompasses contract preparation, analysis and negotiations; the administration of collective agreements; advising departments on grievances, suspensions and dismissals; preparing adjudication cases; conciliation and arbitration reports. Other duties include staff establishment control; organizational analysis; conducting training seminars in classification and employee relations and considerable liaison with Senior Government Officials, union representatives, employees, Provincial Governments and related organizations. Work is conducted independently and only matters of policy legislative recommendations and regulations changes are referred to the Public Service Commissioner.

Salary: $26,763 to $32,013 per annum and under review.

Unified Family Court Reported under Study

VANCOUVER (CP) — Chief Justice Nathan Nemetz of the British Columbia Supreme Court says he has organized a committee of judges from the supreme, provincial and county courts to examine ways of establishing a unified family court in B.C.

The new court would permit family law matters to be handled in one court under one set of judges, rather than through the present system of one or more courts, Chief Justice Nemetz said in a press release.

The newly-formed judicial committee, chaired by Justice Richard Anderson of the B.C. Supreme Court, includes county court Judge D. H. Campbell and provincial court Judge William Selbie. It was formed by Chief Justice Nemetz at the request of federal Justice Minister Ron Basford and B.C. Attorney-General Garde Gardom.

The committee will assess the work of the experimental family court in Hamilton-Wentworth, Ont., and other Canadian family courts and make recommendations and proposals on how one could be established here, the chief justice said.

The committee is expected to report in the fall so the family court can commence sittings at the beginning of April next year.

"It will start in a small way and develop through the province as facilities and personnel become available," Chief Justice Nemetz said.

Inland Bucks Proposed Gas Hike

VANCOUVER (CP) — Homeowners in the British Columbia Interior would have to pay an extra $149 a year for natural gas heating if the producers get their way, Inland Natural Gas Co. says in a brief prepared for submission today to the B.C. Energy Commission.

Last week the commission was told that a proposal by Imperial Oil Ltd. to increase natural gas prices, if approved by the B.C. government, would mean the average homeowner in the Vancouver area would have to pay an additional $100 a year.

The energy commission is collecting data from producers and consumers on the pricing of natural gas as part of its fourth annual review of the B.C. oil and gas industry.

The increase Inland Natural Gas Co. predicts is based on the assumption that the price of gas would be increased to 85 per cent of the 1980 price of crude oil, a move advocated by the gas producers.

Inland also says in its brief that, if increased gas prices force industries in its area to move to oil from gas heating, the cost of their products would go up and unemployment would result, because plants couldn't produce at prices competitive with plants in other areas.

Inland has 74,000 customers, about 65,000 residential and about 9,000 industrial and commercial customers, including many in the forest industry.

"Loss of industrial gas sales volume would cause major price increases to the remaining natural gas customers," Inland also says.

"This is the first time Inland has opposed a price hike," D. M. M. Goldie, Inland's legal counsel, said in an interview Tuesday.

Cominco Ltd., an Inland customer, already has told the commission that if gas rates keep going up it may be forced to convert to oil, or buy the ammonia it needs to make fertilizer at its Trail, B.C., plant from its factory in Carseland, Alta.

More Voices Raised Against Forestry Bill

VANCOUVER (CP) — A citizens' advisory committee in Smithers, has added its name to the list of groups in the province urging the government to postpone passage of new forestry legislation until the next session of the legislature.

The Smithers Forest Advisory Committee said in a letter to Forests Minister Tom Waterland that it has strong reservations about the new Forest Act, Bill 14, due to be debated in the legislature next month.

The committee told the minister that the legislation "could seriously undermine our advisory process and objectives.

"In particular, we would question whether sustained yield forestry will continue to be encouraged in B.C. and whether informed public input, such as our committee has attempted to provide, is to be strongly discouraged."

Man Jailed in Slaying

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Nathan Elwood Dingman, 72, of Burnaby pleaded guilty in British Columbia Supreme Court Tuesday to a reduced charge of manslaughter following the shooting death Nov. 26 of Pasimaca Dingman, his 18-year-old Fijian bride of three months.

Dingman was sentenced to two years less a day by Justice George Murray after he changed his plea on the second day of his trial.

Dingman was originally charged with second-degree murder after the woman was killed by a single shot from a 12-gauge shotgun at the couple's apartment.

Court was told Mrs. Dingman came from Fiji to act as companion and housekeeper for Dingman last August and married her employer in September.

Mrs. Dingman's cousin, Sorovi Fong, said Monday she spoke to the victim on the telephone on the night of Nov. 25. She said she heard Dingman in the background asking: "Who's that? Is that your boyfriend?"

Police later found a 12-gauge shotgun in the Dingman apartment, with a live shell in the breach and a spent shell on the bedroom dresser.

Remote Sensing Talks Here

Observing the earth from miles in the sky will be discussed by scientists meeting here for seven days starting today.

A series of scientific papers and workshops on remote sensing, involving some 70 researchers is taking place at the Institute of Ocean Sciences, Patricia Bay.

Titled, Passive Radiometry of the Ocean, the colloquium will consist of papers delivered by researchers active in various aspects of remote sensing, particularly for oceanographers, and radiation through the atmosphere.

Workshops will be conducted for three days next week covering passive microwave sensing, water color, infrared temperature measurement, and observations of surface features.

The final day, June 22, will consist of a symposium on the use of optical lasers for remotely studying the ocean.

Specialists taking part in the program will come from Canadian, American and European universities, institutions and agencies.

Most Canadian remote sensing by government and industry is by means of high altitude aerial photography — for example a survey last year of building insulation using infrared film to sense areas of high heat loss in Canadian urban housing.

Some remote sensing makes use of satellite orbits for time series of photographs or instrument readings.

Remote sensing is a useful tool in the work of oceanographers, earth physicists, foresters, agronomists, meteorologists; hydrographers and such industries as mining.

Weatherships Mothballed?

Oceanographic monitoring by Canadian weatherships may be forced to end because of cuts in federal spending.

Chemical and physical observation and biological sampling has already been reduced 50 per cent, with only every other weather cruise manned by either personnel from the Institute of Ocean Sciences or private contractors.

IOS chief oceanographer Dr. Pat Nasmyth said he hopes it will be possible to continue manning every other cruise until the end of this fiscal period.

He said the institute turned to contracting out in line with federal policy of developing expertise in the private sector and the program was effective until it was noted the institute can do its own monitoring work more cheaply.

Nasmyth said private contracting is getting beyond the rate of inflation.

"We don't know why," he said.

The weatherships Quadra and Vancouver leave Victoria on rotating tours of sea duty every seven weeks, carrying oceanographic staff to take samples of air and sea water in connection with long-term studies relating to weather, climate, the global carbon cycle and other physical and biological phenomena.

Nasmyth said money for maintaining the institute and its research programs at Patricia Bay has not been reduced but there has been no increase in the past two years to allow for the loss of spending power by inflation.

As a result, the institute is examining its priorities and bugetary allowances and research projects are restrained.

"The amount of new equipment and new contracts will be cut back," he said.

"We will be cutting back not because we don't like the make-or-buy policy (contracting out), but because we can't afford it."

B.C. VW Plant 'Illogical'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Volkswagen assembly plant for Canada's West Coast is economically illogical, Bruno Rubess, president of Volkswagen Canada, said Tuesday.

"It would be mad, wishful dreaming, economically illogical," he said in a telephone interview from Toronto after Liberal leader Gordon Gibson told the legislature that B.C. is "high on the short list of potential locations" for a second Volkswagen manufacturing plant in North America.

"Why ever should we want a manufacturing plant on the West Coast when the major markets are Ontario and Quebec — or 2,000 miles away in California?" asked Rubess.

On Monday Premier Bennett, replying to Gibson because Economic Development Minister Don Phillips was away, said he did not want to make "a premature announcement."

In Toronto, Rubess said, "I think whoever invented this rumor is dreaming. Some components would come from the mother plant (in West Germany). Do you really think we'd ship engines and components to the East Coast, then transport them to the West Coast, then send the product back to the major markets?"

Rubess said speculation started after Toni Schmuecker, chairman of the board of management and chief executive officer, told a news conference in the United States April 10 that if Volkswagen sales continued as at present a second manufacturing plant will be needed in North America besides the one now in operation near Pittsburgh.

Rubess said these projections "are only theoretical . . . there's no decision at this time."

Rubess said if ever a plant is located on the West Coast it would be close to the major markets "and that means California, not British Columbia."

Beaten Woman's Husband Charged 9 Months Later

VANCOUVER (CP) — An RCMP spokesman said Tuesday that more than nine months elapsed before Frederick Earl Rawson, 34, of Prince Rupert, was charged with beating his wife because the woman was suffering from amnesia.

Sergeant Stan Winarski said in a telephone interview from Prince Rupert that Maude Rawson, 33, was suffering amnesia because of brain damage resulting from injuries suffered the night of Aug. 13, 1977.

Rawson, 34, will appear at Prince Rupert for a preliminary hearing Dec. 8 on a charge of unlawfully causing bodily harm. He appeared in provincial court Tuesday and elected trial by judge without jury.

Michael Fulmer, district Crown counsel at Prince Rupert, said in a telephone interview the charge laid is under the same Criminal Code section as an assault causing bodily harm charge.

"There are good technical reasons for laying the charge—given the vagueness in evidence," said Fulmer, noting Mrs. Rawson's amnesia.

He said the file on the case was not readily at hand but he believed the RCMP had sworn the information which led to charges.

The case was raised in the provincial legislature Monday when Rosemary Brown (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard) criticized the RCMP's handling of the case.

Ms. Brown said the woman was found naked and bleeding by neighbors and that she had suffered massive burns on her abdomen and multiple burns on the chest and face.

Winarski said the charge was formally laid June 2. He said Rawson has never been placed under arrest in connection with the case.

He said the woman remained in Vancouver convalescing from injuries suffered on the night in question. In addition to brain damage, she also has impaired vision and paralysis from the waist down.

"It is hoped she'll return here sometime this summer and will be able to testify in the case," he said.

It was not known who has been taking care of the couple's two children.

Winarski said RCMP from Prince Rupert visited the woman twice while she was in hospital here but the woman suffered from amnesia and "couldn't remember anything."

A Vancouver RCMP spokesman said police here were asked to interview the woman and did so on one occasion, last Sept. 15.

The police file here did not say who filed the initial complaint with police or when, but noted the alleged incident took place at 11:30 p.m. and "police attended."

Newborn Screening Planned

Health Minister Bob McClelland said Tuesday the government has set up a program for determining whether newborn infants suffer from a potentially-damaging thyroid gland problem.

McClelland said the program will screen all infants for hypothyroidism, which can result in severe mental retardation if not treated.

He said clinical signs of the malady in the newborn are often subtle and in many cases not detected.

The minister said the new program will cost $180,000 a year and is expected to uncover two to four cases of the problem a year.

McClelland also said a permanent advisory committee will be set up to deal with screening problems to detect congenital defects in newborn infants.

PROBE PROMISED

About 40 persons from central Vancouver Island who demonstrated on the steps of the legislature Tuesday against planned use of herbicides in the area said later they were given a government commitment their problem will be investigated.

The demonstrators, from the Bowser area 40 miles north of Nanaimo, complained that B.C. Hydro plans to use the chemical herbicides 2,4-D, Tordon 101 and others to clear rights-of-way in their watershed area.

They also said they object to CP Rail's plan to spread Tordon pellets along tracks running through the district.

They said the soil in the watershed is sandy and permeable, which means the chemicals would easily be absorbed into their drinking water.

The demonstrators said they received a commitment from Bayne Vance, head of the Pesticide Control Branch, to carry out a 10-day investigation into the matter.

"In the meantime, Vance will make sure no spraying of herbicides by permits from his department will occur in the area," the group said in a statement.

Exclusive Caterer Vetoed

Saanich aldermen have heeded the concerns of sports groups and service organizations in deciding not to award one exclusive contract for provision of catering services at all municipal recreation facilities.

Instead, the parks and recreation committee recommended Tuesday night, Saanich should retain the present policy whereby individual user groups may continue using the catering firm of their choice.

The committee accepted the advice of recreation director Bill Young, who said although the single-caterer arrangement would undoubtedly provide more revenue for the municipality, it would also tend to discourage organizations from using the facilities.

Young noted that when the proposal was first aired last year, there were strenuous objections from sports and service clubs which regard catering as an essential part of their over-all fund raising activities.

Deprived of such funding, they might be forced to approach the municipality for financial assistance.

He also said a caterer had expressed the opinion that the present policy is satisfactory because it allows several firms to compete for the available business, which would otherwise be awarded solely to one firm.

The six firms which responded to a proposal call last year entered bids offering Saanich from 10 to 15 per cent of gross sales.

On another aspect of catering, committee members supported Mayor Mel Couvelier's request for a detailed report covering such points as the equipment rental rates which Saanich charges the catering firms, and the loss of utensils and crockery.

Couvelier said he understood the problem of lost utensils is serious, but while Young had no figures he assured aldermen no significant losses had been reported by his staff.

In other business Tuesday night, the committee asked Young to prepare a report assessing the costs and benefits of several proposals for improving attendance at Saanich's three main recreation facilities.

The proposals had been drafted, in response to an earlier committee request, by the supervisors of the G.R. Pearkes Arena, the Gordon Head Recreation Centre and the Cedar Hill Community Centre.

They ranged from minor immediate improvements such as a slide in the Gordon Head pool to long-term major projects, including the provision of an outdoor pool and skateboard park at the Pearkes centre.

SOOKE RAISES SCHOOL FEES

Sooke residents will have to pay more to use district schools on weekends for community activities.

New rates for school use, $100 for the first three hours and $20 for each additional hour, were established Tuesday by Sooke school board.

The reason for the new rates is the high cost of turning intruder and fire alarm systems in the schools on and off.

Trustees were informed that someone will have to come out and shut the alarms off and turn them on again. The district's contract with its employees has a minimum call-out time and any hours worked on weekends require double time.

The new rates won't even cover the costs of wear and tear on school facilities, according to trustee Brian Killip.

Killip recommended that all non-school functions be confined to certain elementary schools that have classrooms or gymnasiums that are isolated from the rest of the building.

Equipment will be provided free.

MP Storm on Jobless

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs blistered the government's economic management policies again Tuesday following the release of statistics showing unemployment in May continued at a post-1930s high.

But Finance Minister Jean Chretien repeated the government is doing all it can and added: "We can't take in everyone who is looking for jobs at the present time."

Official statistics showed 8.6 per cent of the nation's workforce on the jobless lines in May, the same percentage as in the previous two months.

The actual number of unemployed was down last month to 933,000 from 999,000 in April.

But students started coming into the labor force in May, and few were finding work. Statistics Canada said nearly 15 per cent of the 656,000 who wanted temporary work in May could not find it. More will join the workforce in June.

As the Commons question period opened, Paul Dick (PC—Lanark-Renfew-Carleton) noted the government has cut off financing for the one year-round youth employment program it had. Called the job experience training program, it offered federal salary supplements for up to nine weeks to aid employers who gave jobs to school drop-outs.

Employment Minister Bud Cullen replied that the program has been integrated into the employment tax credits program announced last October. He said the government has pumped $96.2 million into creating jobs for youth.

The National Union of Students, an Ottawa-based group, issued a news release predicting the worst summer on record for student unemployment.

Sinclair Stevens, the Progressive Conservative finance critic, noted there were 109,000 more jobless this May than a year ago, and asked Chretien why his temporary income tax reductions and other budget measures have not worked.

The finance minister replied there are 300,000 more working this year than a year ago, and added that it takes some time for budget measures announced in April to take effect. The April 10 budget announced temporary cuts in provincial retail sales taxes to stimulate consumer demand and create jobs.

Super Smile Campaign: Who's Laughing at Whom?

max low

Amid all the smiles isn't it just possible they're going to be laughing at us?

I mean, when those carloads of tourists roll off the Coho or the Marguerite and find us all grinning from ear to ear at nothing in particular, aren't they going to think it's a little hilarious?

I've got nothing against a good smile, providing one has something to smile about. Seeing carloads of tourists take to our streets doesn't, I suspect, make the average person here smile. It's more likely to make him grimace.

But never mind about our feelings. As instructed by Travel Industry Minister Grace McCarthy, we must greet our friends from wherever with not just a smile but — wait for it — a SUPER SMILE!

Mrs. McCarthy's department has announced happily that the province-wide Super Smile campaign will be launched next week. Mayors and councils throughout the province have been invited to declare next Monday, June 19, Smile Day and the rest of the week Smile Week.

"The theme of the 1978 campaign is British Columbia has a Super Smile for you," says a press release from Mrs. McCarthy's office. "A Super Smile which is an investment in next year's business. The stage for a successful tourism year has been set by the recent Royal Hudson Discover British Columbia Tour as well as the ongoing Captain Cook Bicentennial Celebrations."

What a lot of hogwash!

I'll bet if you asked any of those tourists why they are here they'll say it's because of our scenery or the fishing or the camping. Not because some guy dresses up in a Captain Cook outfit.

B.C. and especially Victoria has long delighted in this masochistic tendency to inflict ridicule on itself. We send visitors away from our city believing we're all trying to be very British.

That whenever possible we ride around in a horse and cart or a double-decker bus, play cricket and eat crumpets all day long.

Very quaint, they'll mutter to themselves as they go on their way home. Well, after they get a load of those Super Smiles waiting for them, they'll be able to add the word "idiotic."

To inflict an ear-to-ear grin on someone who hasn't done a thing to deserve it is, I feel, rather like laughing raucously before someone has told you a joke.

And what a waste of time and money this whole thing is. It makes you wonder about the mentality of the people who dream it up.

Multi-colored, multi-lingual Super Smile buttons and grinning Captain Cooks everywhere. This is supposed to make people want to come back to B.C.? Ha!

"What will we do for our vacation this summer, Fred?"

"Let's go back to that quaint place up north where the people are always grinning, Sally."

How much better it would be if all the ideas and time and money could be directed toward something worthwhile. Something that would really attract people year after year.

It has been suggested that we have an annual summer festival of the arts — both visual and performing — that would provide an ideal showcase for B.C. artists and crafts people as well as employment opportunities for our musicians and actors.

This is something that, if held in Victoria, could grow each year and put our city and the province on the tourist map, much like it has done for the city of Adelaide in Australia.

Maybe one day someone will see the light. In the meantime we must grin and bear it — at least until after Smile Week is over.

Presumably then we can all relax our faces once more . . . .

GRACE McCARTHY

DONOR'S BLOOD USED AT ONCE

Three units of blood collected Tuesday during the Red Cross blood donor clinic at Royal Jubilee Hospital were used almost as soon as they left the donors.

A young boy was given the blood, which was destined for the clinic's Vancouver laboratory, during an emergency operation about 3 p.m.

The clinic collected 233 units of blood during its operation at the hospital, four units lower than its target.

Always in need of blood, the Red Cross operates clinics in Victoria 70 days out of the year. Clinics will be going on all this week, today at Mayfair Mall and then at Newcombe Auditorium.

Schools Bar Gov't Probe

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY
Times Staff

A U.S.-sponsored survey on the effects government funding of independent schools will have on the B.C. education system will be boycotted by Greater Victoria public schools.

School superintendent Allan Stables has sent a memo to all principals telling them not to participate in the three-year survey which Education Minister Pat McGeer plans to help subsidize.

The district is balking because the questionnaire doesn't guarantee anonymity and many of the questions asked are unacceptable, community relations officer Bill Stavdal said Tuesday.

He said principals received a memo from Stables June 9 asking them to steer clear of the questionnaire, developed by the Educational Research Institute of B.C.(ERIBC).

Some of the questions asked are considered racist, while others are of a political nature.

On the 78-question students' survey, pupils are asked personal questions about the teacher's ability, the effectiveness of the classes and if the school seems short of money.

They are also asked to state their feelings about poor people and foreigners.

Teachers are asked their sex, marital status and race.

Participants are requested to sign their names on the forms. The students, teachers, and schools are easily identified, in spite of guarantees by ERIBC that information will be kept confidential.

Victoria is the fourth of the 10 school districts approached to refuse participation. The others are Coquitlam, Burnaby and Vancouver.

The survey was initiated by the National Institute of Education in Washington to study the effects that government funding of private schools will have on the education system in B.C.

The provincial government will spend $9 million this year financing independent school operations that met ministry standards. Independent schools have not previously received funds.

The ministry has indicated it plans to contribute about $80,000 toward the study, which could end up costing as much as $500,000.

Chief researcher for the project is former Simon Fraser University professor Dr. Don Erickson, now with the University of San Francisco.

Saanich community groups have declined Saanich council's invitation that they establish the guidelines for council salary increases, so now the job has fallen to Mayor Mel Couvelier.

It was entrusted to him by finance committee members Tuesday night, and Couvelier said he will present his report in due course after a thorough look at the whole subject, including indemnities paid to elected officials in other parts of B.C.

But while he didn't hint at any figures, the mayor gave notice what one of his major recommendations will be.

He said he will suggest a policy whereby the increases eventually decided on will take effect after the present council terms have expired, "so that we are not voting on our own salaries."

Ald. John Mika agreed with that principle, saying it is essential that council maintain "distance" between itself and the salary question.

Earlier this year, council decided to forego a 1978 salary increase, despite objections from finance committee chairman Ald. Dave Paterson who said the hold-the-line attitude would only compound the problem for future councils.

Paterson repeated his warnings Tuesday night that "eventually there will be a horrendous catch-up situation."

ARMORED CONVOY on Pat Bay Highway this morning heralds the return of the Third Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, after six-week's exercises at Wainwright, Alta. More than 600 men and 110 vehicles including the armored personnel carriers pictured above took part in the exercises held three times a year at the Alberta training centre. The APCs arrived at Victoria Airport on Armed Forces Hercules transport jets.

Saanich Takes Aim At Untagged Dogs

Bureaucratic bloodhounds from Saanich municipal hall will soon be unleashed on the trail of dog owners who are chronic offenders in neglecting to buy dog licences for their pets.

The crackdown was ordered Tuesday night by council's finance committee, after Ald. Ian Cass complained that the present licensing enforcement is totally inadequate.

Cass noted the amount budgeted for dog licence revenue this year anticipates only about 3,700 licences being sold.

"This appears to mean only about 10 per cent of our population have dogs and we all know that's nonsense," he added.

Cass said in the immediate vicinity of his home only two out of 10 houses do not have dogs.

The committee was told by controller-treasurer Roy Broughton that in 1969 the revenue from dog licences and pound fees defrayed 80 per cent of the pound's operating costs, but this year will account for only 48 per cent.

Although the present fee schedule — $5 for a male or spayed female, $15 for an unspayed female — has been in effect since 1969, aldermen agreed to defer consideration of a licence increase until the results of better enforcement can be assessed.

For some years the municipality has employed students during the summer to sell licences on a door-to-door basis, giving them 35 per cent commission.

But Ald. John Mika said summer is not the best time for such a canvass because so many families are away on holiday.

He suggested that a supplementary door-to-door campaign be mounted during a non-holiday period; that local dog clubs be invited to undertake licence collection; and the standard licence fee be tripled for someone collecting an unlicensed dog from the pound.

The committee also asked officials to suggest other ways in which dog licensing revenue can be increased.

In other business, committee members recommended to council that the present two-monthly system of water billing be changed to a four-monthly pattern, on condition that any resulting staff reductions be achieved through normal attrition.

BEER GARDEN PROMISED

Esquimalt is promising you a beer garden at the municipality's Buccaneer Days celebrations this weekend.

Organizers stocked up on beer when it became clear that there would be a shortage due to the strike-lockout in the B.C. brewery industry.

So the sudsy stuff will be available at the Bullen Park beer garden.

Couvelier Blocks Rape Relief Again

Funding for Victoria's Rape Relief Centre was blocked for a second time by Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier at a meeting Tuesday of the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee.

Couvelier shot down a funding request at the intermunicipal level once before, when he attacked the credibility of the organization largely on the basis of the low-slung blouse worn by a representative from the centre.

At the latest meeting Couvelier questioned the accountability of the group, and told the committee that no decision on funding should be made until Rape Relief names its auditor, board of directors and full-time employees.

He also said the centre should not be involved in lecturing school students about rape. That was a job for the police, he said, and one the Saanich department is handling.

About a month ago Couvelier attacked Rape Relief because a representative for the group appeared before the committee in a blouse that Couvelier said was too low-cut.

The mayor said it was contradictory to have a woman dressed in such a manner appearing before students talking on rape.

On Tuesday the committee decided to table the matter for two weeks until a Rape Relief representative can appear to answer Couvelier's latest questions.

Nancy Goldsberry, a researcher for the attorney-general's department, will also be invited to attend to answer questions on a study she's doing on rape relief centres in B.C.

Goldsberry sent a three-page outline of her study to the committee but Couvelier said the brief left him with a lot of questions.

One thing he wanted to know is why only 32 of the 102 cases handled by Rape Relief last year were referred to the police.

"What happened to the other 68?" asked the mayor. "Why didn't our police have this information . . . so that they could work on preventative measures?"

Saanich Ald. Ian Cass criticized Couvelier, however, saying that if a woman didn't want to talk to police she wasn't going to.

He said the community should be thankful that there's an organization that provides counselling for women who have been attacked.

"Generally speaking, politicians . . . don't do a particularly good job of looking after women who are bashed around by men or otherwise assaulted," said an angry Cass.

"I believe that this particular organization is the only available open door for women who have suffered this distressful situation . . . I just don't see anything available to take its place."

Cass proposed the committee grant the centre $500 a month and review the matter when further information on the organization is made available.

He got no seconder for his motion.

Earlier in the meeting Oak Bay Ald. Shirley Dowell had also failed to get a seconder when she proposed that Rape Relief be granted $11,000.

The organization had originally asked the committee for $16,000 but Dowell said that after doing some research on the operation and spending some time at the Rape Relief office she felt $11,000 would be adequate. The money would be for the hiring of a full-time employee.

Dowell said the police, hospital nursing staff and other institutional workers who become involved in responding to rape victims, support the Victoria organization.

But Couvelier countered Dowell's argument by saying that when he'd talked to the police they hadn't expressed complete backing for Rape Relief.

"I guess they're behind it," he said, "but the question is how far behind?"

Couvelier said if his questions about the centre were answered satisfactorily he'd be willing to support a motion granting funds to the group.

Another Look At 911

The Greater Victoria Intermunicipal committee plans to take a close look at a proposal to adopt 911 as the overall emergency dialing number for the region.

The committee discussed the matter Tuesday and after two members had spoken in favor of the concept decided to ask the B.C. Telephone Co. to provide some cost figures.

Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier and Saanich Ald. Ian Cass both said they favored the 911 proposal — as long as it didn't cost too much.

The intermunicipal group looked into the possibility of a 911 system two years ago and rejected it as being overly expensive.

But Covelier said he thought the price might be substantially less now because the phone company has been rapidly modernizing its Victoria equipment over the last few years.

James Bay Residents Swell Tax Uproar

The James Bay Residents' League (JBRL) has added its voice to the growing chorus of those opposed to the provincial government's new tax assessment formula.

In a statement Tuesday the JBRL said it has received widespread complaints about the new tax structure which generally shifts more of the tax burden onto home owners and reduces taxes on apartments.

"Pensioners, young couples, middle aged people, all are seriously affected by the province's new tax system. Some face a financial crisis, even to the point of possibly losing their homes," states the JBRL.

The organization wants to see a more equitable tax system, with the burden taken off single family homes.

"Granting apartment owners windfall tax profits benefits no one. Apartment owners are like any other business and should be taxed as such. We can be sure that apartment renters will never benefit from the new tax system," says the JBRL.

The organization would like anyone supporting the JBRL's position to write to P.O. Box 546, V8W 2P3, Victoria.

BASES WERE LOADED FOR MAJOR LEAGUE DEBUT

Cheadle Knows About Heat

No need to tell Dave Cheadle about baptisms of fire. He knows.

The 26-year-old resident of Chapel Hill, N.C., will be the starting pitcher for Victoria Mussels on opening night June 21 when professional baseball makes its return to this city after a 24-year absence.

The Mussels meet Bellingham Mariners at Athletic Park to open the home segment of their 72-game Class A Northwest League schedule and this time Cheadle gets to make his debut with the bases empty.

That wasn't the case back in September, 1973, when he pitched in his first major league game.

A No. 1 pick by the New York Yankees in the June, 1970, amateur draft, the young lefthander had logged three seasons with their International League affiliate at Syracuse, then was traded to Atlanta Braves for pitcher Pat Dobson.

"I was with Atlanta for three weeks and didn't really expect to get a chance to pitch," Cheadle recalled Tuesday prior to a Mussel workout at Athletic Park.

He was wrong.

His turn came one night in Cincinnati — with one out in the 11th inning of a tie game against the Reds.

The bases were jammed and so was the ballpark because that was the year the Braves' Hank Aaron was making a run at Babe Ruth's record of 714 career homers. As it turned out, Aaron had to wait until the following season to break it.

But there was no waiting for Cheadle.

"They brought me in to face a lefthanded pinch hitter," he recalled. "He grounded out, but the next batter was Pete Rose. I threw him three fastballs and he swung at all three."

That snuffed the threat but in the 12th, after getting leadoff man Johnny Bench to pop up, Cheadle yielded a base on balls and was lifted for another reliever. His replacement gave up back-to-back singles, scoring the man Cheadle had walked and leaving him with the loss.

Cheadle got one more relief appearance with the Braves that year, against the Los Angeles Dodgers. He went three innings and allowed only a hit by Ron Cey, but he didn't figure in the decision.

That was the extent of Cheadle's major league career. He got back into the starting rotation with Braves' International League farm club at Richmond, Va., before dropping out of organized baseball two years ago.

Cheadle's final season at Richmond started well enough. He ran his won-lost record to 3-1, but late in May broke his thumb in four places trying to bare-hand a line drive against Charleston Charlies. That kept him out 2½ months and he never really recovered, finishing the year at 3-3.

"By then, I felt that after seven years my chances in baseball weren't getting any better," he said. "They're mainly interested in young guys around 20 and I was 24."

Then, too, Cheadle had an education to pursue (he still has a semester to go at the University of North Carolina) and prospects looked brighter in the classroom than on the mound.

Mussel manager Jim Chapman and pitching coach Don Rogelstad, who played with and against Cheadle in spring training and the minors, talked him back into action this year.

Physically, Cheadle is ready to go.

"I weigh less now than when I left baseball," he said. "It's a matter of rediscovering my pitches."

A fastballer when he broke in, Cheadle has turned to offspead and breaking deliveries.

"Now that my fastball has escaped me, I've devloped an assortment of pitches that I bought at K-Mart," he quipped.

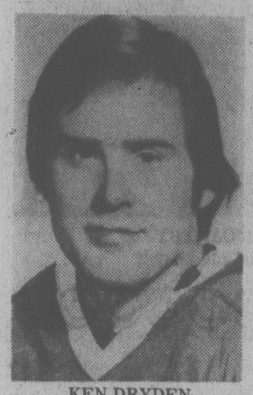

That's okay , though, because as Cheadle explains, "In the minors, the pitchers throw a lot of fastballs and the hitters hit 'em."

EXTRA BASES: Mussels announced the signing of two more players Tuesday, bringing their roster to 18. Latest acquisitions are Vito Lucarelli, a catcher from Bellingham who attends Western Washington University in the off-season, and Danny Gans, a third-baseman from Carlsbad, Calif., and a graduate of Cal Polytechnic at San Luis Obispo.

HEAD START: Dave Cheadle, named to start on the mound for Victoria Mussels in their home opener in the Class A Northwest Baseball League next Wednesday, does a balancing act with batting helmets prior to team's baseball workout Tuesday at Athletic Park. (Bill Halkett photo)

NHL Looking at WHA To Replace Cleveland

KEN DRYDEN
. . . four-time all-star

MONTREAL (CP) — At the moment, officially, there will be 18 teams in the National Hockey League for the 1978-79 season.

But the gut feeling is that Cleveland Barons are dead as a separate entity and will be merged with Minnesota North Stars and play out of Minnesota next season.

There is also some thought being given to the Barons being replaced in the NHL structure by a club or two from the rival World Hockey Association.

"I have no comment to make on the Cleveland situation right now," said John Ziegler, NHL president after he emerged from a day-long board of governors meeting.

"Right now, our schedule makers have instructions to make a schedule for 18 teams. There is no change in those instructions."

A committee is studying the proposal.

And while there were reports of Cleveland's death, the fact a WHA team or two might be added to the NHL was being bandied about.

But Peter Pocklington, owner of Edmonton Oilers, said in a statement that his team was not interested on a team-to-league basis in hooking up with the older league.

There were rumors during Tuesday's session that Bill Wirtz of Chicago Black Hawks, one of the league's influential governors, was meeting with officials from four WHA clubs — Edmonton, Winnipeg Jets, New England Whalers and Quebec Nordiques.

Meanwhile, Ziegler said that New York Islanders have been given until July 18 to come back to the NHL board with a plan for reorganization.

Ziegler also announced that the board of governors had turned down a proposal to institute a five-minute sudden-death overtime period for next season.

He also said that the league had approved a resolution making helmets mandatory beginning next year, but the NHL Players' Association still has to approve it.

Stronger action will be taken against those criticizing game officials next season with stiffer fines approved. Not only will the individual delivering the criticism be penalized, but so will his team.

Ziegler also said the board decided to reintroduce a rule ordering non-combatants to move away from the scene of a fight.

The rule, which was tried during pre-season games last season, met with little success.

In other developments, Marcel Pronovost, coach of Buffalo Sabres, Jacques Plante, an assistant coach of Philadelphia Flyers and Andy Bathgate, a former high scoring winger, were elected to the Hockey Hall of Fame.

Pronovost played with Detroit Red Wings and Toronto during a 20-year career and was an all-star defenceman four times.

Plante, who pioneered the development of face masks for goaltenders, was an all-star goaltender seven times and played on five Stanley Cup champions with Montreal Canadiens.

Bathgate, who played 15 full seasons with the Rangers, Toronto, Detroit and Pittsburgh Penguins between 1954-55 and 1970-71, was one of the pioneers of the slap shot and introduced the curved stick to the NHL.

Meanwhile, a story from Montreal in the Vancouver Sun says Mike Walton was traded by Vancouver Canucks because new coach Harry Neale wants only young, aggressive, two-way players next season.

Walton, 33, was traded Monday to St. Louis Blues in exchange for a fourth-round draft choice and future considerations.

Islanders and Habs Dominate All-Stars

MONTREAL (CP) — Three members of New York Islanders and two players from Montreal Canadiens were named today as first-team all-stars in the National Hockey League for the 1977-78 season.

Boston Bruins had the other player on the first team while the Canadiens had two on the second team along with one each from Buffalo Sabres and the Islanders and two from Toronto Maple Leafs.

The four selections from the Islanders equals their previous total in their first five seasons in the NHL. Defenceman Denis Potvin, centre Bryan Trottier and left winger Clarke Gillies were selected to the first team while rookie right winger Mike Bossy was chosen to the second sqaud.

Completing the first team were goaltender Ken Dryden of Montreal, Boston defenceman Brad Park and right winger Guy Lafleur of the Canadiens.

Joining Bossy on the second team were defencemen Larry Robinson of Montreal and Borje Salming of Toronto, Buffalo goaltender Don Edwards, Toronto centre Darryl Sittler and left winger Steve Shutt of the Canadiens.

Dryden received 210 points in the goaltending voting as he made the first all-star team for the fourth time. Edwards, classified as a first-year netminder, had 126 points.

Potvin, who now has been on four all-star teams, had 226 points while Park had 201. Robinson was one point back of Park and Salming had 166 points.

Trottier, Gillies and Bossy are all making their first appearance on the all-star selections while Potvin is making his initial first-team appearance.

Trottier had 218 points compared with 176 for Sittler, the Leafs' team captain, only the second Toronto forward to be named an all-star since 1970-71.

Lafleur, who had 266 points in the voting at right wing compared with 78 for Bossy, has been voted to the first all-star team for four consecutive years. Only Maurice Richard of Montreal, from 1944-45 through 1949-50, and Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings, from 1950-51 through 1953-54, had at least as many consecutive first-team selections at right wing.

Cables Crush Macs

Burnaby Cablevision wasted little time Tuesday night, taking 7-2 and 12-3 leads en route to a 15-5 decision over Victoria McDonalds in a Western Canada Junior Lacrosse League game at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

The win padded first-place Burnaby's margin over the up-and-coming New Westminster Salmonbellies to four points and improved its record to 11-2.

Victoria slipped to 6-7 and is in jeopardy of losing its toehold on third place. The Bakers are two points ahead of Richmond Roadrunners, who visit winless Coquitlam J-Hawks tonight.

An tight defence helped Cables to victory and Burnaby netminder Greg Pryde turned in a solid performance with 45 saves.

Mike Duch of Victoria managed 44 stops in an equally-good effort.

Dan Perrault, John Swan and Derek Dickson set the pace for Burnaby with three goals each, Ken Sim added two goals and singles were contributed by Wayne Hinada, Mike O'Reilly, Lloyd Symons and Gordie Roberts.

Murray McLaren scored a pair for Victoria, while singles came from Brian Bell, back in the lineup after recovering from a back injury, Rhys Wicks and Jeff Whitney-Griffiths.

Burnaby took seven minor penalties while McDonalds were assessed 11.

FAMILY REUNIONS IF MATCHES GO WELL

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — The wives of Austria's soccer team have arrived for what could be the final stages of the World Cup, and may even be allowed to join their husbands from time to time if the matches go well.

For the moment, the players are in one hotel and the wives in another. But Otto Demuth, secretary of the Austrian soccer federation, said the segregation need not be permanent.

"Every night after a game there is a possibility they may be together," Demuth said guardedly.

Maybe, if Austria defeats the Netherlands at Cordoba today, there will be some joyful conjugal reunions. If Austria loses — well, then the Austrian federation may take a different view.

Soccer coaches differ on the subject of sex between games for their players while the big tournament is on.

The wives of only two members of the Italian team — Rento Zaccarelli and Francesco Graziani — made the trip to Argentina. They were scarcely allowed to see their husbands — only occasionally as spectators at training, and never in the country club where the players stayed. Now Mrs. Zaccarelli and Mrs. Graziani have gone home.

For the French, one of the 16 teams that started in the World Cup, it was "non, non, non" all the way. They were not allowed to bring their wives to Argentina at all.

The French spent a thoroughly unhappy time, losing their first two matches and being eliminated in the first round.

The celibate Austrians, on the other hand, played as though inspired. Victories over Spain and Sweden sent them to top place in their group and they sailed into the second round.

In other games today, Brazil was to meet Peru and Argentina was to play Poland.

Nemesis On Tap

Victoria Shamrocks take on their nemesis of this Western Lacrosse Association at Memorial Arena tonight with the appearance here of New Westminster Salmonbellies.

The Salmonbellies are two-game winners over the Shamrocks this season, both victories coming at Queens Park, while the Rocks managed a 19-12 victory here.

Besides the norm, the game is important to the Salmonbellies in that they can win a berth a Edmonton for the Commonwealth Games alongside the Shamrocks who got theirs Monday.

As a matter of fact it's possible for Nanaimo and New Westminster to be tied by the end of the week, excluding the Victoria-Nanaimo game at Nanaimo, Saturday, which doesn't count for the Games standings. Then a tie-breaker, yet to be revealed, will be necessary to determine the second WLA team for the demonstration, Aug. 9-10.

It's also possible for the Salmonbellies to be in first place before the week's end as they host Nanaimo on Thursday and a double win over the Island clubs would turn that trick for them.

As for the Irish, they must win to prohibit that possibility, and also to move further ahead of a field that is closely bunched with three teams only three points behind them.

Vancouver Burrards also had a chance for that second Games berth until Tuesday night when Coquitlam Adanacs handed them an 18-12 setback at Kerrisdale Arena. Vancouver has 10 points, two less than Nanaimo and New Westminster, and only one game remaining before the cutoff date to determine th other Edmonton bount team.

Rookie Gord Quilty did most of the damage to the Burrards, counting four goals and five assists for the winners. Ray and Dave Durante and Ray Mattinson scored two goals each for Coquitlam while Doug Hayes had three goals and five assists for Vancouver.

The Shamrock injury situation is a bit of a problem. Ron MacNeil had a sore knee after Monday's game against Nanaimo. Dan Green is suffering from shin splints. Ranjit Dillon's shoulder is still tender. Jim Gow has a pulled thigh muscle. Ivan Thompson has a fractured jaw. He was hit by a ball in Saturday's tie game at Coquitlam and likely will be out for two weeks. The injury is not considered serious.

On the good side of the news, Gerry McKenna, who missed Wednesday's game because of work commitments, will be back and so will Jerry Kustaski, who was also working Wednesday.

Game time is 8 p.m.

Tagge Looks Like Leader for Lions

Jim TAYLOR

With six minutes left in the third quarter Jerry Tagge hauled his sore foot off the sidelines and stepped into B.C. Lions' huddle. It was like the boss stepping into the office.

On his first play he dropped back and set up for the pass. The line stiffened, holding the blocks that fraction longer than they'd held them earlier. When the boss is around, you don't screw up. Tagge looked, pumped, and hummed one 29 yards to Jim Young.

The series didn't go any further. Tagge threw one incomplete pass and was thrown back nine yards by a charging Glen Weir. The next series was one handoff to Larry Key for five yards and another incomplete pass. It didn't matter, because the crispness was starting to come.

And in the opening series of the fourth quarter, mixing eight running plays by Key and Calvin Culliver around 15-yard strikes to Leon Bright and Young, he marched them 55 yards for their only touchdown in a 15-9 victory over Montreal Alouettes.

He ran only two more plays all night, but that didn't matter, either. The point had been made. The leader still wears No. 8.

It is a funny thing, this business of leadership in football — a crazy mixture of ability and intangibles, and sometimes the intangibles count most.

You can't buy it or steal it or inherit it. It has to be earned. A lot of good ones haven't had it, but those who do are seldom shy about it.

In 1967, Bernie Faloney came to the Lions on the tail end of a brilliant career with Edmonton and Hamilton. When he stepped into the huddle and clapped his hands one of the veterans muttered something about "Rah rah stuff."

"If you don't like it," Faloney snapped, "get the bleep out of my huddle."

Vic Rapp was talking about Tagge and leadership.

He likes all three of his quarterbacks: Gary Keithley proved at the end of last season that he can play in this league. Among those he convinced was Tagge, who frankly admits that he skipped the all-star game this year because he didn't feel he could afford to give Keithley a one-week jump at training camp. Joe Paopao is so green you're never sure whether that's an Afro on his head, or weeds — but he has an arm like a crossbow and reeks potential.

In the matter of pure throwing, either one is likely better than Tagge. But there is no doubt who's sitting No. 1.

"Jerry went out and took charge," Rapp said. "They seemed to lift up a little when he went out there. It's different for him this year. Last season at this time nobody knew him from Adam, but he still went out and did the job. Now they know him and what he can do. It makes a lot of difference."

Tagge himself says he knows his receivers now, that he's learned to read Bright and Al Charuk. He and Young have developed what amounts to telepathy, a communication honed on the sidelines when the defence is in.

But it's more than experience, more than communication. It's the intangibles, isn't that the players lack any faith in Keithley or aren't giving it their best shot for Paopao. There can be only one leader. Sometimes the choice is subconscious, but there can be only one.

Rapp was there when it began happening in Edmonton. Bruce Lemmerman had led the Eskimos to something like nine straight wins when he first arrived. Then he got hurt and this dumpy, tobacco-chewing, potbellied, unshaven guy named Tom Wilkinson took over. He couldn't throw as well as Lemmerman, or run as quickly. Sometimes he threw underhanded. Once he won a game throwing left-handed. All he could ever do was win.

Lemmerman came back, and has played a lot of football for Edmonton. But he never got his team back. It had become Wilkinson's, and it's stayed that way even when he was on the bench.

Leadership. You find it in funny places.

Rudy Florio has it — a different kind than Tagge's, but in its own way just as impressive.

Florio is listed as a reserve slotback, but if he had to make the team on that basis he likely wouldn't. He stuck last year because he simply made himself the best specialty team-man on the club. On punt or kickoff coverage he is invariably one of the first men down, hitting with a splendid, joyous abandon.

"Some people might look at Rudy and say that when we get down to the tough cutting he won't make it," Rapp said. "But don't you bet on it. It could well be that on some of the final cuts the difference will be just that kind of desire and hustle — and nobody wants it more than Rudy.

"There are people with more ability, but last year Rudy was captain of our special teams. He doesn't look on it as some kind of demotion or garbage detail. He enjoys it, and he gives it everything. You can't teach that."

For Rapp and Tagge and Keithley and the rest, last night was simply a beginning. There are three more exhibition games — games in which Keithley can take his run at Tagge. Paopao can run at Keithley for the backup spot, and kids like Key and Culliver can swallow their Adam's apple and settle into the business of playing pro.

Keithley will concede nothing to Tagge. They admire one another. But Tagge became the leader last year. For all his off-season fretting and preparation, that doesn't appear to have changed.

Oak Bay Top Seeds Advance

All the cream has come to the top in the Oak Bay Tennis Club tournament.

In men's singles play Tuesday, top-seeded Peter Smythe defeated fourth-ranked Marty Taylor 6-3, 6-0 in a semi-final match. Smythe will face the winner of a match between second-seed Tony Simnett and third-ranked John Nichol.

In women's singles play, third-seeded Sandra Moss advanced the the final by upsetting second-seeded Damaris Hurley, 6-4, 6-2. Top-seeded Sally Hemeon and fourth-rated Valerie Brice will meet in the other semi-final.

Play continues through Friday beginning at 5:30 each evening and concludes with finals starting at 12 noon Saturday.

Akimina-Kishinena Faces Multiple Use

OUTDOORS
stewart lang

Some rambling notes along the trail:

True to form, the provincial government has opted for multiple-use management of the Akamina-Kishinena area of southeastern British Columbia . . . Two areas have been created out of the 56,000 acres . . . Zone A (17,000 acres), which touches on both Waterton National Park in Alberta and Glacier National Park in the United States, will receive "intensive special planning attention to preserve recreational and wildlife values" . . . The remainder in Zone B (39,000 acres) has "been subject to mountain pine beetle infestation and will require the salvage logging of approximately 1,900 acres" . . . The Environment and Land Use Committee has directed resource managers to compile detailed resource management plans for the entire area . . . The section of the plan covering Zone A will have to receive direct approval from ELUC before any development takes place . . . But no matter how stiff they make any protective regulations, the majestic beauty of the area will never be the same . . . It's too bad this government is so concerned with short-term cents rather than long-term dollars . . . The Akamina-Kishinena region would have made a first-class wilderness park without the mining and timber harvesting alienations.

Summer camping has started and two new books might make life in the outdoors just a little more interesting . . . The Backpacker's Cookbook, by Harvey Macklin, costs $4.95 and is published by MacMillan of Canada . . . Just the right size for a backpack, this pocket-sized book contains some excellent recipes combining freeze-dried and regular super-market fare . . . The illustrations are good, despite being used in a couple of other publications along the same theme . . . Backpacking, by Lee Schreiber, is $6.50 and published by McGraw-Hill Ryerson . . . It does an excellent job of covering just about every facet of the topic without becoming overly technical and makes good introductory reading for anyone just starting out.

The Rose family came up winners during Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association derbies on Sunday . . . Tricia Rose won a 10-speed bike and topped the Junior Derby with a 20-pound, eight-ounce salmon while her grandmother, Win Rose, topped the Sweetheart Derby with an 11:14 catch . . . Following along in the Junior fishfest were Sherry Grimshaw (14:00), Derek Chow (8:08), B. Bickford (7:10), Julia Leong (7:00), Sherry Grey (6:00), Karl Leong (5:02), M. Stothers (4:14), Janet Fennell (2:08), R. Bell (2:02), Goldie Newman (2:00), B. Leach (1:10) and Rennie Bell (1:00) . . . Miss Grey also won a special draw prize of a rod and reel and the Guppy Cup for anglers aged 12 and under . . . Following on in the Sweetheart Derby were M. Porter (8:12), Annie Alexander (7:12), Marie Sidaway (5:12), Rose Leong (5:04), Sue Smith (5:00) and L. Grimshaw (4:06) . . . Special donations by Radiant Lures, Rhys Davies Lures and Tom Moss Tomic Plugs enabled the VSIAA to give prizes to every entrant.

Just for the record, a total of 320,000 acres have been logging in sustained yield tenures of British Columbia between 1972 and 1976 . . . Natural regeneration covered 181,000 of those acres and planting has been successful in 119,794 acres . . . This leaves 19,206 acres where regeneration was unsuccessful . . . In fact, it is estimated that almost 2 million acres for forest land has become unproductive during the last 20 years because of regeneration failure . . . Timber is a renewable resource, providing enough money is spent to replant the trees and care for the land . . . Otherwise, a time of reckoning will come — perhaps sooner than later.

DOROTHY DEGIROLAMO

Dorothy Chalks Up Heftiest Win Margin

Medalist Dorothy DeGirolamo, burning up her home course, came up with the greatest margin of victory Tuesday during the opening round of championship medal play in the Victoria and District women's golf championship at Gorge Vale Golf Club.

DeGirolamo, who is also the defending champion, eliminated Betty Forgie 8 and 7 to advance to the quarter-final round earlier today.

In other championship matches, Jill Johnson of Salt Spring Island defeated Lorna Rooper of Uplands on the 19th; Juanita Turner of Gorge Vale topped Doreen Brunsdon of Royal Colwood, 1-up; Elsie Saunders of Gorge Vale downed Florence Chapman of Royal Colwood, 4 and 3; Heather Stewart of Uplands ousted Joyce Woodruff of Glen Meadows, who withdrew because of a neck problem; Pat Derry of Royal Colwood tripped clubmate Sydney Thompson, 4 and 2; Myrna McLean of Royal Colwood clipped Bernice Brefitt of Uplands on the 19th and Shirley Naysmith of Gorge Vale crushed Edythe McCormick of Royal Colwood, 7 and 5.

Play in both the championship and flights continues Thursday, beginning at 8 a.m., and concludes Friday.

Vadnais Signs

MONTREAL (CP) — Defenceman Carol Vadnais has signed a multi-year contract with New York Rangers, the National Hockey League club announced Monday.

Vadnais, an 11-year-veteran, had six goals and 40 assists in 80 games for the Rangers last season.

The Rangers also confirmed the appointment of Mike Nykoluk as assistant coach and Mickey Keating as assistant general manager.

Operation Trackshoes Winners

Over 700 mentally handicapped people competed in the annual Operation Trackshoes at the University of Victoria on the weekend.

First place in the schools division went to Simon Cunningham of Surrey with Sunny Cedars of Coquitlam second.

Burnaby Activity Centre topped the workshops division with Vancouver-Richmond second.

Sportsmanship trophies were won by Greenaway School of Surrey in the schools section; Sylivia McNeil of Mission School, Mission, in the female division; and Mervin Knome of Helen-Dixon Annex, Quesnel, in the male division.

Sunny Cedars, Coquitlam, took the tug-of-war and shuttle relay trophies, while Bob Boe of Seaview School, Powell River, captured the triathlon.

Three-hundred volunteer workers assisted in the two-day event.

Ballesteros To Join U.S. Tour

MEMPHIS (AP) — Severiano Ballesteros, the dynamic young Spaniard who has dominated European golf for two years, will join the U.S. PGA tour on a full-time basis next year.

"Ballesteros has accepted his PGA tour card effective at the first of the year and will begin full-time competition at that time," PGA tour commissioner Deane Beman has reported.

Winners Take Shutout Route

It was shutout night in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League Tuesday as Sooke Merchants and Juan de Fuca Builders counted victories.

The Merchants downed Seaboard Construction 1-0 at Sooke on a four-hitter by pitcher Ron Fedosenko and a home run by Norm Goudie. Seabord pitcher Randy Jackson yielded only four hits besides Goudie's blast.

The Builders blanked Ingraham Hotel 3-0 at Central Park with Len Carolan fashioning a three-hitter and helping himself at the plate by driving in what turned out to be the winning run.

In contrast, the Senior Women's League featured plenty of runs Tuesday at Hyacinth Park as CJVI Vicettes downed Victoria Athletics 10-2 and Victoria Skylarks whipped Hygrade Radio 14-4.

Lori Skinner led Vicettes with three singles and a double and scored three times while pitcher Sandy Milliken picked up the win on a five-hitter. The Athletics gained some solace in the fourth inning by pulling off a triple play.

Gale Prince had three hits and three runs-batted-in for the Skylarks, who also got three-hit performances from Maxine Stovel and Terry Hughes.

Barry Wrbowski was the key man in a Heywood Avenue Men's League game Tuesday. He doubled in the tying run and scored the winner in Hygrade Radio's 2-1 decision over Remco Office Supplies. Chris James homered in the first for Hygrade and Jack Petrie stopped Remco on a three-hitter.

Jerry Tagge Sparks Leos

By Canadian Press

Jerry Tagge directed British Columbia Lions to a 15-9 decision over defending Grey Cup champions Montreal Alouettes in one of two Canadian Football League exhibition games Tuesday.

In the other game, Cyril McFall booted three field goals, two singles and two converts to lead Calgary Stampeders to a 25-19 victory over the visiting Edmonton Eskimos.

Tagge, who injured an ankle in training camp, completed two key passes to Jim Young and another to Leon Bright — all on second downs — to set up a three-yard touchdown run by rookie Calvin Culliver at 5:50 of the fourth quarter.

Lui Passaglia completed B.C.'s scoring with field goals of 29 and 25 yards, two singles and a convert.

Montreal's touchdown came when rookie linebacker John Olenchalk recovered a fumble by Ken Hinton in the B.C. end zone on an aborted punt return.

Ty Morris had his convert attempt blocked by Hinton, but later kicked a 12-yard field goal.

In Calgary, Tom Forzani, on a 58-yard reception from quarterback Matthew Reed, and Bob Viccars, grabbing a 15-yard toss from rookie quarterback Craig Juntunen, scored touchdowns for the Stamps.

Dave Cutler kicked three field goals, three singles and one convert while JVIM Germany grabbed a three-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Tom Wilkinson for Edmonton's points.

Gift Tallies Decide Games

One good turn deserved another as far as Greaves Movers and Gorge Hotel were concerned Tuesday night in the Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League.

The clubs split two decisions at Lambrick Park, gift runs deciding both games.

Greaves won 3-2 in the opener, the completion of a 2-2 tie called because of darkness after nine innings earlier this month. The winners counted an unearned run in the 11th, Dave Piercy scoring after reaching base on an error. Sacrifices by Dan Beveridge and Bob Jarvis moved him to third and Ron Arcuri's single plated him.

Gorge took the nightcap 3-2, scoring three unearned runs in the second on an error, a single, a walk and another two-base error.

NINA STAYS FOR FIRST TOUR EVENT

Nina Bland will rate as the hometown favorite later this month when the American Express Challengers tennis circuit hits the Racquet Club of Victoria, June 27-July 2.

The British Columbia Open, worth $15,000, forms the first of six tournaments on a $100,000, six-city tour.

Bland currently shares third place in the Canadian women's ranking with Nicole Marois of Quebec City.

Second-ranked Wendy Barlow of Victoria won't make the tournament because of a European tour, but top-seeded Marjorie Blackwood of Ottawa is entered along with Marois.

Former-Victorian Don McCormick, now residing in Richmond, is among the top Canadians in the men's division.

Nugget Ace Lone Repeater

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — Guard David Thompson of Denver Nuggets is the only repeater on the National Basketball Association's 1977-78 all-star team, announced Tuesday prior to the league's annual summer meetings.

Thompson, who made the squad last year as a forward, was joined on the first team by guard George Gervin of San Antonio, centre Bill Walton of Portland and forwards Truck Robinson of New Orleans and Julius Erving of Philadelphia.

The second team consisted of rookie Walter Davis of Phoenix and Maurice Lucas of Portland at forward, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of Los Angeles at centre and Paul Westphal of Phoenix and Pete Maravich of New Orleans at guard.

Walton was the leading vote-getter in the balloting among three writers from each league city with 121 points, outdistancing Abdul-Jabbar, who got 42. Points were tabulated on the basis of two for each first-place vote and one for a second-place mention.

Walton was the league's most-valuable player this year while Abdul-Jabbar earned that honor last season.

Gervin, the NBA scoring champion, topped the guards in the balloting with 114 points. Thompson received 102 and Westphal 82.

Reds' Pitcher Settles Week-Old Score With Cubs

Associated Press

It didn't take Fred Norman long to settle a score with Chicago Cubs.

The last time the Cincinnati lefthander faced the Cubs, he was blasted off the mound by a fierce Chicago attack that resulted in a 10-1 National League baseball loss.

That was a week ago. But Tuesday night, Norman threw it back in the Cubs' teeth, combining with reliever Doug Bair to fashion a four-hit, 1-0 triumph for the Reds.

"Everything was there, the good command and good location," Norman said. "And I knew exactly what I wanted to come back with."

It was one of Norman's best performances in a Cincinnati uniform. He didn't allow a hit until Steve Ontiveros singled in the fifth and only three Cubs reached second base until the ninth.

Then, with runners on first and third, Bair came on to strike out the last two batters and preserve the win.

In other games, Los Angeles Dodgers beat Philadelphia Phillies 5-3, San Francisco Giants stopped Montreal Expos 9-5, New York Mets edged San Diego Padres 3-2, Houston Astros nipped Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1 and Atlanta Braves routed St. Louis Cardinals 12-1.

In American League action, Minnesota Twins swept a twi-night doubleheader from Toronto Blue Jays 2-0 and 7-2, Boston Red Sox beat California Angels 5-0, Milwaukee Brewers beat Detroit Tigers 7-2, New York Yankees defeated Oakland A's 5-3, Chicago White Sox defeated Cleveland Indians 10-9 and Kansas City Royals beat Texas Rangers 5-0.

Lee Lacy hit a three-run homer in the first inning and Steve Yeager had a solo shot in the second to lead Los Angeles over Philadelphia.

Don Sutton scattered eight hits, three of them baseses-empty home runs by Mike Schmidt, Richie Hebner and Greg Luzinski. The win was Sutton's fifth in 11 decisions and first since May 22.

Jack Clark drove in four runs with a double and a three-run homer to spark San Francisco over Montreal. Left-hander Bob Knepper, 8-3, survived a shaky three-run first inning and then retired 16 batters in a row to post the Giants' fourth straight victory.

The Expos took a 3-0 lead in the first on Tony Perez's bases-loaded double. But the Giants rallied with two runs in the bottom of the inning off loser Rudy May, 6-6, and then went ahead to stay with three more runs in the fifth, with Clark contributing a key RBI double.

Lenny Randle's two-run single in the ninth paced New York over San Diego. Randle's hit came off reliever Rollie Fingers, 2-7, while Skip Lockwood, 7-4, gained the victory with two scoreless innings of relief work.

Cesar Cedeno tripled home Dennis Walling from third with two out in the eighth to lead Houston over Pittsburgh. With one out, Walling singled and stole second before moving to third on a grounder by Enos Cabell. Cedeno followed with his triple to the right centre field wall off loser Jim Bibby, 4-3.

Ken Forsch, 2-2, was the winner with relief help from Joe Sambito.

Pitcher Preston Hanna hit his first major league homer and recorded his fifth win as Atlanta scored seven runs in the seventh inning to rout St. Louis.

Hanna's homer opened the fourth off starter Silvio Martinez, 2-1. Hanna, 5-1, worked seven innings, allowing six hits.

Happy Birthday To New Champion

HOLLINGWELL, England (Reuter) — Edwina Kennedy, the Australian junior champion, celebrated her 19th birthday by winning the British women's amateur golf championship at the Nottinghamshire Golf Club on Saturday.

The tall Sydney student became the first Australian holder of the title when she defeated British Curtis Cup international Julia Greenhalgh by one hole in the 18-hole final.

PADRES: 'NO GUTS'

Times News Services

San Diego Padres lack "pride or guts" and he's fed up, says owner Ray Kroc.

In an interview in a San Diego newspaper, Kroc said catcher-first baseman Gene Tenace "needs to go to an eye doctor — he can't tell a strike from a ball. He hasn't given this ball club one thing since we got him."

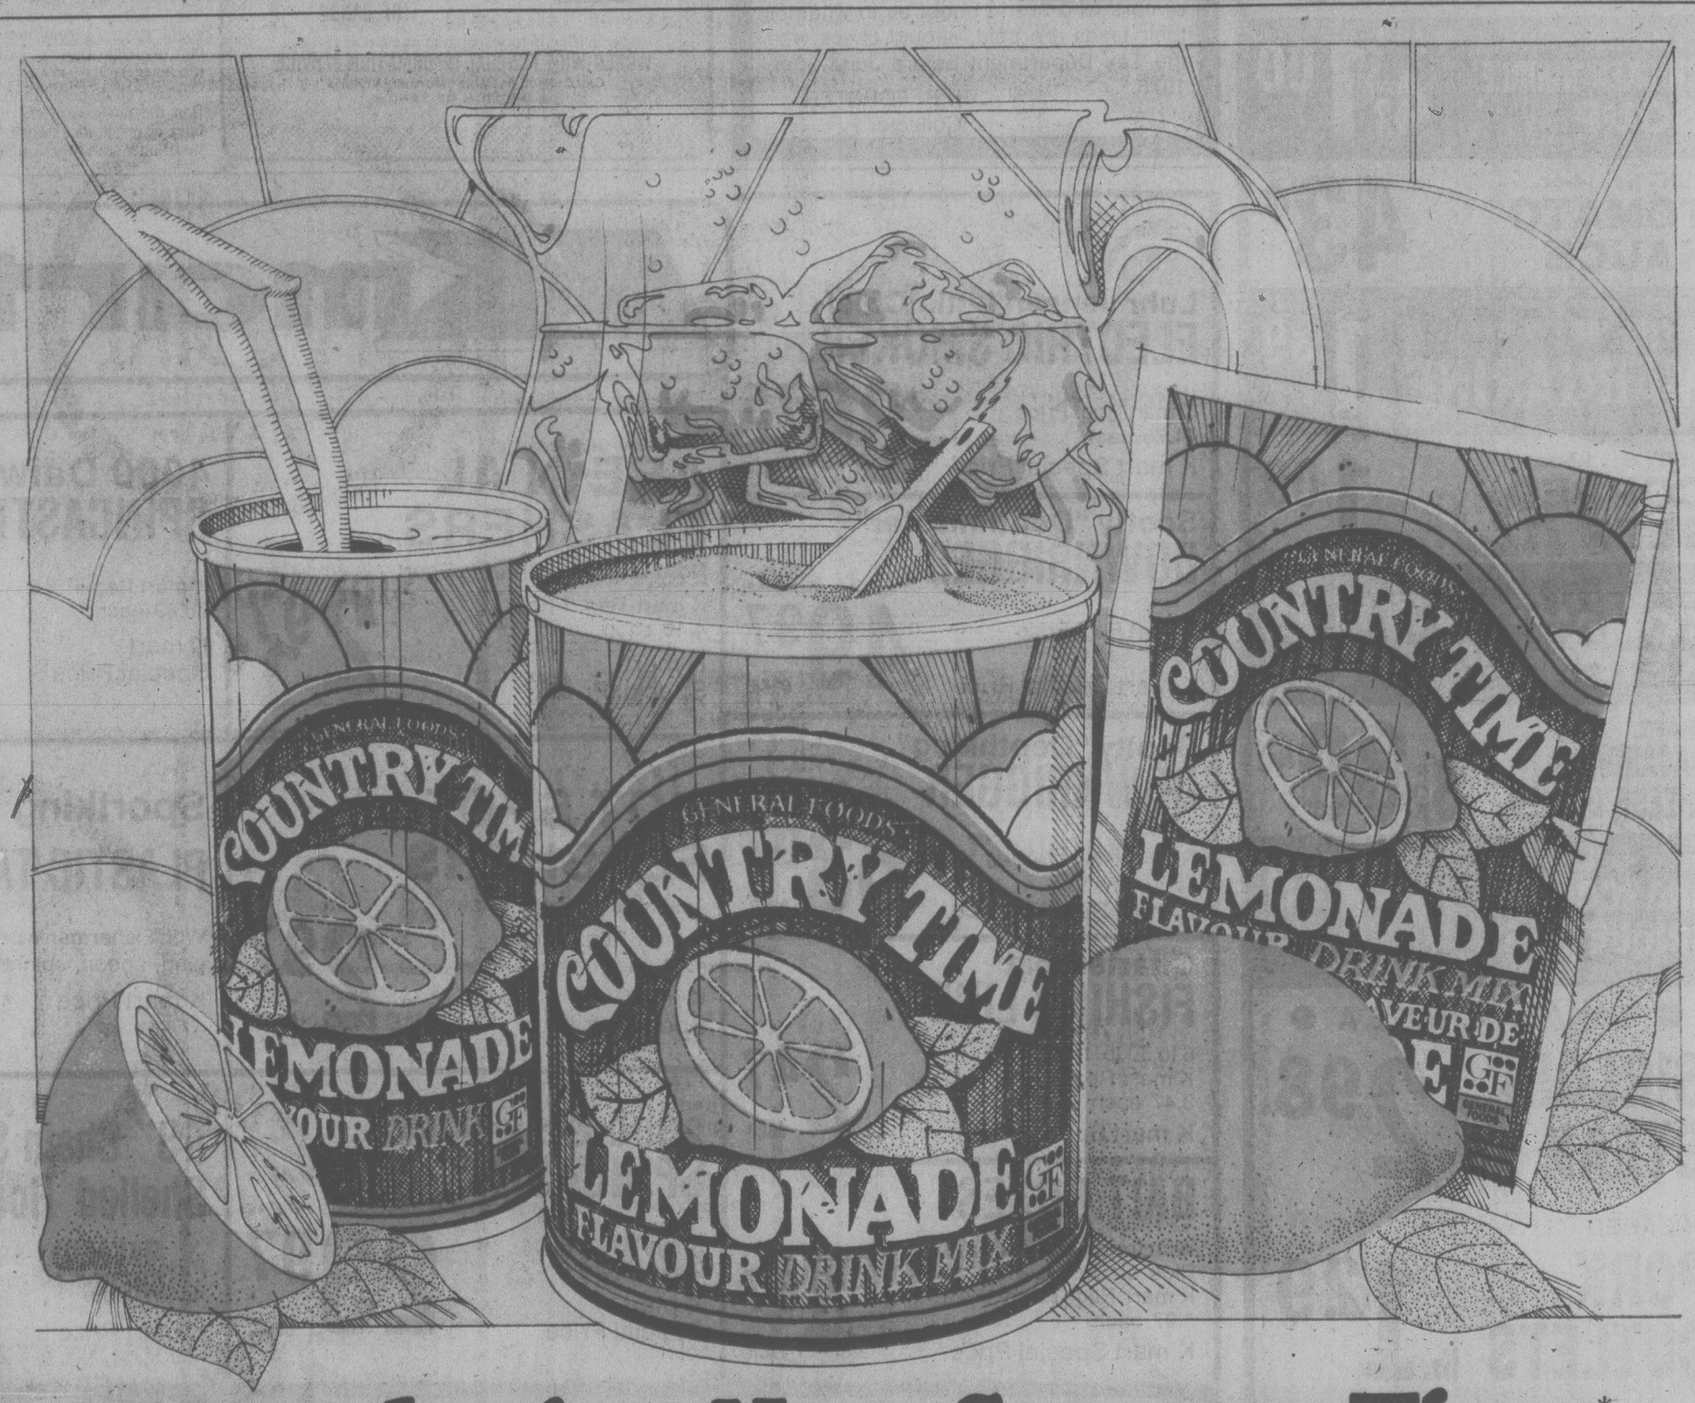

"I'm sick and tired the way this ball club has been playing," said Kroc. "It's pitiful. I'm thoroughly disgusted. I don't think they've got any guts or pride . . . I'm not going to subsidize idiots."

In Oakland, meanwhile, Bobby Winkles did some speaking up three weeks after resigning as manager of Oakland A's.

"It just boiled down to a difference in philosophy on how one human being treats another," he explained.

The difficulty of getting along with A's owner Charles O. Finley had gotten to be too much for him.

Giguere Profits Detailed

MONTREAL (CP) — Liberal Senator Louis Giguere sold his shares in Sky Shops Export Ltd. on Nov. 14, 1972, for $100,000, businessman Peter Thomson told Superior Court Tuesday.

Testifying at Giguere's trial, Thomson said the senator was paid $68,620.51 by certified cheque and received promisory notes for the balance.

Testimony last week showed Giguere had bought 5,000 shares in Sky Shops for $1 each—an amount former Sky Shops official Pierre Legrand said was "substantially" below their real value—only a few months before.

Legrand said last week that Giguere paid for the shares in June, 1972, and was issued the certificates on Oct. 31 of that year.

Sky Shops Export Ltd. ran a duty-free shop at Montreal's Dorval airport. Giguere is charged with conspiring to exercise his influence to extend the shop's lease in return for a benefit of $95,000 gained through the share transactions between July 1, 1971, and Nov. 30, 1972.

Thomson's company, P. Lawson Travel (Canada) Ltd., bought every one of the Sky Shops shares for $20 a share in the November, 1972, transaction.

When the sales contract was drawn up, extension of the lease at the duty-free shop was one of the clauses, documents produced in court showed.

However, Thomson said that just before the sales transaction took place, Giguere asked him "whether it would be possible for him to keep his shares.

"I said, 'No, I'm only interested in 100 per cent of the shares,' " Thomson testified having replied.

Earlier in the day, Carmel Carriere, the former executive assistant to then-federal cabinet minister Jean Marchand, testified she sent a memo to a transport department official in 1971 saying Marchand was "most anxious" to have a lease for Sky Shops Export Ltd. extended.

The memo, which Miss Carriere read to the court, was addressed to Andrew Chatwood, executive assistant to Don Jamieson, then the federal transport minister.

Later in the day, George Allan Baker, a former federal transport department official, read a memo marked "confidential" and dated Nov. 2, 1971.

Baker said he had drawn up the memo, which was addressed to a W.H Huck, administrator of the air transport administration, and that it "flowed directly" from Miss Carriere's notes.

"We have been advised that Mr. Marchand is 'most anxious to have the lease of Sky Shops Export Ltd. extended to 1979,' " Baker read, "and that he wonders if we could 'have a second look' at our decision (not to extend the lease.)

"Are you disposed to maintain the position of the ministry or might an extension be justified?" the memo read.

Quebec Shelves Mideast Scheme

QUEBEC (CP) — The idea of setting up a Quebec office in the Middle East has been temporarily shelved but the government is still interested in opening up shop in South America, Claude Morin, intergovernmental affairs minister, said Tuesday.

"We're trying to see where it would be most convenient to locate," Morin said of the South American prospects.

Earlier at the committee hearings where the 1978-79 spending estimates of his department were scrutinized, Morin announced that the government had given up the idea of setting up a bureau in the Middle East to court business from the oil-rich Arab countries.

For starters, competition for business in those Arab states is stiff and even many independent countries have not been able to get their foot in the door, he said.

On top of that, the costs of setting up Quebec representation there would be astronomical and would leave the government open to criticism that it was spending a fortune for nothing.

Quebec businessmen interested in bidding on Arab contracts can keep abreast through the intergovernmental affairs department, Morin said.

Husky Bid Waits for FIRA Nod

OTTAWA (CP) — The proposed acquisition of the Calgary-based Husky Oil Ltd., by Occidental Petroleum Corp., of Los Angeles must approved by both the Foreign Investment Review Agency (FIRA) and the cabinet before it can be consumated.

Industry Minister Jack Horner told reporters Tuesday that the Los Angeles company has not yet made application to the agency, which must judge whether the takeover, worth hundreds of millions, is of significant benefit to Canadians.

Both Horner and Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie commented on the Husky situation after it was announced that Occidental apparently has acquired Husky from under the nose of Petro-Canada, the Crown-owned oil company.

Horner, to whom FIRA reports, said he expects the agency to deal with the Occidental bid to acquire Husky within 15 days of receiving an application. But he added that no application has been submitted.

He added all FIRA decisions are reviewed by cabinet.

Gillespie told T. C. Douglas, New Democrat energy critic, in the Commons the government has no plans to tell FIRA how to deal with the Occidental attempt. He added "FIRA is well aware of the government's heavy oil priorities."

Petro-Canada sought to acquire all the common shares of Husky primarily to get control of the company's vast holdings of heavy oil in Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Gillespie told reporters FIRA officials "are aware of the importance of developing the heavy oil resources of Western Canada."

The minister refused to answer questions concerning Petro-Canada's bid. He had noted in the Commons that Petro-Canada is reviewing its position.

Horner showed no remorse at the apparent failure of the Petro-Canada bid.

"I don't know why I would be disappointed. Husky isn't the only company for sale. There are 600 or 700 others."

Acknowledging that he had very little use for the Crown corporation, Horner told reporters: "You all know I don't think Petro-Canada's the last word in the oil industry."

Horner said he would take the agency's recommendation to cabinet as soon as he received it.

He recalled FIRA once prevented Occidental from buying an American company with Canadian holdings. Occidental had promised to develop these holdings. He refused to name the other company.

Douglas said in an interview he thinks there is a good chance FIRA will approve the Occidental acquisition, stripping Canada of its last chance to develop its own heavy oil resources.

"FIRA is a pretty toothless watchdog and I don't think the cabinet would have the backbone to reverse its decision if it decides to let Occidental go ahead. The government has never reversed a FIRA ruling before."

He said the only hope lies in the massive public outcry that would develop if the government decides to let the American company buy Husky.

He said the country has already effectively sold its conventional crude and oil sands holdings and all that remains is heavy oil. The government, through Petro-Canada, must make sure heavy oil is developed by the time Canada's conventional oil runs out.

Horner said it is his personal opinion there are better oil companies for the government to buy into than Husky if the government is prepared to spend the money.

Disbarred Lawyer Sought In $600,000 Fraud Scandal

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canada-wide warrant has been issued for the arrest of a disbarred Ottawa lawyer on fraud charges involving more than $600,000.

All but one of the cases involved clients giving Yves Parisien, a 45-year-old mortgage broker disbarred as a lawyer in 1971, money to invest in second mortgages, said police. Instead, Parisien put the money in his bank account.

Ottawa police launched an investigation June 2 after receiving a complaint from a law firm about Parisien. The firm said one of their clients had been duped out of a large sum of money involving second mortgages.

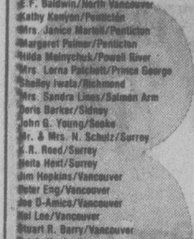

Police said 21 complaints have been received from people who invested their money with Parisien, and losses reported so far totalling $688,850.

Some people had lost their life savings, said Staff Sargeant Dan McFaul. Although most of the victims were individuals, several banks and other financial institutions lost money.

Action Now Not Studies Urged on Grain Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — Mr. Justice Emmett Hall rendered a subtle but tough verdict Tuesday on the federal government, the Canadian transport commission and the two national railways for a growing pile of problems in the movement of Prairie grain.

The government opted for more studies when action on proposed solutions was required, the transport commission doesn't yet comprehend Western rail transportation and the railways are not fulfilling their mandate, Hall told the Commons transport committee.

It was the first time Hall had discussed with MPs the report on grain handling his commission tabled in Parliament 13 months ago. He said he discussed it for the first time with Wheat Minister Otto Lang two weeks ago after the committee decided to ask him to testify.

Meanwhile Lang told a Winnipeg news conference the government will buy more hopper cars for the railways and will announce by the end of June the appointment of a technical analyst to study grain movements.

Hall said he didn't think his former law school pupil was devious enough to try to upstage his appearance before the Commons committee. But opposition MPs, who have been using the Hall report to hound Lang, saw it differently.

They've been critical of Lang for allowing bottlenecks in the rail system to reach the state where 17 ships are waiting in Vancouver for grain still in Prairie elevators, farmers face a $30 million demurrage bill for the vessels and a number of overseas customers are worried about getting deliveries from Canada.

Hall steered carefully around questions designed to draw a clear-cut criticism of the government but he did say the government waste time "over another study on the port of Vancouver" and should act on recommendations for a special group to expedite grain handling in the port.

Whoever is selected to do the technical study on grain movement "is going to have an easy job," Hall said. The answers are in the report and supporting material.

"The penchant of the day with the government is to have another study of all recommendations made to it," he said.

Hall said the railways "don't need gifts from government" to do their job of moving grain. Besides the additional hopper cars, the government has an eight-year, $700-million program for upgrading rail lines.

He said he feels Lang was partly wrong in claiming his approach would save taxpayers $25 million over the proposals made by Hall and American economist Carl Snavely. They said the railways should receive a subsidy to cover the difference between what they earn under the Crowsnest Pass rates and full compensatory rates.

"This would allow them to borrow the money they need to buy" rolling stock and rehabilitate their lines, Hall said.

He also said the Crowsnest rates were fundamental to national unity and the government should set related rates for Prairie livestock producers.

The only alternative to the Crowsnest rates is to load the charge on the backs of grain growers, penalizing them for being located so far from the oceans.

The Crowsnest rates are fixed in law and give farmers set rates for the railway shipment of their grains to Vancouver or Thunder Bay.

Hall also said the government should keep moving on creation of a western component of the transport commission "without any further investigation." It should have the authority to act on Western problems and not just be a branch office for Ottawa-dwelling bureaucrats.

$500,000 Award for MD

MONTREAL (CP) — A local doctor who was illegally dismissed in 1969 from l'Hopital Bellechasse has been awarded more than half a million dollars in damages.

Dr. Lomer Pilote had been awarded $55,498 by Quebec Court of Appeal in 1973 in a judgment upheld by the Supreme Court of Canada. The sum covered his losses between June, 1969, and September, 1970, when his case first came to court.

But Dr. Pilote, who said his earnings had been greatly reduced since his dismissal, sued the hospital again in 1974.

In handling down his decision to award the doctor $516,721 in damages, Superior Court Justice Yvon Jasmin noted that the plaintiff had made every effort to carry on with his profession but with minimal success.

During the six years Dr. Pilote served on the hospital's surgical staff his principal source of income came from patients referred to him by general practitioners at the institution, evidence at the trial showed.

Dr. Pilote said he applied to 24 Montreal area hospitals and even attempted to set up a practice in plastic surgery after a course in a Boston hospital. He also tried private practice in general surgery but was not succesful.

Mr. Justice Jasmin, who did not divulge the reasons for Dr. Pilote's dismissal, said the necessary formalities under the hospital act had not been followed when management at Bellechasse decided to terminate the doctor's contract.

He noted that the damages took into account Dr. Pilote's net revenue loss.

Death Canoes Defended

MONTREAL (CP) — The 22-foot-long canoes involved in the multiple drowning tragedy at Lake Temiskaming, Que., could safely carry seven schoolboys, an adult and all their equipment, says the manufacturer of the canoes.

Mike Mallory, general manager of the Chestnut Canoe Co. of Fredericton, N.B., said in a telephone interview Tuesday that he shipped four of the three-foot-high, 175-pound canoes, made of cedar and canvas, to the St. John's School last month.

The canoes were a modified version of the company's standard 22-foot model, and were custom built to provide greater carrying capacity and to minimize the risk of taking in water, he said.

The canoes were unsinkable, but not immune from capsizing, Mallory added.

Don Fraser, who also works for the company, said that although the canoes are called "five-seaters," they are capable of seating eight and of carrying one ton in weight.

He said St. John's School authorities had been buying the same type of canoe for 15 years.

"They should have known what they were doing after all this time," Fraser said. "There must have been some real freak weather conditions."

He called the canoes, which cost $1,400 apiece, "top-quality" and said they were the best in Canada.

"Essentially they are group-paddling canoes, and certainly the right ones for the job they were doing on their outing."

Francois Belanger, director of the Quebec Federation of Canoeing and Camping, agreed that the canoes were capable of holding up to 2,000 pounds on calm water.

Patronage Charges Hurled In Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — The government defended itself against one accusation of patronage Thursday and faced a renewal of two more accusations of improper links with the corporate world.

In the Commons, Conservative Elmer MacKay (Central Nova) linked federal and Quebec Liberals in the awarding of contracts for construction in the capital area.

And New Democrat leader Ed Broadbent touched on that matter and once again brought up the possibility of conflict of interest in the new job in private industry of former finance minister Donald Macdonald.

Outside the Commons Public Works Minister Judd Buchanan denied that there was any patronage involved in construction of a multi-million dollar building in neighboring Hull, Que. He was answering statements made last week.

MacKay raised the question of contracts for the second day. He said Monday patronage is getting out of control.

He said Tuesday he has reason to believe two former Liberal cabinet ministers, Jean Marchand in the federal cabinet and Oswald Parent, who served as minister of inter-governmental affairs in the Bourassa Liberal government of Quebec, collaberated to make sure certain firms were in a favored position to get contracts in the capital region.

He said he has evidence the two drew up short lists of eligible companies before officials of the National Capital Commission (NCC), the agency in charge of development of of federal lands in the Ottawa-Hull region, even had a chance to put major contracts up for bids.

Marchand went to the Senate this year. Before that he held a variety of cabinet posts and at one stage was Prime Minister Trudeau's Quebec lieutenant and once was minister responsible for the NCC. Parent was intergovernment affairs minister in 1972.

Broadbent continued efforts to get the government to admit that Macdonald acted improperly in accepting a directorship with a large aircraft company, nine months after leaving the federal cabinet.

"The minister should have exercised more discretion in terms of time in moving to a corporation which was involved in serious negotiations involving millions of dollars with the federal government," Broadbent said.

The company in question, MacDonell-Douglas Corp., now is bidding for a $2.3 billion contract to supply fighter planes to the defence department.

Broadbent raised the matter as a point of order in the Commons. He said the government must also clear up the uncertainty raised by MacKay's allegations and answers made to the them by Finance Mini ter Jean Chretien. Chretien replied he had been misunderstood.

Buchanan rejected in a newspaper interview charges made last week by Douglas Fullerton, former NCC chairman.

Fullerton had said the developer Robert Campeau has first-class political connections. He had won permission to build a multi-million dollar building in Hull, despite opposition from Fullerton and the NCC.

Buchanan said he had conducted a personal investigation which showed there was no "sweetheart deal" between the government and the millionaire developer.

He said contract to build Les Terraces de la Chaudiere, an office-hotel complex, had nothing to do with Campeau's alleged special relationship with the Liberal Party. He said the developer had been chosen primarily because he happened to own or control most of the building's site.

The government will lease all the office space of Les Terraces for the next 35 years with an option to buy.

MacKay said he has not finished grilling the government on the possibility of political interference in the handing out of major contracts, especially in Quebec.

He said Monday he had secured the minutes of a 1975 meeting between then urban affairs minister Barney Danson, and former NCC Chairman Edgar Gallant, in which the following statement was made: "The minister wants to make sure that the firms chosen for major contracts are cleared politically with the ministers responsible through his office."

Birthday TV Extravaganza Set

OTTAWA (CP) — Teen-age singing star Rene Simard will once again join a cast of well-known Canadian entertainers in a two-hour national television extravaganza broadcast Dominion Day from Parliament Hill.

Other big-name artists to appear in the $365,000 show include blues singer Salome Bey, country and western singers Tommy Hunter and Murray McLaughlan, the Irish Rovers, opera star Maureen Forrester and French-Canadian pop singers Jean-Pierre Ferland and Diane Juster.

Officials at Festival Canada, the federally-finsnced agency overseeing Canada Week festivities, refused Tuesday to discuss plans for the television show.

There had been reports Festival Canada was experiencing difficulty in finding Quebecois entertainers to appear in the show.

Pop singers Robert Charlegois and Diane Dufresne—two of the biggest names in the Quebec hop music industry—refused to participate, partially for political reasons.

The Quebecers who will appear on Parliament Hill July 1 generally inject fewer Quebec nationalistic sentiments into songs and interviews than do Miss Dufresne and Charlebois.

Simard is a native Quebecer who gained widespread fame in that province and abroad before gaining much popularity in English-Canada singing everything from hymns to innocent pop tunes.

Simard sang and danced on the Parliament Hill stage last July 1 as a cloudburst sent thousands among the audience dashing for cover.

Ferland is noted for his romantic, sentimental ballads and Miss Juster for bouncy, rock recordings.

G. Hamilton Southam, head of Festival Canada, has refused to comment on reports that Gordon Lightfoot and Anne Murray—two of English-Canada's most commercially successful singers—refused to appear in the television show.

Interspersed throughout the show will be live coverage of various events across Canada, as was done last year.

Among the events will be a star-studded performance at Montreal's Place des Nations on the Expo 67 site.

Police Chiefs Scoff at Any Abuse Of Mail Opening Law

OTTAWA (CP) — Police spokesmen dismissed as ridiculous Wednesday suggestions that officers would abuse proposed new laws giving them the right to open and read private mail.

"We can see no way in which the police in Canada today would, or could be able to, or would want to open any mail without reasonable and probable grounds and proper authority," Chief Harold Adamson of Toronto told the Commons justice committee.

"Opponents may try to conjure up the spectacle of police officers scrutinizing every piece of mail moving through the system, but the sheer volume makes such a suggestion ridiculous."

Civil rights groups have attacked the legislation as repressive, but Adamson argued it is needed to cope with crimes ranging from terrorism and drug-selling to fraud.

He presented the committee with a list of 10 cases involving crimes involving the use of mail, and said he could produce hundreds if he had had more time to prepare.

Adamson acknowledged that the country has been relatively free of terrorist acts in recent years, but added that terrorist groups in Europe and the Middle East are "now co-operating and co-ordinating their activities."

"There is no guarantee that they will not expand their operations at any time to North America."

"Any delays or failure to adequately deal with letter bombs and terrorist activities could have tragic results."

Adamson, representing the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police, said the association is concerned with provisions of the legislation that would prohibit domestic police from disclosing information obtained in mail to foreign forces.

No-Name Appliance In Sight?

TORONTO (CP) — It is conceivable that no-name marketing could be expanded into more basic food products or non-food categories, says a report by Mathieu, Williams Associates of Toronto.

Generic marketing might even expand into hard-goods areas such as television sets and other products, Richard Mathieu, a partner in the consulting firm, said in an interview.

For now, supermarkets and drug stores are offering no-name items on such products as juices, detergent and bleach. The stores say consumers can save up to 40 per cent on such products.

The report also says there are a number of reasons why the public will continue to support generic products. Concern about energy, nutrition costs and growing populations putting pressure on world resources will result in greater emphasis on generic products, it says.

Identifying users of the generic products is difficult, the report says.

STAINED GLASS OUT IN SENATE

OTTAWA (CP) — The government appears to have dropped plans for fancy stained-glass windows and a few paintings or tapestries in the Senate.

A special Senate committee wrestled with the issue for about 2½ years saying the idea would "raise the perspectives and broaden the horizons" of the senators.

But the government now says it is more interested in putting a ceiling on spending than new decorations on Senate walls.

"We filed the report and that was the end of it," Senator Josie Quart, a committee member, said Tuesday. "We never heard anything more."

"Your guess is as good as mine," Ontario Senator John Connolly, committee chairman, said when asked what the government had done with the Senate's redecorating plans.

A public works department official said there is no indication of when the plans will be taken out of limbo.

Senator Quart said she agreed there are many more pressing issues, but added she is a bit miffed that the government repeatedly pushes Senate recommendations aside.

"What's the use of having all these studies and committee meetings if the information is just going to sit on a shelf," she said. "But we're getting so accustomed to this."

The report of the 1975 committee said the chamber needed a facelift because the Senate "has become, in a sense, a shrine."

"If it is a place of dignity and even of majesty, it will raise the perspectives and broaden the horizons and opportunities of those who make it function," the report said.

Senior Rents Frozen

TORONTO (CP) — There will be no immediate increase in rents on more than 150,000 senior citizen and low-income public housing units across the country, a federal-provincial meeting of housing ministers decided Tuesday.

In a joint announcement following the two-day meeting, the ministers said the controversial issue will be studied further by officials and a decision made at another meeting in November.

But the provincial ministers made it clear that Urban Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet was putting financial pressure on them to raise rents by changing the way in which the federal subsidy to the provinces for low-income housing is calculated.

Most provinces now charge public housing tenants rents ranging from 16.7 to 25 per cent of income. The higher the income, the higher the rent charged.

Ottawa wants a cross-Canada structure charging a flat 25 per cent of income for such accommodation.

Canada Stakes Reserves In Top Fishing Zones

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has increased its 1979 share of fish outside the Atlantic 200-mile limit and established first-choice reserves on stocks within the zone, Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc announced Tuesday.

The moves were made last week in Bonn at what may have been the final meeting of the International Commission for the Northwest Atlantic Fisheries, created in the late 1950s to regulate fishing from Greenland to Rhode Island.

It is expected to be replaced by the end of 1978 by the Canadian-sponsored Northwest Atlantic Fisheries Organization which will administer species outside the zone while Canada maintains control within the limit established in January, 1977.

Because of the reserves and as-yet undecided catch limits for some species, the total East Coast fishery for Canada in 1979 cannot now be determined but it will increase markedly for several species, LeBlanc said in a statement.

The reserve system means a part of the total allowable catch for a species is set aside and will be assigned during the 1979 season. Canadians will get the reserve if they need it. Otherwise it will go to foreigners "in return for economic and commercial benefits offered by those states."

Canadian fishermen will also get significant increases for stocks outside the zone or on its edges. For Flemish Cap, the Canadian cod quota will be raised to 2,900 metric tons from 2,100 tons this year and the redfish allocation will be 5,500 tons compared to 4,400 this year.

Women First for Jobs - ACSW

OTTAWA (CP) — Men should quit jobs to make way for thousands of unemployed women, Yvette Rousseau, president of the Advisory Council on the Status of Women, said Tuesday.

In a report to the 29-member council's annual meeting, Mrs. Rousseau prompted scattered laughter when she said "men should withdraw from the labor force to allow unemployed women to work."

She said her proposition is no more laughable than suggestions that women are to blame for high unemployment and should step back or stay at home and let men have available jobs.

"Women have a right to work and they will not give up this right," she said. Her remarks came a day after Statistics Canada reported increased unemployment among women workers last month.

The unemployment rate among women aged 15 to 24 in the labor force increased to 14.2 per cent from 13.4 per cent in April and for women 25 and older it rose to eight per cent from 7.8 per cent.

At the same time, the jobless rate for men decreased to 15.8 per cent from 16.1 per cent in the 15-to-24 age group and remained unchanged at 5.4 per cent for men 25 and up.

The actual over-all jobless rate was 8.4 per cent or 933,000 unemployed persons.

However, Mrs. Rousseau later added that as long as no broad day-care system is established for working mothers, "it's unrealistic to believe women have the right to work."

She urged women's rights organizations and unions to be on guard against wage discrimination favoring men.

Although the federal human rights commission now has the power to impose equal pay for men and women doing work of equal value, Mrs. Rousseau said discrimination is often hard to prove.

U.S. to Waive Duty on Fish

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. treasury department announced Tuesday it will waive countervailing duties on about $200 million worth of Canadian fish imported annually.

The department said it is issuing the waiver, which expires Jan. 4, 1979, as a result of Canadian promises to reduce or eliminate a variety of subsidy programs for fishermen and fish processors by Oct. 1 this year.

It also said in a statement the department believes that imposing the duties might "seriously jeopardize" the achievement of international agreements to reduce trade barriers. Canada and the United States have been closely co-operating at the General Agreement on Trade and Tariff (GATT) negotiations in Geneva.

The waiver applies to 20 categories of fish imports, most from Canada's eastern coast. Fish affected are cod, sole, haddock and flounder.

Canada had been concerned that the department, in making its decision, might have been adversely affected by the current Canada-U.S. fishing dispute which has resulted in the expulsion of Canadian and U.S. vessels from the other country's waters.

The fish import case bears no relation to the current dispute, since the treasury investigation was the result of petitions filed last year by U.S. fishermen. But there had been some concern that because of the dispute, U.S. officials might have been somewhat less sympathetic than usual to Canadian fishing concerns.

The treasury statement said it has determined that Canadian payments to fish processors and fishermen, vessel construction subsidies and regional economic grants to Newfoundland did constitute export bounties or grants under U.S. trade regulations.

And the regulations say that in such cases, countervailing duties of up to the value of the subsidies may be imposed. Treasury estimated that in the first case, the countervailing duty might have been five per cent of the freight-on-board price, or $10 million.

However, it said it would waive the duty because of Canadian moves which by the end of March had reduced subsidies by 68 per cent and promises to cut the subsidies 92 per cent by Oct. 1.

The treasury waiver applies immediately to about $70 million of the fish which already is subject to some duty. Duty for those fish will not be changed.

Opposition Tampering, PM Says

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs were accused by a shouting Prime Minister Trudeau Tuesday of attempting to interfere with justice when they demanded he personally intervene in the case of Alexander Peter Treu, convicted in a secret trial of Official Secrets Act violations.

In a rare display of emotion, Trudeau took a tough line against Conservative Leader Joe Clark, who demanded a new trial in the name of civil rights, and former prime minister John Diefenbaker, who termed Treu's trial "a disgraceful travesty of justice."

"Every notion of the Bill of Rights with which I am acquainted says that justice must follow its course and there should be no interference from politicians, such as we see on the other side of the House, into the judicial process," Trudeau said.

Gerald Baldwin (PC—Peace River) later turned Trudeau's accusations upside down saying what the Opposition is after "is interfering with injustice." Baldwin, the MP who has spearheaded a weeks-long campaign against the Treu trial and the secrets act, has been appointed Treu's co-counsel and plans to meet with him today.

Treu, a 56-year-old defence communications system designer for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), was sentenced last month to two years in prison. He was convicted of twice violating the secrets act for unauthorized handling of classified documents.

Trudeau shouted during an exchange with Diefenbaker, MP for Prince Albert and lawyer since 1919, who called Treu's case a scandalous, grave injustice and compared it with the famous case of Alfred Dreyfus.

Dreyfus was a Jewish army officer whose unjust banishment to Devils Island for betraying military secrets prompted a historical 12-year political controversy in France. His conviction for treason was eventually annulled. The case was made famous by the headline J'Accuse prompted by author Emile Zola's protest on civil rights grounds.

Trudeau at first calmly rejected Opposition demands, saying that he had no special access to facts of Treu's case, that Treu's defence lawyer had agreed to the secret trial and that Treu is following the usual paths of justice by appealing to higher courts.

Then he shouted that Diefenbaker "is suggesting that the government of the day intervene in this process, say we do not trust courts of appeal and tell them what to do."

"That is absolute nonsense," he shouted. Seconds later he was on his feet again shouting that Diefenbaker was "trotting out that old cliche" that Parliament is the supreme court of the land when in reality Parliament only makes laws while the courts administer them.

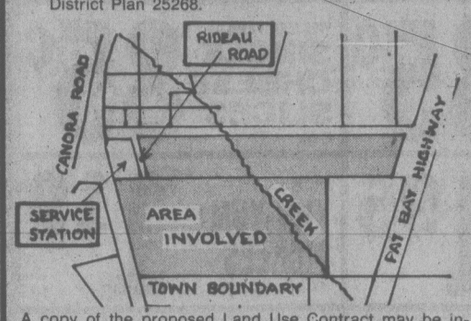

TOWN OF SIDNEY

Town Clerk.

Laskin Improved

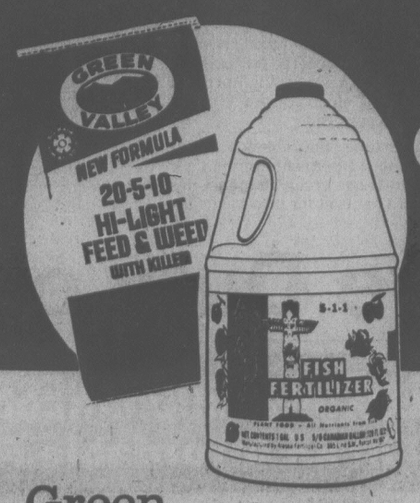

TORONTO (CP) — Chief Justice Bora Laskin of the Supreme Court of Canada was recovering steadily in the coronary care unit of Toronto Western Hospital on Tuesday, a hospital spokesman said.

Aveline Deguia, a registered nurse in the coronary care unit, where Laskin was moved from a private ward on Monday because he was running a fever, said Laskin's temperature is back to normal and his condition is improving.

The 65-year-old judge underwent open heart surgery at the hospital on June 1 after being admitted to the coronary care unit May 19, three days before the appeal by Quebec's Keable commission into RCMP wrong-doings began in Ottawa.

Espionage Flourishes During Detente - RCMP

TORONTO (CP) — Periods of detente tend to be accompanied by increased espionage activities, an RCMP official testified Tuesday at a preliminary hearing into charges against The Sun.

Michael J. Spooner, chief superintendent in charge of RCMP security services in Ontario, was testifying in provincial court at the hearing into charges laid under the Official Secrets Act against Toronto Sun Publishing Ltd., the newspaper's editor-in-chief, Peter Worthington, and its publisher, Douglas Creighton.

The hearing into the charges of communicating top-secret information and of receving and possession of that information later was adjourned to Aug. 2.

Portions of testimony were held in camera again Tuesday for national security reasons.

Although Spooner said periods of detente tend to be accompanied by increased espionage activities, he later testified under cross-examination by defence counsel that he would not use the word increasing but he "would say continuing and perhaps changing."

He agreed with defence counsel Edwin Goodman that it would be "helpful, indeed important, if Canadians were aware of the intensity and nature of Russian intelligence services activities in a general sense."

Spooner said Soviet intelligence services are under the control of the Soviet government, directly co-ordinated by the central committee of the Communist party and that the KGB is headed by a member of that committee.

He said it was his opinion that the Canadian intelligence community and the Intelligence Advisory Committee, composed of members of various government departments involved in the intelligence community, needed to be brought up to date on Soviet intelligence services during this period of detente.

Describing the hierarchy of Canadian security, Spooner said the top of the ladder is occupied by a cabinet committee on security and intelligence which is chaired by the prime minister.

The committee's function is to provide the intelligence community with answers to any questions as well as giving general direction, he said.

The inter-departmental committee on security and intelligence follows, and it co-ordinates the activities of the security advisory committee and the intelligence advisory committee, he said. Those two committees are next on the hierarchy ladder.

Policy matters travel up through the hierarchy and then approval from the cabinet committee is sought.

Spooner testified earlier in the day that publication by the newspaper of an incident in 1974 where two KGB officers attached to the Soviet embassy in Ottawa, who offered a Canadian $100 for unclassified information, indicated to the Soviet intelligence services that the RCMP was aware of the case.

He said the Soviet intelligence services at times offer money or other inducements to Canadians for unclassified information as a means of compromising them to the point where they later get classified information.

Spooner agreed with Crown prosecutor John Scollin that the Soviets initially were buying people and not material.

The Canadian was offered $100 for every manual or catalogue on Hewlett-Packard Corp., and for material dealing with the National Research Council and Atomic Energy of Canada.

Portions of testimony dealing with that particular case were held in camera.

Referring to a 1969 royal commission report on security, Spooner said documents are classified as top secret when disclosure would cause grave danger to the country. They are classified secret when disclosure would endanger national security.

He said that if the delicacy of a source's position is of serious concern then information which might normally be considered secret is revised to top secret.

He added that the accused, to his knowledge, were not authorized to receive the information.

Spooner said originators of material are authorized to classify it but that it may be examined by himself or other officers and its classification may be revised.

He agreed with Goodman that there are people in Canadian embassies all over the world who are applying classification of documents sent back to Canada, and that people in a number of departments here are applying classifications.

"How many seals marked top secret do you think are owned by the Canadian government—10,000?" Goodman asked.

Spooner said he did not know, and Goodman continued: "Hundreds, perhaps thousands of seals."

"I think you're exaggerating," Spooner replied, adding that "I think there is a considerable number of those stamps."

Spooner agreed with Goodman that for every specific matter in the Canadian Eyes Only document there is a file and record at RCMP headquarters.

However, he said he did not know if there was a file and record of how CTV network and MP Tom Cossitt obtained the document.

Under cross-examination by David Stockwood, who represents the newspaper along with Goodman, Spooner said a Canadian armed forces non-commissioned officer recruited by Russian intelligence was allowed to resign from the armed forces and that he suffered no other consequences as a result of spying.

"We anticipated the Soviets would attempt to use him as they had in the past," he said.

"This was four years before Peter Worthington's column," Stockwood said.

Genstar Plans Still Alive

Genstar Development Ltd. hasn't given up on its development plans for 22 acres of waterfront at the head of Tod Inlet.

A number of options are being considered following Central Saanich council's rejection in April of a proposal for a multi-million dollar housing development on the site, company vice-president Neville Bothwell said in an interview.

Bothwell said he will ask council for specific reasons for rejecting the proposal. A letter requesting the information should reach council before its next meeting June 19.

Until he knows, he said, no alternative plan will be submitted.

"We could come forward with a thousand different plans," he said. "But we'd like to know in what context any plan should go forward."

The original proposal called for 181 residential units and a marina complex.

At a public meeting on March 28, more than a dozen people spoke against the development, arguing it would interfere with the already precarious ecology in the inlet and detract from adjacent Butchart Gardens.

Several members of council felt the proposal didn't conform to the over-all development plan for the municipality and considered Genstar was acting prematurely.

Bothwell said that since April his company has been reviewing development options compatible with existing zoning for the area.

The zoning allows motels, hotels, recreational facilities, and tourist-oriented commercial enterprises.

FRENCH VISIT

A 19-member trade mission from France will attend a dinner at Government House Thursday night with Premier Bennett and Lieutenant-Governor Henry Bell-Irving.

Leader of the French delegation is Patrick Node-Langlois, a senior vice-president of Lafarge, who is in charge of all Lefarge operations in North America.

The mission includes representatives from banks, geological research, pipeline experts and an airplane manufacturer.

Sidney Seeks Return Of Own Police Court

Sidney municipality will ask the attorney-general's ministry to reconstitute a government-funded, full-time provincial court as early as possible.

Municipal clerk Geoff Logan has conducted a cost-benefit study of a government proposal that a court be returned with the town sharing the cost of an administrator-justice of the peace.

The Sidney court was closed three years ago when the provincial court system was unified.

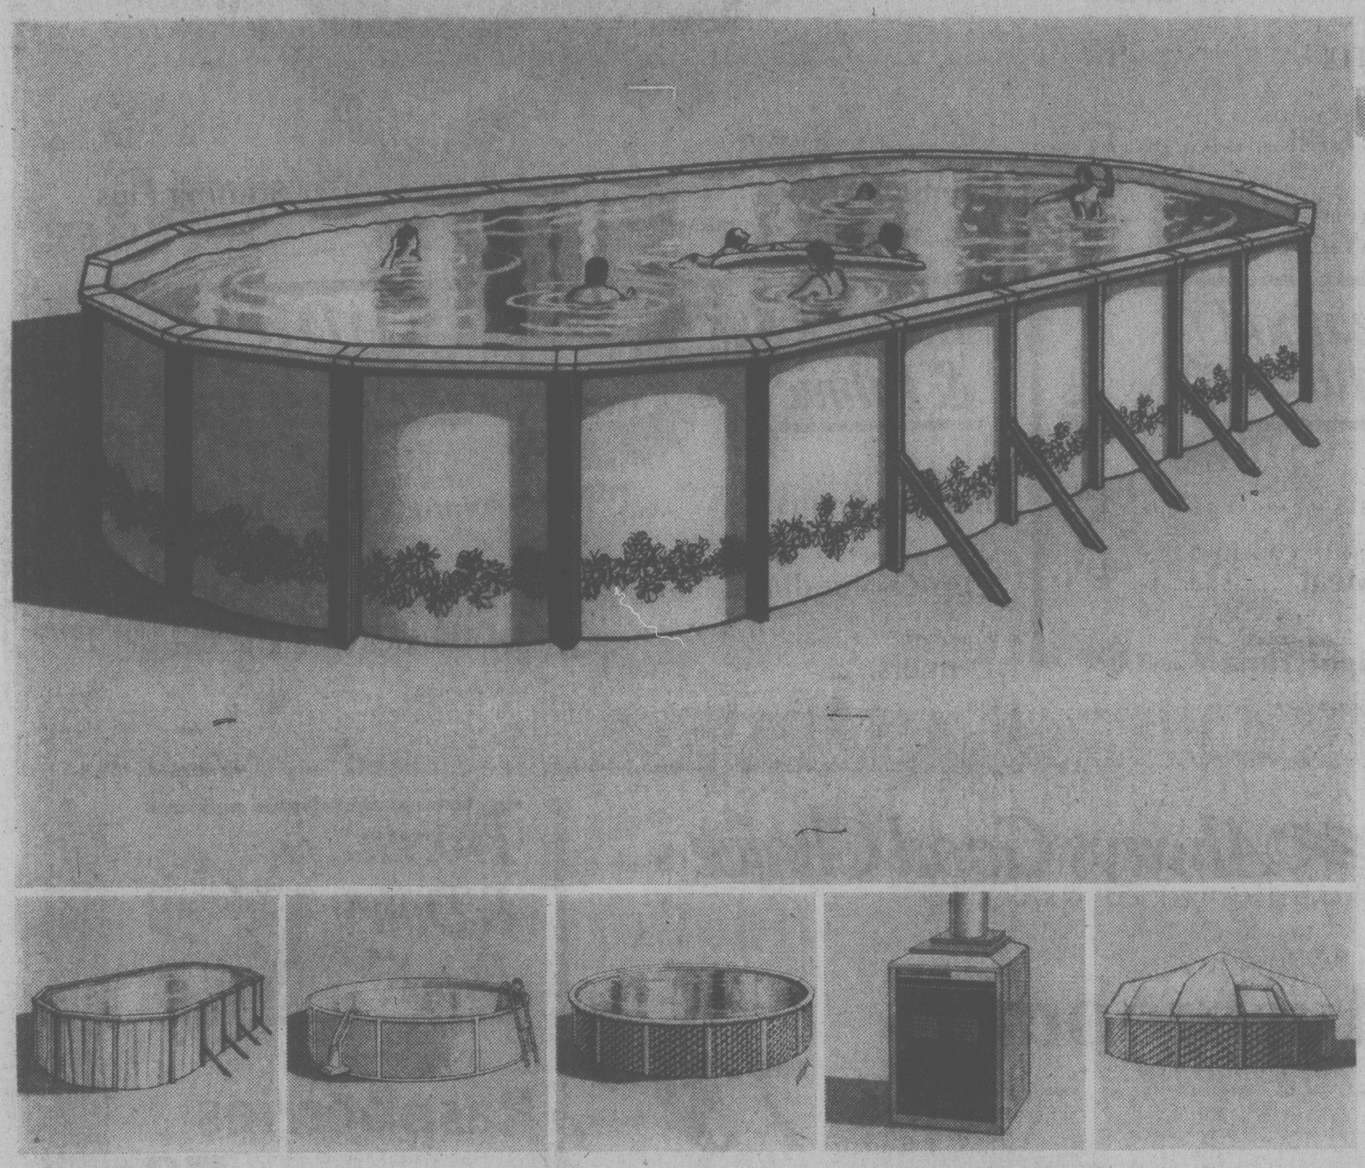

Logan said Monday there are problems in the government's idea, including the $6,000-a-year cost to the town.

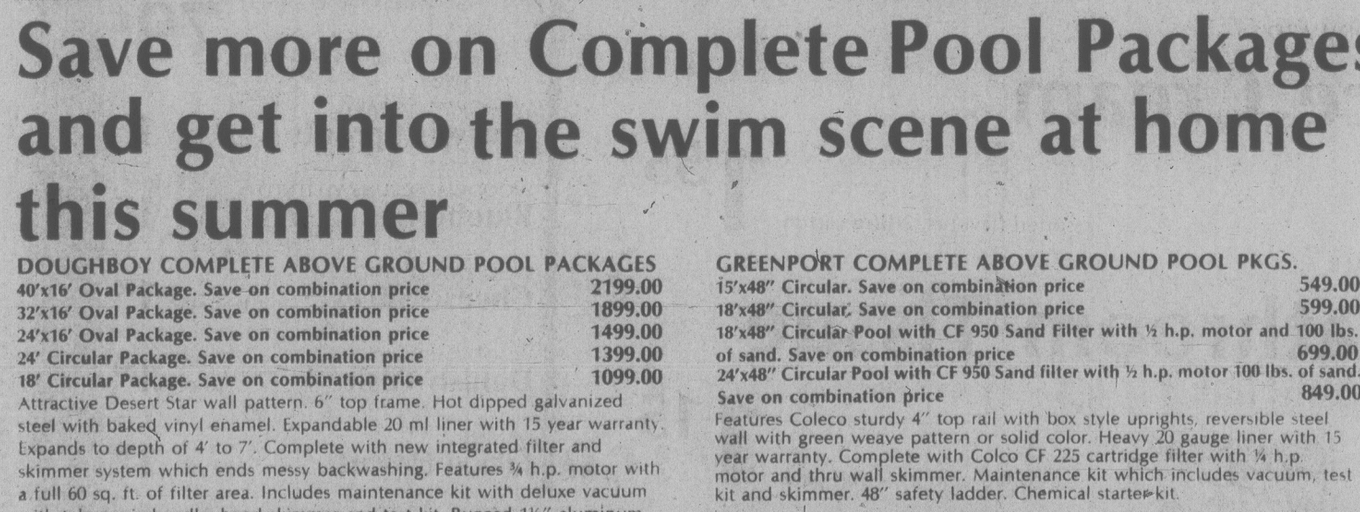

He said staff in the attorney-general's ministry agree certain administrative problems would be faced and the matter of cost-sharing should possibly be reconsidered.

In other business, council unanimously endorsed a resolution asking for provincial legislation to protect Saanich Inlet from further industrial development and pollution.

Submitted by the Central Saanich Ratepayers' Association, the resolution has also been endorsed by Central and North Saanich.

Salmon and Vegetable Casserole is a stretcher for larger families

This Casserole Stretches

The consensus of opinion among a group of doctors and nutritionists at a recent nutrition symposium was that the body does not require as much, nor indeed utilize efficiently, protein that we ingest habitually.

Picture the half plateful of roast beef that restaurants often serve that could weigh at least ½ pound. We do not need that much meat at one meal.

So the less than one pound of salmon in this casserole is stretched with a variety of vegetables to serve eight. Furthermore if you serve it on tea biscuits or rice it can be made to serve 10 and would be an ideal lunch or supper dish.

Mary Moore

SALMON VEGETABLE CASSEROLE

(Serves 8 to 10)

2 7¾-oz. cans salmon
2 tbsp. butter or margarine
½ cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped green pepper
½ cup chopped onion
1 cup sliced, fresh mushrooms
1 12-oz. can kernel corn, drained
4 slices buttered bread cut into ½" cubes

Sauce

2 tbsp. butter or margarine
5 tbsp. flour
½ tsp. salt
1/16 tsp. pepper
2½ cups milk

In a small bowl flake salmon including juices and well-mashed bones.

Melt the 2 tablespoons butter or margarine in large pan, add the celery, green pepper, onion and mushrooms and saute gently until onions are limp but vegetables are not brown. Stir in salmon and corn. Turn heat very, very low. Keep hot.

Meanwhile make the sauce: In a pot melt butter or margarine. Remove from heat and stir in flour, salt and pepper. Add milk to blend. Return to heat and cook, stirring constantly with wire whip until thick and smooth. Add this sauce to the salmon mixture and combine thoroughly. Pour all into a 2-quart casserole.

Cut the buttered bread into ½" cubes. Sprinkle on top of casserole. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 45 minutes.

Serve over Tea Biscuits Supreme or rice or in patty shells.

Health Food Meaningless

LONDON (Reuter) — The term health food is meaningless, often misleading and should be banned, says Britain's leading independent consumer watchdog group.

The Consumers Association said health food promoters spoil their message by recommending diets that are hard to follow, condemning food bought in supermarkets and rejecting use of modern technology in farming and food processing.

Its magazine said many of the products from health food shops that it tested did not match the teachings of health food disciples.

The most popular soft margarine found in these shops had the same ingredients as most other brands of soft margarine, including emulsifiers, flavoring and coloring, the magazine reported.

Creamed Mushrooms

2 tbsp. butter
2 tbsp. chopped onion
2 tbsp. chopped parsley
1 lb. mushrooms, sliced
1 tbsp. all-purpose flour
¾ tsp. salt (or to taste)
½ cup dry white wine (or chicken broth)
dash pepper
6 hard-cooked eggs, shelled and sliced hot buttered toast points (or split, toasted, buttered English muffins) paprika, parsley sprigs (garnish)
tomato slices (garnish)

In large skillet, over medium heat, heat butter. Cook onions and parsley until onion is just tender. Add mushrooms; cook over low heat, covered, for 6 to 8 minutes or until mushrooms are just tender, stirring frequently. Stir in flour, salt, and pepper until mixture is smooth. Stir in wine or chicken broth. Simmer, covered, for 5 minutes. Add sliced eggs; continue cooking over low heat, stirring frequently, covered, until eggs are heated through. Serve over hot buttered toast points. Garnish with dash of paprika, parsley sprigs, and tomato slices. Makes 4 servings.

EGGS BENEDICT WITH EDAM

(Serves 6 Moderate or 3 Hungry

3 or 6 English muffins, split (see variations below)
6 or 12 new laid eggs
½ lb. wafer-thin cooked (or smoked ham.

Sauce:

¼ cup margarine
3 Tbsp. PLUS 1 tsp. flour
½ tsp. salt
2 cups hot milk
1 cup shredded (¼" shredder) Edam cheese, PACKED.

Make the Sauce first: In top of double boiler over direct heat blend margarine, flour and salt then stir in hot milk until thick. Remove from heat and stir in shredded cheese until melted. Place over simmering water in bottom of double boiler and keep hot. Lightly toast the split muffins. Keep them warm. Poach the eggs. Poach the eggs until the outside surface of the yolks barely begin to set which makes handling easier — about a 4½-minute egg.

You need a fast working helper at this point. Place 1 (or 2) toasted muffins on each preheated plate. Cover with double slice of ham. Top that with a poached egg. Cover generously with sauce from double boiler. Garnish with shake of paprika and serve at once.

Bio-dex

By Ken J. Michaels

©BIODEX PRODUCTIONS 1978 Dist. by Toronto Sun Syndicate

HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:

Locate your month of birth. The dots on each graph highlight your biorhythm readouts. Check the scales on the left or right for your Intellectual, Emotional and Physical factors, from 1 to 5. Add these three numbers to obtain your Bio-dex. The Bio-dex is computed on average population age based on official Government statistics.

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle- You distrust someone's generosity. Say "Thank you" and leave it at that.

6-10 Neutral Cycle- Time for a trip to your old neighborhood. You miss faithful friends and their understanding.

11-15 Positive Cycle- You've got the ball — run with it. The end of a long haul is in sight.

There's nothing like a friendly argument to keep you on your toes. It's even more stimulating if you're evenly matched and equally determined. Try a high Bio-dex day for your next "battle of words". State your case clearly, avoid shouting and arm-waving, and be willing to compromise on smaller points. Above all, listen to your opponent — you just could be wrong.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: You wrote a whole column on the "dirty tricks" that humans perpetrate on dogs (such as letting them run loose and breed accidentally).

Well, I am tired of dogs leaving their dirty tricks on my lawn! I'm tired of shoveling dirty tricks off my yard so I won't have a warn each visitor to step carefully.

I think you left out an important law concerning care of dogs. Any parent who gives a child a dog should specify that the child is obligated to shovel up the dirty tricks his dog leaves on neighbors lawns.

I have learned to cope with dogs tipping over my garbage cans. I rinse off meat papers and even sprinkle chili powder over anything that might interest dogs, and I always make sure the lid on my garbage can is tightly secured. Dogs have learned a new respect for my garbage cans, but not for my lawn.

Come on, Abby, be a friend to countless thousands of people who are abused by dumb animals, and print this letter.—DOGGONE MAD.

DEAR DOGGONE: The dirty tricks that dogs perpetrate on humans would be completely eliminated if every dog owner accepted the responsibility for his dog's actions — as he well should!.

DEAR ABBY: I've been seeing a psychologist for about five months. He's a male and so am I. On my first visit to his office, he had me strip naked, stand before a mirror and talk about my body. I don't know if he asks his female patients to do this, but all of his male patients that I've spoken to told me that he did the same thing with them. (He asks his patients not to mention this procedure to others.)

We wonder if perhaps he is a voyeur. He's about 45, and has a nice wife and family.

If you lie on his couch and feel embarrassed or nervous, he sits on the floor beside you and holds your hand to relax you. I have never heard of a psychologist doing this, have you?

If you return for further sessions and lie on his couch, he asks you to remove your shirt. He has told me that he has seen some very good-looking young men in his practice.

I once heard a well-known psychiatrist say on a talk show, "Never take your clothes off for a shrink."

I'd like your opinion.—JIM

DEAR JIM: Most psychologists are competent, caring and strictly ethical in their manner of treatment, but if you question the professional ethics of your psychologist, write to the provincial department of health.

DEAR ABBY: A reader signed ALWAYS THE GUEST asked how to gracefully get the bill in a restaurant. In this case, it was a woman who occasionally entertained gentlemen who were not as financially able to handle the bill as she was.

You suggested that she go to places where she had credit and arrange with the management to add the gratuities to the bill and charge everything to her account.

I leave a major credit card with the maitre d' with instructions to charge the meal, taxes and appropriate tip to my account. This always works and is a surefire way of avoiding embarrassing squabbles over who is to settle the bill.

Whereas most people have major credit cards, many do not have restaurant accounts.—JOHN F.

DEAR JOHN: Thanks for the tip!

Teeth: A Rotten Shame

By RUTH FREMES and ZAK SABRY

eating right

Dear Ruth and Zak:

I was in the bank the other day and noticed the Italian laborers, the West Indian welders, the East Indian office workers and an African. All had sturdy bodies and strong teeth.

Sitting against the wall was a family of Anglo-Saxons. They looked unnaturally pale. The kids were eating candy and their faces were dirty. Their teeth were broken, decayed, stained brown from cigarette smoking or missing entirely.

In the 1930s, Weston A. Price took a trip around the world to look at the teeth of many races and at their eating habits. It would appear that tooth dacay is caused both by faulty eating habits and by heredity.

I was wondering if you would care to discuss this subject and if another survey, of some depth, has been undertaken more recently. — L.A.S.

Dear L.A.S.:

Not only do you go to a cosmopolitan bank where you meet all races and nationalities on one visit, but you appear to have an uncanny ability to diagnose health problems from a distance. However, you cannot draw conclusions about the health of peoples and nations on the basis of passing observations.

You raise an important issue. Recently, the Nutrition Canada dental report was released by Health and Welfare Canada. The report is based on the findings of Nutrition Canada, an extensive survey of the nutritional health of Canadians in all 10 provinces and both territories.

In dealing with the dental health of a population, there are two main concerns: caries and periodontal disease. Dental caries is the tooth decay that results in having cavities. The findings of Nutrition Canada on the question of cavities may be summarized by quoting from the report:

"Children as they grow older experience more dental decay. Of Canadian adults, 19 and over, who still had one or more of their natural teeth 96 per cent had dental caries."

Dental caries used to be regarded as an older person's disease centuries ago. the Nutrition Canada report refers to the progressive spread of the disease with age, that even "where a good proportion of the younger children were caries-free, resistance to the disease had broken down by the end of adolescence, and only 1.5 per cent of the 16 to 18 age group was caries-free."

In a presentation at a national seminar on nutrition held in Ottawa some years ago, Dr. Maret Truuvert, professor of preventive dentistry at the University of Toronto, explained how cavities occur:

Bacteria hide in the plaque that coat the teeth. The plaque itself is neutral. But, as soon as a form of sugar enters the mouth, the bacteria start metabolizing it and producing acids. These acids attack the tooth surface.

If these attacks are not frequent, the plaque becomes neutral again and the tooth gets a chance to relace the minerals that the acids had dissolved and repair the damage. If, however, the introduction of even small servings of sugary foods or drinks is frequent, the acidity is kept constantly high, the decay of the tooth becomes progressive, recovery cannot take place, and the result is cavities.

We did not need Nutrition Canada to tell us that sugary foods cause cavities, but we needed the survey to find out how serious the problem is. The verdict is that it is very serious and that it affects most of us.

Periodontal disease affects the tissues which support the teeth. Dr. Truuvert explained that oral bacteria surround each tooth "like a sweater's turtle neck". Unless we brush and floss every day to remove bacteria, they produce enzymes which cause these tissues to loosen from the tooth surface and eventualy a tooth is lost. "The whole process could be compared to arthritis."

It is not clear whether periodontal disease is related to nutrition. But, brushing and flossing regularly and correctly are important factors in preventing it.

Nutrition Canada found that "on the national level, it would appear that, from age 10 onwards in both males and females, over 70 per cent of the population exhibited soft debris on at least one tooth."

The study also found that "in the respondents 19 years of age and over, 24 per cent (that is one out of four) were endentulous (had lost teeth) in both dental arches, 16 per cent (one out of six) had no upper teeth and one per cent (one in a hundred) no lower teeth — a total of about 40 per cent endentulous in both arches."

Nutrition Canada analysed the findings on dental health in each community in relation to the fluorides in the water, whether naturally occurring or added, as in water fluoridation in some municipalities. As has been shown in so many other studies before, the results indicated that fluoride had a protective effect, particularly when children aged five to 11 years were exposed to it.

In the words of the report, "The consistency of the beneficial effect of fluoride was quite striking; it showed up whether data was grouped as rural, urban and metropolitan, or by income area."

The solution of our dental problems is within our reach: Cut down on sugary food, brush and floss regularly and correctly and campaign to have the water supply in your municipality fluoridated, if it isn't already.

Dear Ruth and Zak:

I was amazed to learn the other day of an acquaintance, with a year-old daughter, who for the past six months has not given the child any milk or other dairy products, feeding her water and juice only for liquids.

Apparently, when the mother took the child to the doctor at six months, the doctor said to take the baby off formula. Incredibly, since the doctor did not say to substitute milk, the mother ceased to give the formula and gave water and juice, until a friend of mine visited this mother a short time ago.

This friend has since furnished the mother with a mound of infant feeding information and the child's diet is considerably improved.

The question in my mind is whether any damage may have been done to the child's growth and whether she should be taking additional calcium. — J.K.W.

Dear J.K.W.:

Thank you for writing us. This story should be an eye-opener to mothers and doctors alike. Mothers should seek detailed information from their physicians about feeding their babies. If a doctor doesn't know or doesn't have the time to provide this service, it is imperative that the mother be referred for dietetic counselling. Infant feeding information is also available from local health units and mothers should not hesitate to check and double-check their information with the local public health nutritionist.

It is hard to estimate the damage, or even to suggest it, from depriving an infant between six and 12 months of age of milk. A great deal will depend on what else the child ate. Surely, she must have had some milk with her cereal and in puddings. Hopefully, she had a healthy appetite for a variety of vegetables, from which she could have picked a fair amount of calcium.

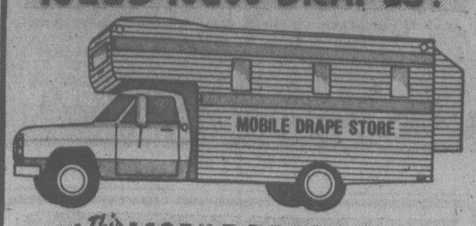

It would be advisable to consult the pediatrician in order to assess the child's diet, in retrospect. It will be up to the pediatrician to decide what supplement, if any, would be needed.

The Smell's the Same But Meat Cost Sliced

hilda beastall

Homemakers who find the high price of meat limits their spending on the more essential basic foods such as fruits, vegetables and good bread, can prepare meat substitutes if they give the idea time and thought.

Food analysts have worked out combinations of grains (wheat, oats, millet, brown rice) with legumes (dried peas, beans, lentils) and other basics which together equal the usable protein amounts in a given weight of beef steak — which is taken as a standard.

Making up these combinations is not nearly so difficult as it may seem; it becomes an exciting adventure to taste the results, and to discover how satisfying are these simple meals.

Today's recipes are ones put together to suit moderate tastes, for the flavors depend on the amounts of herbs and flavoring vegetables you add to the basic ingredients. You will work out that part for your own family's tastes.

Meanwhile, try a meatless meal twice each week to begin cutting down on costly meat.

These recipes will surprise you with their meaty texture, flavor and aroma. In other words, the protein smell and taste is similar whether it comes from animal meat or from food combinations making up a comparable protein.

In the first recipe, soy beans give highest nutrition, but can be replaced by other dried beans or dried peas, or green split peas.

SOY-NUT-RICE SUPPER

¼ cup dry soy beans
¼ cup raw brown rice
¼ cup raw wheat flakes
2 Tbsp peanut butter unsalted
½ tsp salt
1 Tbsp finely chopped chives
tomato juice

Soak soy beans overnight. Cook in same water, boiling gently for 45 minutes. Put through grinder, or mash with potato masher.

Meanwhile, cook together in enough water to cover, the brown rice and wheat flakes. Use vegetable stock water if available.

When rice is soft, add ground beans, salt and chives; heat all together with peanut butter, adding a little tomato juice.

Use a mashed canned tomato if locals are not available, or liquid from canned tomatoes if these are one of the accompanying vegetables.

Taste for further seasoning; you will be pleasantly surprised at the "meaty" effect from peanuts with the soys and wheat flakes.

Serve with your own choice of green cooked or raw vegetables or use shredded lettuce, green onions, with quartered ripe tomatoes either canned or fresh, sprinkled with grated Cheddar. Have this on same plate as the hot mixture, you will find they go well together. Serves two generously. Double quantities will serve four with extra salad vegetables.

The next recipe was made up from ideas found in a collection of old eastern United States recipes from as early as 1650. Apparently meat was either scarce or high-priced then as many excellent substitutes were recommended which seem to fit in well with today's nutritional thinking.

SKILLET BROWN CRISP

2 Tbsp soft margarine
1 small onion OR
1 Tbsp chopped parsley
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup coarse whole wheat breadcrumbs
¼ cup wheat germ
¼ cup wheat bran
¼ cup chopped raw peanuts unsalted
¼ tsp salt
½ cup powdered skim milk
about ¼ cup water

In skillet, heat soft margarine. Add onion, celery and parsley. Cook gently until celery is slightly tender. Remove from heat.

In fairly large bowl, beat eggs; add crumbs, milk powder, wheat germ, bran and peanuts, combining with about ¼ cup water to make damp. Mix lightly; don't pack solid. Let stand 10 minutes.

Replace skillet on heat; add a little more margarine. Form mixture into four thick patties and cook gently until underside is browning. Lift and turn each pattie to brown second side slightly. Add a little more fat if needed, but use no more than is necessary.

Serve portions with green lettuce and ripe tomato either canned, or the first of local fresh ones. Serves four. The patties are very satisfying.

Finally, a meal fit for special occasions in summer when unexpected visitors drop in. Make a habit of having cooked brown rice and cooked beans of some kind on hand in glass jars, refrigerated. That is, when you use one lot, prepare another for an emergency meal.

A MEAL IN A PIE

¾ cup raw brown rice
½ cup dry red kidney beans soaked overnight
1 Tbsp soft margarine
1 cup sliced sweet onion OR young green onions
3 small eggs
¾ cup skim milk from powder
1 tsp salt
pinch of crushed dried rosemary pinch of dried thyme (or use fresh) wholewheat pastry for one 10-inch pie shell

Cook rice and beans together in soaking water, until both tender. Add extra water or vegetable stock if needed to prevent scorching or sticking but don't make mushy. Crush with potato masher.

Meanwhile in small skillet, cook onions in margarine until soft.

Beat eggs in bowl; beat in milk, salt and herbs.

Have wholewheat pastry made and frozen to bring out for rolling into shape for lining 10-inch pie plate. Press pastry in and form a raised edge around shell.

Then stir together the onions, rice and beans, gradually adding the beaten egg mixture. Keep the mixture smooth as possible.

Spoon mixture into the uncooked pie crust.

Bake in warm oven 163 deg. C. for about 30 minutes or until the creamy mixture is set. It is almost a custard consistency so must have a slow oven heat to set nicely. The top should be ever so lightly browned and the crust also delicately browned.

At about the 30 minute mark, sprinkle a little grated Cheddar cheese over the surface if you like, then return to oven to finish cooking.

This pie serves six generously, and is most satisfying. I put in the tiny amount of rosemary and thyme for flavoring and it is responsible in part for the "pork sausage roll" effect when baked.

This would be a wonderful dish to take out hot for a picnic.

Most of the preparation can be done two days before, the rice and beans cooked together and even the pastry can be rolled out and placed into the pie plate to keep in refrigerator with a piece of waxed paper over top.

Separate summer vegetables can be served whole — just washed and ready to be eaten in the hand.

What a meal!

By L. L. COLEMAN, M.D.

My father and three of his brothers died at an early age, all of heart attacks and all less than 50 years old. The doctors agreed that there is a hereditary factor of cholesterol. I'm 23 years old and in good health so far. I haven't confessed my concern to my mother, but I'm definitely worried. How would you suggest I go about trying to prevent an early heart attack? — Mr. T.H.

Dear Mr. T.H.:

The premature deaths of your father and uncles may be related to a condition known as "hyper-lipidemia." This would mean that there is an increased amount of fats in the blood stream. Both cholesterol and triglycerides are recognized as being risk factors in the development of coronary heart disease.

Two other factors are considered important. Unrecognized and untreated hypertension (high blood pressure) and cigarette smoking add to the risks of premature heart disease. Familial problems such as yours have been the target of study by many doctors all over the world. Much information has been accumulating about the value of reducing lipids (fats) in the blood, in an effort to prevent early heart attacks.

There now are some excellent hospital centres which have developed specific programs for hereditary lipidemia. In your very state, in Atlanta, such a program exists. You would be wise to enrol in it. Long-term testing and treatment, special dietary regimens and the elimination of tobacco are all part of this program.

I suspect that I have a food allergy. I don't want to go through the whole routine of being skin-tested. Is there any way that I can try a simpler plan that might show me what I'm allergic to? — Miss L.H.

DEAR Miss H:

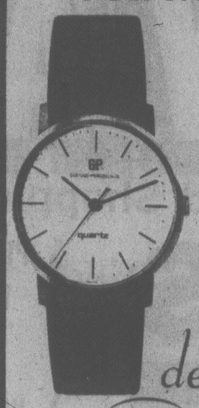

Elimination diets can sometimes uncover the offending allergen or substance that is responsible for allergic symptoms. Some of the most common food allergens are fish, nuts, shell fish, citrus fruit, wheat, chocolate and milk. To compound the problem, allergic people may be sensitive to a combination of foods. This, of course, adds to the problem of tracking down the offender. Haphazard food elimination is time-consuming and not always successful unless done under the direct supervision of a doctor.

KIDNEY, BEEF MEDLEY

¾ lb. kidney, cut in ¾" cubes
¾ lb. stew beef
2 tbsp. butter or margarine
1 onion diced
1 beef bouillon cube dissolved in ½ cup boiling water
½ tsp. salt
pepper
½ cup celery diced in large pieces
½ cup sliced carrots or mixed vegetables
½ cup mushrooms

Soak kidney in salted water, remove fat, membranes etc. and cut in cubes. Brown kidney, beef cubes and onion in melted fat. Add water and bouillon cube. Add seasonings. Simmer covered for 1 hour. Add vegetables and cook ½ hour more. Thicken gravy slightly. Serve surrounded by a ring of white rice.

Smog Final Blow for Fresco?

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Leonardo da Vinci's most famous fresco, the Last Supper, is in jeopardy.

After surviving nearly five centuries and the bombing raids of the Second World War, the smog and humidity of modern Milan — and possibly a mistake by the master himself — the fresco is fading and cracking.

Experts say a fungus caused by the smog is one of the elements threatening to wipe away forever the masterpiece done some 480 years ago in the supper room of Santa Maria alle Grazie Church in the heart of this busy industrial and commercial centre in northern Italy.

A crack is visible at the far right corner and there is a slight hump in the middle of the wall where Leonardo painted the fresco, which is a painting by tradition done on plaster while it is wet.

However, they say the artist, too, is partly to blame.

"He used egg tempera instead of fresco paint," said Carlo Bertelli, fine arts superintendent of the Lombardy region.

"Strangely, Leonardo used tempera, which is good for canvas painting," said Bertelli, who is campaigning to save the fresco. "Results were excellent in the short term but disputable in the longer as tempera deteriorates in humid conditions. This is why Leonardo's fresco has been always subject to studies and restoration."

Today, the colors and outlines appear to be vanishing — especially the apostles sitting at the left of Christ in the painting.

Filippo Vasari, a Florentine architect, writer and painter, was the first to discover the problems created by tempera a few decades after Leonardo painted the Last Supper, between 1495 and 1497.

"Restoration and repainting done in the following centuries have preserved the fresco but are causing additional problems because of the many and different pigments used.

Experts who recently discovered the Last Supper's disease say city smog caused the growth of a fungus, which formed a damaging mixture with the pigments.

"The mold has been affecting the fresco for years and is gradually eating it up. Some parts already have been lost. Others still can be restored and saved," Bertelli said in an interview.

Installation of de-humidifying and air filtering equipment is considered the first step necessary to halt deterioration of the fresco. Actual restoration work could then begin in about a year.

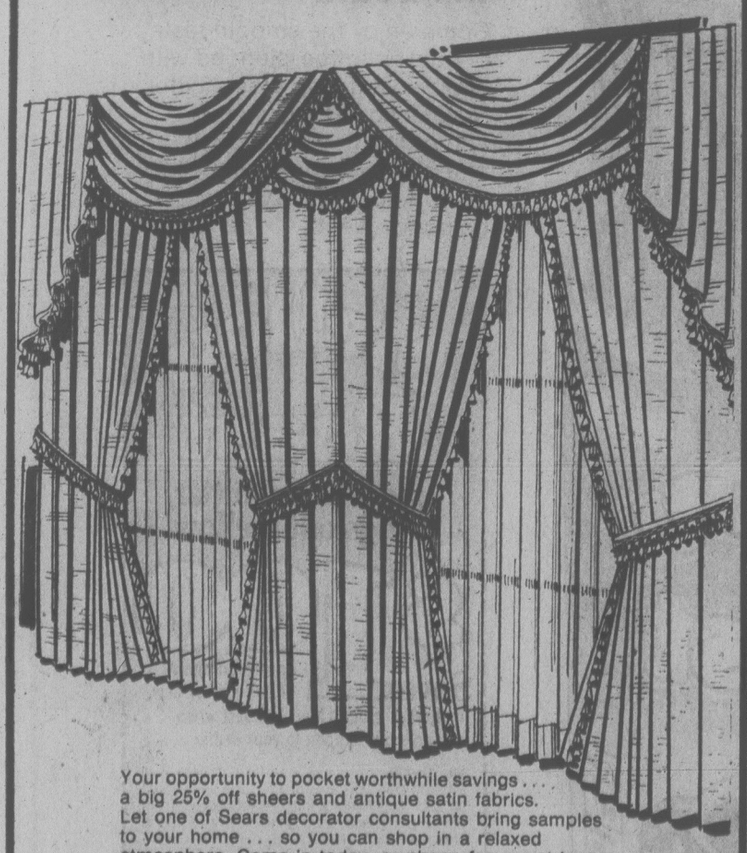

Still another question mark, however, is the strength of the walls of the supper room, which was bombed and nearly destroyed in 1943. The wall with Leonardo's fresco, bolstered by sandbags, was one of the few left standing.

In addition to the crack and the hump in the middle of the work, "street cars passing close to the church may cause damaging vibrations. Experts are studying this, too," the superintendent said.

Ontario Also Enmeshed in the Property Tax Hassle

By ERIC DOWD
Times Toronto Bureau

TORONTO — Ontario has its own version of Proposition 13, although not quite on the lines of that in California, where residents voted overwhelmingly and simplistically last week to reduce their property taxes by more than half.

But Ontario residents are resentful of high property taxes and jittery they could go even higher. Because of the prospect of a taxpayers' revolt, and symbolically only two days after the California referendum, the province has postponed for the third time and possibly abandoned a program of municipal tax reform it had been working on for 11 years and which so far has cost it $25 million.

The reforms had their origin in 1967, when a committee set up by former premier John Robarts recommended all properties be assessed at current market value and taxed on that basis, to end a great many inequities. Assessment practices varied widely between municipalities, making it awkward to allocate grants fairly (about half of all provincial aid to municipalities is based on assessment) and even inside municipalities: in Toronto, for instance, about 40,000 houses are under-assessed because their then owners, veterans, were given a tax break after World War One. Almost all provinces had municipal tax studies in the 1960s and several made similar recommendations.

In its search for tidiness and clarity, the Ontario committee, headed by an accountant, went so far as to suggest properties owned by churches and charitable and community organizations should lose their tax-exempt status (Municipalities could give them grants instead, if they felt they deserved it, the committee said.) Its philosophy was very much that a property is a property is a property, a parallel to the buck is a buck is a buck approach of the federal Carter commission of around the same time, which got watered down, once the politicians got hold of it, so the original flavor could barely be tasted.

A similar fate, and worse, has befallen the Ontario proposals. The suggestion for taxing churches was discarded within a year, after a committee of MPPs of all parties eyed it. No politician is going to risk being accused of short-changing God. The propossal to tax properties of charitable and community groups struggled obstinately all the way to last January, when Treasurer and Intergovernmental Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough dropped it on a second commission's recommendation. What government wants to be seen as anti-Boy Scout or the Y.M.C.A.?

The plan to have all properties assessed at market value, and taxed on that basis, the keystone of the reforms, has been steadily eroded. To ensure uniformity, the province took over responsibility for assessment in 1970 and said it would start taxing on the new assessments in 1975. This turned out to be an election year and the Progressive Conservative government became worried that many homeowners seemed unable to grasp that sharp rises in their assessments would not automatically bring tax increases, since all properties have climbed dramatically in value. So the government postponed the start and has postponed it regularly almost every year since.

The 1967 committee, recognizing there should be distinctions between various types of property, proposed houses and apartments should be taxed at 70 per cent of assessed value; the MPPs' committee reduced this to 60 per cent and the government wound up plumping for 50 per cent.

An analysis of the impact, in January, showed taxes on the average apartment would fall substantially, in some communities by as much as $200 a year, because apartments generally have paid much higher taxes than their strict market value would warrant. The average house tax also would go down, by about $100 (some businesses would pay more tax, to compensate). But in some areas where houses have been particularly under-assessed, house taxes would go up. The biggest tax increases would be on single-family homes in Metropolitan Toronto, which would go up an average $92: in the city of Toronto, the average jump would be $150.

The Davis government, when faced with problems, sets up committees like most people would reach for an Aspirin. Another hastily-assembled committee, of 15 representatives of municipalities, reported in April and came up with proposals to raise the tax on apartments, to 75 per cent of their assessed value, and allow Metropolitan Toronto five years to phase in the reforms.

All this was too much for McKeough, who thrives on neatness and no loose ends, and he has now thrown up his hands and said the reforms will not come in next Jan. 1, the last announced official starting date.

McKeough, who does not yield easily, is probably hoping pressure from reform will develop among apartment-dwellers in Toronto and apartment-dwellers and home-owners in most other parts of the province, who stand to gain.

Elementary Summer School

The Greater Victoria School Board introduces a new program: summer school for elementary pupils.

Four specialized units will offer remedial tutoring in reading, writing, spelling and arithmetic.

This program is for children who require skill maintenance, and also for those with learning disabilities.

Dates and times of classes vary.

Place: George Jay Elementary School 1118 Princess Ave.

Cost: $10 registration.

In most cases the schools will notify parents of children who need summer school assistance. However, any parent is free to obtain an application form from a school.

Enrolment is limited. Application deadline: June 23.

Pan Am Gets Nod for Cheap Boston-Amsterdam Run

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Civil Aeronautics Board ruled Tuesday that Pan American World Airways can start Thursday offering history's lowest transatlantic fare — a $99 standby ticket price for non-stop flights from Boston to Amsterdam.

The board acted at top-speed, giving its approval just hours after Pan Am proposed the new fare.

A Pan Am spokesman said the low fare — $99 on one-way flights, or $149 round-trip — will remain in effect through July 14 to introduce the non-stop service from Boston to Amsterdam. After the one-month introductory period, he said, the fare will go to a permanent $155 one-way or $279 round-trip.

"This (introductory fare) is the lowest scheduled trans-atlantic fare in history," the Pan Am spokesman said.

Even the higher permanent fare represents a major discount. An economy class round-trip ticket from Boston to Amsterdam on existing routes, which make a stop in London, costs $812.

The board's haste in acting on Pan Am's fare proposal — and the airline's decision to offer a super discount — were prompted by the fact that Pan Am's authority to fly from Boston to London will expire Thursday under terms of a new U.S.-British air agreement.

Pan Am and Trans World Airlines both fly from Boston to London now. But the U.S.-British pact limits the United States to one carrier on the route, and the CAB decided that carrier should be TWA.

A spokesman said Pan Am's new fare would be similar to the pioneering "Sky-train" all-standby, no-frills service offered by Britain's Laker Airways between London and New York.

Pan Am will use Boeing 707s with nothing but economy-class seats, capable of carrying about 180 passengers, the spokesman said. He said passengers will be assigned seats on a first-come, first-served basis starting 5 ½ hours before each flight's departure.

"It's total standby, no reservations," the spokesman said.

Only coffee and tea will be served free aboard the flights, the spokesman said. He said audio headsets, soft drinks and mixed drinks can be purchased during flight, while in-flight meals must be purchased at the airport before departure.

ADMIRAL SEES ANOTHER WAR

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A retired U.S. rear-admiral told UN delegates Tuesday that a third world war with nuclear weapons "almost certainly will happen unless all governments confront this most uncomfortable reality."

Gene La Rocque, who commanded a U.S. Navy 6th Fleet task group in the Mediterranean in the mid-1960s, said that in such a war the United States and the Soviet Union might destroy each other in 30 minutes.

"As someone who has been directly involved in U.S. nuclear planning, I can tell you my country has plans and forces for actually fighting nuclear war," said the 59-year-old retired officer, now director of the Centre for Defence Information in Washington.

He was one of six executives of research institutes that spoke to the UN General Assembly's working committee of the whole at its special session on disarmament.

La Rocque said the United States has "maintained a two-to-one edge in deliverable nuclear weapons throughout the period 1970 to 1978, and that under the Carter administration funding for making new nuclear warheads has risen 70 per cent.

He noted that U.S. Defence Secretary Harold Brown's latest military budget report said Washington's nuclear war plans include "destruction of a minimum of 200 major Soviet cities."

"Two U.S. Poseidon submarines which carry 320 nuclear weapons can destroy all the 200 major Soviet cities," La Rocque said.

Noting Soviet military secrecy, he said "no serious disarmament measures can take place in the absence of full information about military forces."

He said all governments should report military spending and force levels to the UN annually for publication.

He urged that the United States and the Soviet Union stop producing fissionable materials and testing nuclear weapons now, eliminate most nuclear weapons from their naval surface ships and scrap their land-based intercontinental ballistic missiles within five years.

He said both are "becoming increasingly worried about the vulnerability of their ICBMs (intercontinental ballistic missiles)."

"I consider such attacks to be implausible in the extreme," La Rocque said, "but by giving up the traditional attachment to ICBMs, both countries would feel safer."

'PM Should Be Charged'

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — Betsy Wood, charged in a hostage-taking at the British Columbia Penitentiary here in January, told a provincial court judge Tuesday that Prime Minister Trudeau and the Canadian Penitentiary Service also should be facing the charges which have been laid against her.

Wood and Gay Hoon are charged with attempting to murder prison guard Roy Yasuda, aiding a prison break and committing mischief and willful damage of prison records.

They were charged after five prisoners at the federal maximum-security facility took 13 persons hostages following an abortive escape attempt Jan. 27. The incident ended without bloodshed a week later.

At the preliminary inquiry Tuesday, Judge Lorne Clare asked Wood if she understood the charges against her.

Wood said she did not understand the charges, particularly the attempted murder charge, because she has never seen Yasuda.

She said Stephen Albert Hall, one of the prisoners who took part in the hostage-taking, stabbed Yasuda.

Hall is a product of solitary confinement, she said, and since Prime Minister Trudeau and the penitentiary service are responsible for putting him in solitary, they should be charged as well.

Hoon said she understood the charges against her. Her laywer asked for and was granted a ban on publication of evidence at the inquiry.

The inquiry continues.

THEFT CHARGES LAID

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — A Toronto couple charged after two persons were held at gunpoint for three hours in a cabin on a remote island at Stuart Lake in northeastern British Columbia were remanded to Aug. 22 for plea when they appeared in provincial court Monday.

Robert Charles Barinecutt, 30, and his wife, Pamela, 20, were charged with robbery, using a firearm while committing an indictable offence and unlawful confinement following an incident May 19 in which two Victoria residents were robbed of money, jewelry and three rifles.

The two are also charged with theft over $200 and four counts of breaking, entering and theft.

Arctic Icebreaker Project Reported Hung Up on Cost

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Canada is in danger of missing a chance to gain vital experience in Arctic Ocean development because of an apparent disagreement between Dome Petroleum Ltd. and the federal government, says Dr. Angus Bruneau, an expert on transportation in ice-filled waters.

Bruneau, vice-president of professional schools at Memorial University of Newfoundland, says negotiations between Dome, of Calgary, and Ottawa for construction of an icebreaker known as the Arctic Marine Locomotive are at a stalemate.

"I am not close enough to it to be specific about what the problem is," Bruneau said in an interview. "But my thinking is that whatever the problem is we should not let it stand in the way."

Bruneau said Dome approached the federal government 18 months ago with a proposal that the ship be built in Canada at a cost of about $130 million. The vessel would be capable of operating in hard-frozen ice up to 10 feet thick, better than existing Canadian icebreakers.

He said Dome needs such an icebreaker to help and protect drill ships the company anticipates will be used to extract oil and gas in the Arctic.

The company said at the time that an improved icebreaker could extend the drilling season.

Bruneau said the company could have the ship built in Japan for less than $100 million but Dome wanted the icebreaker built in Canada.

He said he understood talks had progressed to the point where the Saint John Shipbuilding and Drydock Co. Ltd. of Saint John, N.B., was preparing to begin work.

Dome asked the federal government to provide the $30 million difference between Canadian and Japanese costs in return for making the vessel available at certain times of the year to the ministry of transport.

Bruneau said most of his information came from good sources in Calgary.

"My understanding is the disagreement with the federal government is over who is to have control of the vessel at various times."

He said differences in financial arrangements had been whittled down to about $10 million by the time negotiations stopped.

Bruneau said it would be wrong to allow another country to develop expertise in developing the Canadian Arctic.

He said social implications are as strong as economic ones.

Before the Judge

Two men charged with possession of counterfeit money elected trial by judge and jury Tuesday in Victoria provincial court.

Robert Gordon Sewell, 20, of 1166 Rhoda Lane, and John Daniel Vosper, 21, of 2792 Millstream, were charged following siezure of approximately $20,000 in bogus U.S. bills earlier this month near Saxe Point in Esquimalt.

Judge William Ostler remanded both men, who have been released on $2,500 surety bail each, until next Tuesday to fix a date for their preliminary hearing.

Two brothers facing a charge of possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking also chose trial by judge and jury.

Allan Rudolph Adderley, 31, of 596 Baker, and John Douglas Adderley, 23, address not given, were charged May 27.

Their preliminary hearing was set for Nov. 9.

Three Nanaimo women who were caught shoplifting May 26 were given a fine and community service work.

Margaret Peggy Rouleau, 29; Annette Mary Geneau, 29; and Esther Marie Gallant, 23, pleaded guilty to separate charges of theft under $200.

Crown counsel Nicholas Lang told the court two women were spotted taking a total of 14 eight-track tapes valued at nearly $100 from Zeller's, 1610 Hillside, and were apprehended outside the store.

Further checks on the car in which the three women were riding revealed three garbage bags of stolen items.

Mrs. Rouleau, who had a previous conviction for the same offence Dec. 20, 1976, when she was fined $125, was fined $250 after pleading guilty to stealing $78.96 worth of clothing from Sears, 3490 Shelbourne.

The other two women were given suspended sentences, placed on six months' probation and ordered to perform 50 hours of community service work each.

Ostler ordered a 17-year-old Sooke youth to perform 60 hours of community service work after the teenager pleaded guilty to possession of a stolen auto.

Defence-lawyer Malcolm McMicken entered the plea on behalf of Michael Hellwig, 6771 Eustace.

Lang said Hellwig, apprehended for prowling March 18, admitted to Colwood RCMP he took a 1960 Chevrolet Malibu the day before from Victoria because he needed transportation back to Sooke.

McMicken said Hellwig, who saw the keys in the vehicle and took it, had consumed some alcohol prior to the incident.

Ostler suspended the passing of sentence, placed Hellwig on six months' probation and ordered the service work.

Douglas Lawrence Jay, 18, of 1082 Charters, received a fine and community service work after he pleaded guilty to mischief causing wilful damage.

Lang said Jay knocked over three street signs and pushed over two others, causing $126 damage.

Ostler fined the youth $100, placed him on six months' probation, and ordered restitution and 50 hours of community service work.

Stanislaw Urbaniak, 65, of 2308 Shakespeare, was fined $400 for impaired driving.

SENTENCE DELAYED TO 19th BIRTHDAY

A former Victoria youth, who pleaded guilty in county court Tuesday to breaking and entering with intent to commit an indictable offence, was given a suspended sentence and placed on probation until he reaches his 19th birthday next April.

Kenneth Douglas Strong admitted acting as lookout when he was with three juveniles, one of whom kicked in a window Sept. 5 at the Medical Arts Building, 1105 Pandora, and returning to the same place later. Nothing was stolen.

Court was told Strong has been a ward of the superintendent of child welfare and is currently progressing well at the family of a farmer in northern Saskatchewan. Judge.

Tax Idea Rejected

Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis has rejected a suggestion by Vancouver Mayor Jack Volrich that school boards be forced by the legislature to collect their own taxes.

Volrich said this would have the effect of making the boards directly accountable to the public, while separating school taxes from city taxes.

Curtis said Volrich's suggestion is not new and would mean a completely different billing and accounting system would have to be set up, something he said would cost the taxpayers more in the long run.

Volrich said if his suggestion is not acceptable, he will ask the legislature to give municipalities the authority to approve school board budgets, a power they had some years ago.

The present Schools Act requires municipalities to act as agent for collecting school taxes, meaning that aldermen "are getting a lot of heat" from taxpayers complaining about the total tax bill, he said.

The mayor said he intends to bring up the subject at the executive meeting of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities in July.

Collision Sidelines Singer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Nancy Wilson was in guarded condition at a hospital Tuesday with multiple skull fractures and facial cuts after an automobile she was driving collided with roadside equipment, a spokesman for Miss Wilson said.

The 41-year-old singer had just returned from New York to celebrate Nancy Wilson Week in Los Angeles, honoring her 25th anniversary in show business, when the accident occurred Monday night as she drove home from the airport.

Marilyn Reiss, Miss Wilson's publicist, said: "She suffered multiple hairline skull fractures, facial lacerations and external bruising. But they don't know yet about internal damage."

Miss Wilson is under the care of Dr. Bernard Glass, a neurosurgeon at San Pedro and Peninsula Hospital. A hospital spokesman would not comment on Miss Wilson's injuries.

Miss Wilson's cool, bluesy vocals have helped her remain one of pop-jazz's most loved female vocalists over her 25-year career. A gala anniversary performance had been scheduled for June 17 but was cancelled because of the accident.

Cornfield In Prison

LOMPOC, Calif. (AP) — Bernard Cornfeld, whose Swiss-based financial empire collapsed eight years ago in a tangle of lawsuits, has begun serving a 90-day sentence for defrauding Pacific Telephone Co., a prison official said Tuesday.

The 48-year-old financier entered the federal prison camp May 29, a prison official said. Cornfeld was originally to have started serving his term May 8, but was granted a delay to resolve legal matters in Switzerland.

Doing God's Work. . . Stripping

WASHINGTON — Kellie Everts is about to go on stage at the Plaza Burlesque Theatre to do the Lord's work.

God, she says sincerely, wants her to work as a stripper. He told her last July to quit her $150-a-week job as a social worker in Brooklyn's slums and return to the stage.

"I asked Him, 'How am I going to help humanity as a strip teaser?'

"He told me, 'Anyone from any walk of life can serve God. You're a minister if you praise God.' "

So wherever she goes, Ms. Everts, who describes herself as "a better strip teaser than I am a social worker," praises God.

This Friday, she will preach in Lafayette Park, across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House.

President Jimmy Carter, she feels, will be "more than happy" at her appearance there, "because he loves God."

Ms. Everts was brought up in the Roman Catholic Church, but feels she truly found God 6½ years ago.

A stripper since age 19, she had been thinking of suicide, despondent "because I had nothing to live for." Then she met Verna Talbot, head of the Church of the One World Light, in Hollywood.

Ms. Everts was ready to renounce the world, forsaking the stage, men, smoking and drinking, but her mentor counselled otherwise.

"She said, 'Continue stripping, because that's what God made you to do — that's why he gave you a beautiful body,' " remembers Ms. Everts, 44-21-38, a former Miss Nude Universe and, as a weight lifter, Miss Body Beautiful.

Then, three years ago, God told her to work full time with the delinquents and other youths she had been counselling between burlesque jobs the previous year.

So she became a social worker for the City of New York, mostly counselling disadvantaged minority youths.

Last summer, in the midst of feeling overworked and mentally exhausted, she heard God speak to her. "God's light told me I should go back on stage."

Now, when she can — "this is my first job in six weeks" — she saves part of the $1,500 she makes from a week of stripping toward a non-denominational children's chapel she wants to build in Brooklyn.

"I'm going to be the priest."

LEVESQUE FIRED TRUDEAU QUITS!-

CONCORD, N.H. — Levesque was fired and Trudeau quit. But Canada remained calm.

Probably because all that political activity took place in New England.

Emilien Levesque, Maine's manpower affairs commissioner, was ordered off his job Tuesday by Gov. James Longley.

As for Trudeau, Massachusetts state Representative Theodore Trudeau, that is, he just doesn't want to run again for a fourth term.

Conversion Of H. Rap

ATLANTA — H. Rap Brown, the young revolutionary who exhorted blacks to get guns and shoot whites 10 years ago, now is a Muslim merchant who runs a small grocery in the West End.

"I can't prevent you from writing a story," Jamil Abdullah Al-Amin said as he sat in front of the brick building that has three locks on the door and burglar screens on the window. "Masha Alla (if it is the will of God)."

Al-Amin talked at length to reporters from the Atlanta Constitution, but refused to allow them to take notes or tape-record the conversation.

"I was the most arrested man of the decade (the '60s)," he said. "I was probably arrested in all the 50 states."

The struggle then, he said, was not just to sit next to white people. It was a problem of right and wrong, and he said that is still unsolved.

"This is 1978, and anyone who still thinks that 'I'm Black and I'm proud' is enough is in a sad situation," Al-Amin said. "It is not sufficient."

Al-Amin, 34, said he was converted to the Muslim faith while doing five years in prison in 1971 on charges of trying to rob a bar.

The new name, he said, came from a fellow prisoner and follower of Islam. Al-Amin means trustworthy and Abdullah means servant of Allah. Jamil means beautiful.

"Your name signifies what you strive to do in your life," he said.

After his parole from prison, he moved to Atlanta two years ago. He said his purpose now is to serve Allah, run the store and serve his community.

Sidney Cadets Visit Montreal

The band of the 676 Sidney Kinsmen Royal Canadian Air Cadet Squadron has recorded a first.

It has become the first cadet band ever to play in the Montreal Olympic Stadium.

The band performed during a recent week-long stay in Montreal by 40 cadets of the squadron.

The cadets were billeted in the homes of members of the 701 Montreal squadron. Forty cadets of the Montreal squadron arrive here for an exchange visit Aug. 26.

The band showed its prowess recently at the squadron's annual inspection at which the inspecting officer was Col. Bendt Oxholm, chief of staff of Maritime Forces Pacific, CFB Esquimalt.

With a collection of B.C. Government Airways aircraft in the background at the Victoria Industrial Airport, the cadets went through their paces, earning praise from Oxholm, who said the squadron was the most impressive he had seen during inspections throughout Canada.

The inspection marked the 20th anniversary of the squadron's formation and Reid Hannan, the squadron's first commanding officer, took a prominent part in the ceremonies.

He told the cadets and the hundreds of onlookers the ceremony marked the last time the cadets would parade in their air force blue uniforms.

"It's the last time in blue — sad but true," he said.

The cadets from now on will wear the green safari uniforms which the department of national defence is issuing to sea, air and army cadets.

Major J.H. McLeod, the squadron's commanding officer, outlined the success of the squadron, which tied for first place in B.C. with the Powell River squadron in 1977.

WO1 Ken Gill received the award for the squadron's senior non-commissioned officer and Flt.-Sgt. Leland Ferguson won the best drill cadet trophy.

Other award winners were: WO2 Derren Lench, achievement; Sgt. Bruce Scharff, cadet contributing most to the band; LAC Marr Lynam, outstanding junior bandsman; Sgt. Steve Paton, highest shooting score; Cpl. Rick Tomsett, general efficiency in outdoor-indoor shooting; LAC Mark Atwood, outstanding junior cadet; LAC Gwen Rowley, most improved cadet and cadet showing keenest interest in squadron activities, and LAC Angela Peden, most improved female cadet.

Awards for most improved male and female cadets went to LACs Patrick Renaud and Elizabeth Butterick, Flt.-Sgt. Ferguson was judged the outstanding NCO and Flt.-Sgt. Joan Harrison, the female cadet with best general efficiency in outdoor-indoor shooting.

Attendance trophies went to Cpl. Gregg Aumonier, LAC Butterick, LAC Richard Filiatrault, LAC Karen Graham and LAC Hector Nicholson.

Shooting awards were presented to Cpl. Richard Tomsett, Sgt. Paton, LAC Norman Upton, Flt.-Sgt. Harrison and Cpl. Kim Head.

U.S. Probes Wiring Problem

Victoria Times
WEDNESDAY, JUNE 14, 1978 53
FOURTH SECTION

By JOANNE OMANG
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — It started with an unusually warm wall outlet that was replaced in 1972, and ended two years later when Rosalind Hersh was awakened early one morning by the smell of smoke.

The guest bedroom was ablaze, the flames already blocking the hallway to another room where the Hershs' daughter lay sleeping. Unable to escape, Mrs. Hersh collapsed.

Firefighters saved her, but her husband and daughter died. The fire was blamed on faulty aluminum wiring.

"Nobody ever told us that aluminum wire was dangerous," she testified last week before the opening session of congressional hearings into the aluminum wire situation. "A time bomb had been built into our house and we didn't know it."

Rep. John E. Moss (D-Calif.) told his investigations subcommittee that 1.5 million American homes "may be facing an unnecessary and unreasonable risk" of fires from defective aluminum wiring, yet the aluminum industry is reluctant to publicize the problem.

Twisted wires, charred outlet receptacles and plugs, melted bits of cord and plastic fragments passed from hand to hand among subcommittee members as witnesses described their experiences.

"I didn't know we had aluminum wiring," said Frank Puckett of Dalton, Ga., whose family lost all its possessions in a fire last November that destroyed their 24-unit apartment building. "We feel lucky that we escaped without injury."

Fire inspector Robert J. Kelly, who investigated the $1- million Georgia blaze as a private consultant, said it was probably caused by a failure at a connection between aluminum wire and a wall plug.

"Overheating occurs at loose aluminum wire connections when current passes through the connections," Kelly testified. "This overheating can cause fires. Loose connections can also cause incidents such as flickering lights, buzzing at switches or sparks coming out of (wall) receptacles."

Electrical circuit breakers provide no warning in case of aluminum wire failure, he continued, because they are designed to warn only of overloading or short circuits. Loose or incomplete aluminum wire connections instead cause tremendous heat and arcing that does not interfere with the flow of current until the wire melts away or there is a fire.

The aluminum industry has consistently held that shoddy workmanship by installers is at the root of whatever problems homeowners have had with aluminum wire, and that properly installed aluminum wiring is as safe as any other.

The majority of houses, mobile homes and commercial buildings with aluminum wire were built or rewired between 1966, when copper prices rose sharply, and 1973, when problems with aluminum wire began to receive publicity.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission filed suit last October to require 26 aluminum wire producers to inform homeowners in booklets and advertisements that wiring of that era may be hazardous.

The industry has blocked that suit in U.S. District Court in Washington with another suit in another court, the U.S. Court of Appeals, charging that the Consumer Product Safety Commission has no jurisdiction over aluminum wire.

Moss was careful to distinguish between "old technology" aluminum wiring, which he said was unsafe, and "new technology" wiring installed since 1973, which he said was safe. Robert Noonan of the product safety commission, however, went further in his criticism.

The problem, he said, can still be found in houses where aluminum wiring was installed after 1973 and is stamped CO-ALR to indicate that "new technology" was used in those houses. "We don't really have enough data at this time to tell if they are (safe)," he said.

Background material supplied by Moss explained that chemical reaction between aluminum and oxygen in the atmosphere produces aluminum oxide, which does not conduct electricity.

As the oxide forms on the wire, the flow of electricity is blocked and constricted to an ever-narrowing area, which causes heat that in turn speeds the process, eventually cutting off the circuit. The blockage is so narrow, however, that the current may arc across it or break through in spurts.

This, the material indicated, is what causes lights and television screens to flicker and connectors to overheat. In addition, aluminum's physical characteristics tend to loosen connections, with the same result.

The "new technology" installations require special equipment and tools. "Residential wiring, however, is not usually installed by highly trained technicians using special equipment," Moss' information sheet noted.

Coin Crush Nasty

SEOUL (AP) — Twenty people were injured, some seriously, when 20,000 people trying to buy commemorative coins stampeded in front of the Bank of Korea. The coins were immediately resold to dealers for three times their face value.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

The extreme use to which a "safety play" is on occasion employed can be evidenced in today's deal. The hand came up a few years ago at the Cavendish Club in New York City. The South declarer was Peter Leventritt, one of the U.S.'s top-ranking players.

North-South vulnerable. North deals.

SOUTH
♠ J 10 9 3 2
♡ A K 7
◇ A J 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
3 ♣	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Five of ♡.

According to the system North and South were employing, North's vulnerable three-club opening bid was supposed to show a solid seven-card suit. North didn't quite have the high cards for his bid (with ace, king and queen heading the suit). South's response of three no-trump is easily understandable.

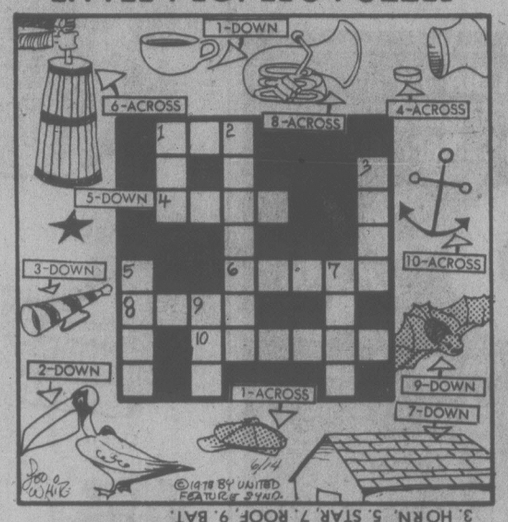

West's opening lead of the five of hearts was covered by East's jack, South's king winning. If one were to look at only the North-South cards, I would wager that 99 out of every 100 players would make the identical play at trick two: they would lead a low club and finesse the jack. And all of them would fail to fulfill the contract.

With the jack winning, and East failing to follow suit, all declarer could now make in clubs would be three tricks. And he needed six club tricks.

Leventritt, at trick two, made a play that very few of us would think of: he led the six of clubs, and when West followed suit with the three, the board's deuce was played. As is evident, the six won the trick. It now became a routine matter to bring home seven club tricks. Declarer led his remaining club and finessed dummy's jack with the assurance that it would win the trick. The ace and king of clubs now felled West's remaining club, and that was that.

The reader may wonder what Leventritt would have done if East had played the ten or the queen of clubs on the initial club lead. Knowing Leventritt as I do, I would say that he would have played low from dummy, to protect against West having started with all four of the outstanding clubs.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Thursday, June 15
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Lie low, go slow — test waters, chew food carefully, permit partner or mate to express views. Be discreet, thorough where legal papers enter picture. Cancer, Capricorn persons are part of your personal scenario. You may be persuaded to neglect details — if you play fool's role.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Study Aries message; maintain moderate, steady pace. Check needs, expectations of dependents. Celebrate special occasion with those who share your interests, work. Gemini plays key role. You have opportunity to be selective.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Good lunar aspect highlights the way you express, impress, create. Personal magnetism is very much in evidence. Yes, make the change. Romance is present — you have but to recognize it and beckon. You get out of restrictive influence.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You gain access to information which aids in building for future security. Past efforts pay off; older individual lends benefit of experience. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius individuals figure in scenario. Be analytical in sense that you take nothing for granted.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Home, relatives, messages, Taurus and Libra persons form part of your personal montage. Make concession for sake of harmony on home front. Be diplomatic, perceptive enough to discern genuine bargain and its availability.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on income, spending and saving habits. Pisces is in picture. Money, connected with contract, could be subject of "intense" discussion. Be realistic. Media could be involved. Clandestine meeting finally will settle key issue.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You are strong enough to be confident. Set pace, take lead, be a pioneer, organize, stabilize, realize that business affairs are being accelerated and that relationship is "for real." Capricorn, Cancer figure prominently. Number 8 could turn up more than averages indicate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Check rumors; make clear that you are not without allies. You have wide appeal and should not sell yourself short. Aries, Libra figure prominently. You complete task, get credit due. One behind the scenes actually is "pulling strings."

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on new starts, friendship that blossoms into meaningful relationship. Creativity, romance, initiative, solid opportunity for progress — these are featured. A wish is fulfilled. You overcome odds in meeting deadline.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Yes, the reinforcements prove effective. You can utilize apparent obstacles as steppingstones. Safety hazards are eliminated. Superior could seek your counsel. Be gracious, conservative. Lost article is recovered.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Lunar position highlights communicaton, publication, knowledge that aids in building project, property. Gemini, Sagittarius persons are in picture. Horizons expand, your influence is felt in more places. Submit format, concept, manuscript.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Mystery intrigues, but don't waste time, money, emotions chasing a ghost. There are plenty of substantial challenges for here-and-now. What seems formidable is merely a test — which you can easily pass. Acquarian works behind scenes to aid your cause.

IF JUNE 15 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you make new starts this year; you gaind independence and find outlet for creative endeavors. July could be your most significant month of 1978. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons play key roles in your life. You are active, musical, dramatic and your sympathies lie with the underdog. Your voice is melodious, you are compassionate, self-indulgent, adore art objects, jewelry and you have a "sweet tooth."

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J.A.H. HUNTER

We have 5589 for the game today. One 9, one 8, and two 5's. Using all four each time but no other digits at all, you form expressions for the consecutive numbers from one up.

Any arithmetical signs may be used, but no summation or factorial symbols, and no words. Don't forget decimals, regular and repeater, also roots and powers. For example, 58 + 9 — 5 is a solution for 62.

The limit without a break in continuity seems to be 141. I shall be glad to check solutions, and will send hints to help in future games if requested.

Syrians Avenge Massacre at Villa

Times News Services

BEIRUT — Syrian soldiers of the Arab peacekeeping force stormed a northern Lebanese village in tanks today and blew up homes in a search for the killers of the son of Lebanon's former president.

Beirut newspapers carried reports that quoted former President Suleiman Franjieh as vowing a "war to the death" against the Phalangist killers of his son, Toni, his daughter-in-law and 3-year-old grand-daughter, who died in an attack on their villa Tuesday in Ehden, 15 miles south of Tripoli.

More than three dozen people died in the surprise Syriah artillery and mortar attack on the mountain resort of Ehden.

Meanwhile, French troops hoisted the blue and white flag of the United Nations in the southern Lebanese village of Ras-el-Bayyada Tuesday after Israeli occupation forces drove their tanks and armored vehicles south into Israel.

Inland, the Israelis turned over their positions to Christian Lebanese militias that claim to represent the Lebanese government.

The Lebanese army, which disintegrated in Lebanon's civil war that ended in 1976, is preparing a force of 4,000 men to send to southern Lebanon.

The pullback was the third and final stage of Israel's withdrawal from southern Lebanon, invaded by Israeli troops March 15 following a Palestinian raid north of Tel Aviv in which 35 Israelis and nine guerrillas were killed.

The withdrawal was slow, and the Israelis first refused appeals by UN officers to to allow foreign and Lebanese reporters to witness the pullback.

The pullout came as Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan charged in a letter that UN forces in southern Lebanon are in some cases helping Palestinian guerrillas who have infiltrated areas abandoned by Israeli troops.

"According to reliable information, hundreds of terrorists, members of the PLO (Palestine Liberation Organization), have, in the wake of the Israeli withdrawal, returned to southern Lebanon," Dayan said in the letter to UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim.

He said "it appears" some UN troops are "permitting the transit of food and other supplies to the terrorists . . ."

BACK TO WORK

ST. PIERRE (CP) — A general strike by workers on the French islands of St. Pierre-Miquelon off Newfoundland's south coast ended at midnight Tuesday night.

The islands work force took part in the 12-hour strike Tuesday to protest alleged lack of action by Paris to improve their economy.

Community leaders on the islands, with a population of about 5,500, have been complaining in recent months about lack of increased economic activity promised by Paris when the former French overseas territory became a department of Metropolitan France two years ago.

Spokesmen said major promises not kept included extension of this island capital's only airport runway and construction of a deepwater berth for large vessels.

Balcony Gardeners' Show

A flower show with possibilities for balcony gardeners to make entries will be seen on Saturday afternoon this week, June 17 at the Esquimalt Recreation Centre in Esquimalt.

Openly only between 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. the annual show is part of Buccaneer Day Celebrations in the municipality, and is one of the two annual show efforts by Esquimalt Garden Club.

A special class for apartment dwellers only calls for "a plant or plants grown in any type of container, pot, urn, planter etc. Must be in owner's possession for at least two months." This quote is lifted from the show catalogue. It makes a direct offer of participation in the show to the several thousand dwellers in apartments and condominiums in the Greater Victoria area.

The wording for this class does not imply limitation to outdoor balcony grown plant, but to those grown in any type of container.

To make an entry in this class take it before 9 a.m. to the Recreation Centre on Saturday, the day of the show. None accepted after that time.

Roses make a fine display as a rule in this June show. Plants have been responding favorably to warm weather and June should bring magnificent results on the show tables.

Gardeners looking for varieties suitable for new gardens will find a living catalogue at this show and at the two-day show on Friday and Saturday of next week June 23 and 24 by Victoria Horticultural Society.

Esquimalt gardens are favored with an earlier start of growth in spring than others further away from salt water. The longer season is favorable to growing early summer perennials for this show — pyrethrum, delphinium, lilium, dianthus as well as annual sweet peas, biennial sweet william, and the usual peonies and pansies.

Again including opportunity for apartment dwellers are classes for African-violets, flowering and foliage house plants, and one class simply headed Terrarium.

Anyone with even the smallest plot of soil in a tub or balcony planter would be eligible to show one lettuce and six radishes in the Vegetable section of the Esquimalt Show.

Opportunities for all to participate; and a fine little show to enjoy. Flower Arrangements as usual will display imagination and execution suitable to the Buccaneer Day theme.

Something for everyone — resident or visiting gardener looking for ideas; even the artist looking for something to translate into the picture of the year.

Indian-Chinese Clashes Feared

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police patrols were increased in the McLean Park housing development in the city's east end Tuesday as racial tension rose following the beating death of a Chinese man Saturday.

Staff-Insp. Doug McLeod of Vancouver city police said tension between native Indians and Chinese groups in the area had been growing since the slaying of Yew Cheun Chan, 46, of Vancouver, Saturday. Two Indian youths have been charged with second-degree murder in connection with the attack.

McLeod said police were called to the housing project Sunday after five Chinese youths entered the area and assaulted an Indian youth. He said this was the only reported incident of racial violence since the murder Saturday, in which robbery was said to be the motive.

McLeod said more serious clashes between Chinese youth gangs and militant Indian organizations could occur but police were concentrating on easing tensions.

McLeod said he met Monday with the McLean Park residents' committee which wanted to form a patrol for protection.

"I told them the last thing we needed were any vigilante groups," he said.

On Monday, a notice was posted in the 459-unit development, advising residents to stay behind locked doors after dark. There are about 15 native Indian families living there.

McLeod said the increasing number of Indians moving into the area since November added to the problem.

"We've had an increased number of street crimes since then—muggings, strong-arming and that sort of thing. I don't like to sound racist but, in roughly 80 per cent of those crimes, the suspect is described as a native Indian.".

BEAR MAULS PARK HIKER

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP) — A portion of Yellowstone National Park was closed to visitors after a bear severely mauled a young woman hiker Tuesday. Mary Anna Young, 21, was in critical but stable condition, suffering from scalp, chest and abdominal injuries, a park official said. A grizzly was shot earlier this spring near Old Faithful Geyser after it harassed park visitors.

Switching Difficult

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada (AUCC) says it is easier for students to transfer university credit from one European Common Market country to another than it is to change universities between Canadian provinces.

In a report on the role of Canadian universities, the AUCC said education policies and university admission practices are so different across Canada that students are often barred from completing their education in more than one province.

The association said a federally and provincially-funded national institute of higher education should be established to examine and make recommendations for revised admission standards across the country.

The report said universities often place restrictions on transfer of credits from other institutions because they believe that work completed elsewhere is not up to their standards.

It said students wanting to enter graduate or professional schools in other provinces are particularly hard hit.

"In fact, the problem is not only of accessibility to professional schools to out-of-province students since there can be very real barriers to opportunities even within a province," it said.

The report also said that students transferring from community colleges to universities—within or between provinces—have similar difficulties gaining credits.

Low Prices Hit In Energy Report

By HOBART ROWEN
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Contrary to many earlier forecasts, world oil supplies will be adequate to meet demand "for the next several years and possibly into the early 1990s," according to a detailed report on energy to the Trilateral Commission, released Tuesday.

But this easing of supply, keeping world oil prices below the cost of producing substitutes, was viewed as a grave threat to longer run needs — and as damaging to public understanding of the real problem. Among other things, low prices and easy avilability of gasoline discourages conservation, the report said.

The principal author of the report is John Sawhill, president of New York University, and former federal energy administrator. He was assisted by Keichi Oshima, Professor of Nuclear Engineering at the University of Tokyo, and Hans Maull, European secretary of the Trilateral Commission.

They called for a strategy of raising what they called artificially low prices in Europe, Canada, Japan and the United States, specifically recommending a higher federal excise tax on gasoline in the United States. In addition, they suggested a trilateral energy "summit" that would develop policy for higher pricing and for negotiating with the Soviet Union for technology and capital.

The Trilateral Commission, which has been meeting here since Sunday, is composed of 200 influential private sector leaders from Europe, Japan and North America who consult regularly and confidentially with government officials on international problems.

The energy report says that additional flows from the North Slope (Alaska), the North Sea and Mexico will keep supplies in rough balance with a demand growth of 2 percent to 3 percent a year for at least the next 5 to 10 years. Prices, in the absence of a sharp cutback by Saudi Arabia or other major producer, would be stable or slightly higher. But sometime in the early 1990s, the report suggests, almost all OPEC producers will be cranking out oil at about a peak, the non-OPEC production will begin to top out, and "the world will have to look to the Saudis to provide any incremental supplies needed."

Since "the critical variable" affecting prices will be the Saudi willingness to expand production, the authors urge that the United States maintain its "special relationship" with that key producer.

One main theme of the report is that governments have not only failed to come to grips with the energy problem, but have not shown they understand its magnitude or severity.

SOME ADVICE FROM ABOVE

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau set politics aside today and spent 40 minutes discussing God and the international state of religion with evangelist Billy Graham.

Did you talk about God? a reporter asked as Graham left a morning meeting in Trudeau's office that lasted twice as long as scheduled.

"That was the only topic of conversation," replied the 60-year-old American preacher.

"We didn't talk about politics."

Grisly Dig

WEST SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — A bulldozer clattered onto the property of pawnbroker Kenneth Appleby today to resume the grisly task of digging for the bodies of at least six kidnap victims he said he buried in his backyard.

Inside Appleby's garage-sized tar paper home, police discovered whips, chains, swords and shackles. Some drugs also were found, police said.

A resident of the area described Appleby, 27, as a dark bearded man who often dressed in a black hat and coat and carried a cane. She said he was often seen in the company of teenage boys whom she did not recognize.

Hampden County District Attorney Matthew Ryan today said investigators found the mutilated body of a dog while digging on the premises Tuesday.

The digging began Tuesday night after Appleby was arrested on a New York warrant charging him with kidnapping and being a fugitive from justice. The arrest followed a four-month investigation.

Appleby is scheduled to appear in Hampden County District Court later in the day for a bond hearing. He was held overnight without bail.

TEMPEST IN A C CUP?

MAINZ, West Germany (Reuter) — The U.S. Army has agreed to pay 40,000 marks compensation to a woman employee dismissed on grounds that she was not wearing a bra at an official dinner.

A spokesman said Gen. David Martin and Hannelore Nelson had agreed to settle their dispute out of court.

The incident started at a banquet given by the Lord Mayor of Mainz for the general.

Mrs. Nelson's lawyer said she was astonished next day to get a written rebuke from the general telling her that as a representative of the U.S. government she should wear a bra.

She wrote back protesting: "I have never appeared at dinner without a bra."

Mrs. Nelson later was dismissed after working for the army for 17 years. She then launched a suit for wrongful dismissal.

Carter Sets 3 Conditions For Peking Pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter and his advisers have told an elite private group they will press for full diplomatic relations with Peking based on three conditions safeguarding the future of Taiwan, UPI learned Tuesday.

The three requirements are:

—That the United States insists U.S. trade and and aid to the Nationalist government on Taiwan — including military assistance — must continue after full diplomatic relations are established with China;

—That a U.S. trade office would be established in Taiwan once the embassy is closed down;

—That China make clear, through a formula yet to be agreed upon, that it would not use force in seeking to reunite Taiwan to the Chinese mainland.

The sources said Carter, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, Defense Secretary Harold Brown and other top administration officials all discussed the emerging U.S.-China policy in their addresses to the current, confidential session of the Trilateral Commission.

Proceedings of the commission — a high-powered group of businessmen, scholars and former government leaders from the United States, Europe and Japan — are off the record, but some participants agreed to discuss with UPI the outlines of the administration presentation.

"The moment has come to accelerate the discussions" with Peking, a source quoted one high ranking administration official as saying.

Hijackers Jailed

PRAGUE (AP) — A court in Brno has convicted three men of conspiracy to hijack a plane and sentenced them to prison terms ranging from one to eight years. The news report did not say when the attempt occurred.

China Opens Area

By JOHN FRASER
Times Peking Bureau

PEKING — It's official, Szechwan province, closed to all but a few special foreign visitors since 1949, is to be opened shortly to general tourist traffic. The announcement by a senior official of the China Travel Service (which organizes all trips made by tourists here) was carried by the official Hsinhua News Agency Tuesday in a remarkable bid to encourage more tourists to come to China — along with their much-prized foreign exchange — the announcement not only declared three hitherto forbidden locations in Szechwan open, but nearly 50 other places as well.

Spread throughout the entire country, these new areas are listed under six distinct categories: historic sites, industrial centres, summer resorts (Chinese version), revolutionary shrines, coastal cities and provincial capitals.

Szechwan makes it under three of the categories — Chengtu, the provincial seat; Chungking, the wartime capital of Chiang Kai-shek's Kuomintang government, is listed as a revolutionary site because the late premier Chou En-lai carried on negotiations with Kuomintang there, and the resort area at Mount Omei.

Although the announcement does not mention the famous boat trip from Chungking to Wuhan and Shanghai along the Yangtze river (and through the famous Three Gorges), it will undoubtedly be part of a package trip to Szechwan as the facilities are already well organized.

Langley School Trustee Fined $750

SURREY (CP) — David George Bell, 37, a Langley school board trustee, was fined $750 Monday after being convicted of impaired driving and refusing to supply a breath sample.

Provincial court Judge Nick Friesen dismissed a charge against Bell of dangerous driving.

RCMP Constable Harvey Gorsline testified the charges arose from an incident May 6, 1976, in which he pursued a driver who had failed to keep his headlights dimmed after police flashed their head lights at him.

In the ensuing chase on Highway 99, the vehicles reached speeds of up to 100 miles an hour before police arrested the driver at gunpoint, Gorsline said.

Other occupants of the car testified Bell's driving appeared normal and said Bell pulled over as soon as he realized police were behind him.

Bell said he would not provide a breath sample at the RCMP detachment because police refused him a private telephone conversation with his lawyer.

Judge Friesen said he was unable to conclude Bell's driving was erratic or dangerous.

The judge said the Crown's case rested on the physical symptoms displayed by the accused to four police officers.

He said the officers opinions were based on many years of experience and were supported by the evidence.

He accepted evidence that at the detachment Bell was offered a private room and telephone after his first complaint he could not speak privately with his counsel.

When an articling law student, John Cherrington, arrived at the station and spoke with Bell for 35 to 40 minutes, Bell accepted a private office with a telephone, Judge Friesen said.

"It is unreasonable that a barrister would construe the alleged failure to provide a private line on the first occasion as a continuing refusal when he was sitting next to a telephone in a private office for 30 to 45 minutes," Judge Friesen said.

Bell was fined $500 for impaired driving and $250 for refusing to provide a breath sample.

The fine will be accompanied by a mandatory three-month driving suspension.

The trial started March 17, 1977, continued on Aug. 22 and ended May 18.

Guard Himself A PoW?

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Feodor Fedorenko, accused of killing Jews during the Second World War, testified Tuesday he considered himself a prisoner of war of Nazi Germans despite duty as a gun-wielding, uniformed guard at a Nazi concentration camp.

The 71-year-old Fedorenko, who faces possible loss of U.S. citizenship for hiding his Nazi death camp past, also testified that he knew Jews were being sent to gas chambers.

He also admitted that he falsified U.S. immigration papers so he would not have to return to the Soviet Union following the Second World War.

During Fedorenko's two-week trial, a succession of prosecution witnesses have charged that the former Soviet citizen was brutal to and killed Jews at the Treblinka concentration camp in Poland.

Under cross examination Tuesday, Fedorenko testified that he was transferred by the Nazis to Lubin, Poland, in 1942 where he stood armed guard over Jewish homes while the occupants were rounded up and taken to concentration camps.

Fedorenko arrived in Boston in 1949.

Calif. School Programs Cut

Washington Post

LOS ANGELES — California's largest two school districts have cancelled their summer school programs in the first major response to the severe budget limitation imposed by the new Jarvis-Gann Initiative.

In Los Angeles, the Board of Education ordered a two-month unpaid vacation for the 10,000 employees of the district and told the 350,000 students who had been expected to enroll that there would be no summer classes.

In the San Diego Unified School District, where 45,000 students were expected, the board took a similar action and gave 2,400 employees the summer off.

Most other school districts in California are expected to follow suit. A spokesman for State Superintendent of Public Instruction Wilson Riles, who recommended the closings, said such action would conserve state and local funds for the fall semester.

The property tax rollback mandated by the Jarvis-Gann Initiative also was felt in San Francisco. The Board of Supervisors on Monday approved a freeze on city employees' salaries and the Municipal Railway cut bus, cable car and trolley service 20 percent while raising fares from 25 cents to 45 cents.

The Los Angeles school board action came on a 5 to 2 vote with the two school board members who had supported Proposition 13, the Jarvis-Gann Initiative, opposing the closing. One of these dissenting board members, Bobbi Fiedler, said the action was "a political ploy" that made school children the victims.

"I don't see why these children should bear the brunt of this," Fiedler said. "The board is taking a very vindictive approach. They're saying I told you so and I'm going to punish you for doing what I didn't want you to do."

Zaire Accepts Aid Terms

BRUSSELS (AP) — President Mobutu Sese Seko has agreed to foreign controls on Zaire's central bank and finance ministry in exchange for more than $1 billion to bail out his economy.

The plan to bolster Zaire's economy and reduce official corruption and inefficiency won preliminary approval at a conference Tuesday of representatives of Mobutu, the United States, Belgium, France, Britain, West Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Canada, Iran, Japan, the International Monetary Fund, the World Bank and the Common Market executive commission.

The plan must now be approved by the various governments and the international organizations.

Under the plan, an International Monetary Fund official with his own foreign staff will be principal director of the Bank of Zaire and monitor all operations, particularly international money transfers.

Another foreign official will fill an executive post in the Zaire finance ministry and exercise significant powers.

Zaire, the former Belgian Congo, would get $960 million in investment capital during several years.

European representatives at the meeting said while they did not wish to violate Zaire's 18 years of independence, the near-chaotic African state will have to submit to economic discipline to get substantial new aid.

Sources in Kinshasa, Zaire's capital, say the foreign governments and international agencies also want Mobutu to curb the official corruption that is rampant in his government and to improve the welfare of his country's 26 million people.

Killer Whisked Away

NEW YORK (AP) — David Berkowitz, the notorious Son of Sam killer, was awakened at sunrise Tuesday and escorted in secrecy and under heavy security to a maximum-security prison in Dannemora, near the Canadian border.

Louis Ganim, a spokesman for the state correctional department, said Berkowitz will undergo medical, psychological and psychiatric evaluation to determine the type of facility in which he should serve his six consecutive life sentences.

Officials refused to say where Berkowitz was being taken until after his arrival at the Clinton Correctional Facility in Dannemora. The 25-year-old former postal clerk had been held at Kings County Hospital in Brooklyn since his arrest last August.

Ganim said Berkowitz was being housed in a psychiatric evaluation unit, where he will be under observation 24 hours a day.

One source said Berkowitz, after he was awakened about 4 a.m. and given breakfast, was "pretty docile."

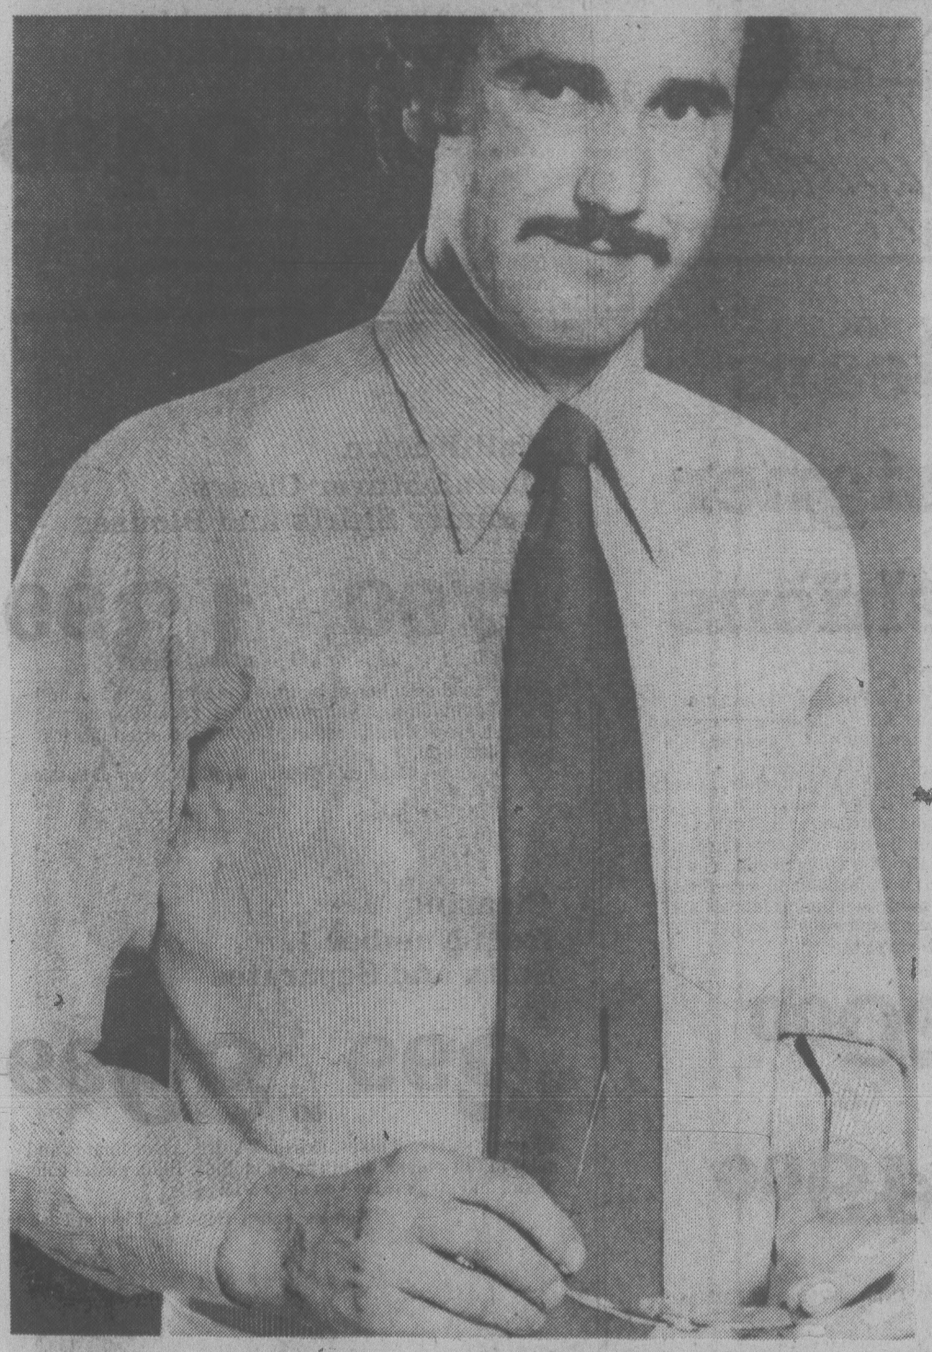

Ex-Minister Dies

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — Former Argentine foreign minister Alberto Juan Vignes died Tuesday, his family announced. He was 82. Vignes was foreign minister between June, 1973, and August, 1975, during the Peronist administration.

No Open Bidding, Board Votes

Greater Victoria school board will negotiate only with Camosun College for the lease of the administrative centre it is vacating in September.

The board has decided it will lease its Paul Building complex to Camosun if the price is right and has turned down a recommendation by Trustee Mary Breer to advertise the lease for bids from the public sector.

The board is moving its administrative operation from the Paul Building complex to a former warehouse owned by the district.

Trustee Breer headed a committee to study possible uses for the complex.

In her report to the board, Breer said the board would not be fulfilling its responsibilities to the taxpayer if it negotiated only with Camosun College.

The board will determine the market value of the complex before entering negotiations with Camosun.

The college, which is experiencing a space shortage, indicated to the school board several months ago it is interested in renting or purchasing the complex.

40 Thefts Probed

A 19-year-old youth and three juvenile boys are being investigated in connection with as many as 30 thefts in the Greater Victoria area in recent weeks.

A Colwood RCMP spokesman said today the four were picked up early Tuesday morning near the Juan de Fuca Arena. They were riding in a stolen car.

The spokesman said no charges have been laid yet against the four, whose names are being withheld. They were released by police after questioning.

Possible charges include several counts of auto theft and thefts from a number of businesses in Colwood, Victoria and Esquimalt.

Police have so far recovered $400 worth of stolen property, and, the spokesman said, there's likely more to come.

Rotating Art Shows

The University of Victoria will show its collection of B.C. contemporary paintings between now and Aug. 21 in the new Maltwood Art Museum and Gallery in the University Centre.

Every Monday a new display of paintings by B.C. artists such as Jack Shadbolt, Don Jarvis, Gordon Smith and Myfanwy Pavélic will be exhibited in the gallery.

The exhibits will appear on a rotating basis and then be hung in public areas on campus.

Two Eureopean works from the UVic Maltwood collection wil also be on display during the summer. The works are Portrait of a Man, a 17th Century Dutch work from the school of Franz Hals, and St. Charles Boromeo Praying for the Plague-Stricken People of Milan by Giovanni Francisco Grimaldi (Fra Bolognese).

Both paintings were cleaned and restored at the Vancouver laboratory of the Canadian Conservation Institute.

JOB-FINDING OFFICE OPENS

A new job-finding office will open in the western district on Monday.

The office, at 2789 Claude Road, will be operated by the Western Community Outreach Committee.

The office will provide vocational counselling as well as lists of jobs available.

Committee chairman Joe Despot said the western community has been asking for a Canada Manpower office in the Langford-Colwood-Metchosin area and the Outreach centre will help fill the need.

Canada Manpower is helping to provide job-finding services.

Three workers, Kenna Bishop, Jean Jones and Janet Wright, have been hired for the office. Office hours will be 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday to Friday and the phone number is 478-4331.

Saudis Flog Britons

LONDON (AP) — Two Britons have been publicly flogged in Saudi Arabia and jailed for six months for violating the Moslem country's ban on alcoholic beverages, the British foreign office said.

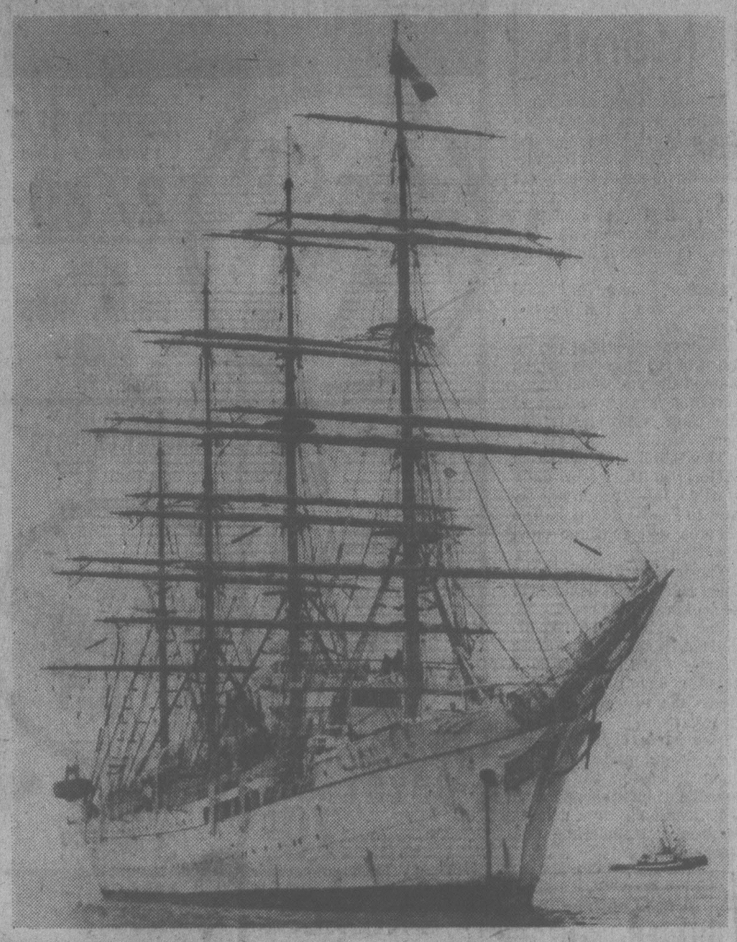

Press reports said the pair may have gotten as many as 70 strokes of the cane because they were suspected of making alcohol available to Arab workers.

The foreign office said seven other Britons working in Saudi Arabia have been sentenced to be flogged for alcohol violations. It said it is trying to ensure that the sentences are not carried out.

A spokesman said the British government has protested to Saudi Arabia.

He said the flogged men were Nigel Maidment, 27, and Brian Cooper, 35. They are engineers for Prismo Universal, a British firm enlarging an airport at Ha'il, a caravan crossroads town 400 kilometres north of Medina.

Maidment and Cooper were reported to have been arrested last December and flogged in the town square at Ha'il on May 15.

4,000 Beer Layoffs

About 4,000 B.C. hotel industry employees have been laid off or have had their hours of work drastically reduced as a result of the strike-lockout that has dried up beer supplies, a union spokesman said today.

John Phillips, business agent for Local 40 of the Hotel, Restaurant, Culinary and Bartenders Union, said the labor dispute is having a terrible effect on the province's economy.

He said the breweries are responsible for the situation because they locked out their employees last Thursday.

"If they are concerned about the problems with the B.C. economy then they are the ones who should call it off," Phillips said.

He said those employees laid off so far represent about 30 per cent of the hotel industry workers.

Phillips said he expects both parties will get down to some serious negotiations next week in an effort to end the dispute.

Talks between the brewery workers union and the Brewery Employers' Labor Relations Association were adjourned last Friday because some of the union officials had to attend a convention in Eastern Canada.

No date has been set for a resumption of negotiations.

PANCO PUT ON BLOCK

The provincial government today formally put Panco Poultry up for sale.

The operation, which produces 35 per cent of the poultry raised in B.C., has been appraised at $10 million — double what the former NDP governmnet paid for it, Agriculture Minister Jim Hewitt told a news conference.

B.C.'s Schooner Runs Aground

The 100-foot schooner Freelance, recently bought by the provincial government, is aground in the San Blas Islands, east of the Panama Canal.

Dr. Phillip Ney of the Quest Star Society, which will operate the vessel for the government, received a ham radio message Tuesday. The message said the crew was safe but the condition of Freelance is uncertain.

Ney and marine surveyor Dick Meadows left Victoria for Panama Canal today and will assess the damage.

Weather and sea conditions at the time of the grounding were not reported but there had been recent torrential rains.

Captain of the Freelance for the trip to Victoria is Capt. Creston Ketchum of Nanaimo, who holds an unlimited home trade master's certificate.

With him aboard Freelance are Ralph Higgins, a volunteer from the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, and Robert Hirschfield, a mechanical engineer who helped bring the society's Lunenberg schooner Robertson II through the Panama four years ago.

Also aboard are Gerald Main as business manager, Graeme and Verna Isbister and Michael Ker, all of Victoria.

The Freelance is insured and $70,000 has been invested in her.

When Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf announced the purchase of Freelance, he said the purchase price was $125,000.

Another Strong Quake Rattles Japanese

TOKYO (CP) — An earthquake strong enough to shake houses and topple vases struck today in the area of a stronger quake that killed 22 persons in northeastern Japan on Monday.

Police said there were no immediate reports of casualties or damage in the hardest-hit city of Fukushima, where the quake registered four on a Japanese scale of seven.

Fukushima, 240 kilometres north of Tokyo, and Sendai, 288 kilometres north of the capital, suffered a quake registering five on Monday. In that quake, 254 houses were wrecked and 130,000 houses in the area still were without natural gas supplies today.

Today's quake at 8:34 p.m.—4:34 a. m., PDT— also was felt throughout northern and central Japan. Its intensity was two in Tokyo.

Earlier reports said Japanese officials are coming to the conclusion that the country might be sitting on top of an environmental bomb.

The bomb is in the form of nearly 3,000 giant storage tanks containing billions of gallons of oil, many of them located beside rivers or seacoasts.

The detonator might be another big earthquake like the one on Monday, which cracked open three large oil-storage tanks.

Mounting criticism of B.C.'s controversial compulsory heroin treatment legislation triggered an emotional counter-attack in the legislature Tuesday by Health Minister Bob McClelland.

He insisted the program will work without contravening civil rights.

Speaking during debate in principle, McClelland said he is convinced heroin addicts "can be successfully coerced into bettering their lots in life."

And he challenged recent statistics that suggest heroin-related crimes are on the decrease in B.C.

Opposition members continued to condemn the program, with some suggesting free heroin for addicts might offer a better solution.

In a call for more effort to take the profit away from heroin trafficking, opposition health critic Chris D'Arcy (Rossland-Trail) said McClelland "should be less concerned with the addicts of today than with the addicts of tomorrow and future generations."

And Norman Levi (NDP—Vancouver Burrard) said one option that has to be considered is to give addicts free heroin.

McClelland denounced critics who say the legislation trammels an individual's civil rights. On the contrary, it will give addicts a chance for the same civil liberties enjoyed by others, he said.

Calling the civil liberties issue a red herring, McClelland said heroin addicts have no freedoms anyway because they are chained to the drug and continually forced to find ways to feed their habit.

"What kind of civil liberties can a person enjoy in those kind of conditions?"

"Heroin addiction has caused immeasurable human misery and degradation and is an intolerable burden to the citizens in regard to health, social and criminal justice system costs, he said.

In the first quarter of this year heroin offences increased 90 per cent with 230 offences compared to 121 in the same period last year, he said.

B.C.'s crime rate is still the highest in Canada and increasing, McClelland claimed.

Break and entry is up 8.6 per cent and theft over $200 is up 27.8 per cent, he said.

INFLATION NOW AT 9%

Food Price Rise Six-Year Record

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's annual inflation rate, boosted by the highest food price increases in six year, hit 9 per cent last month, Statistics Canada reported today.

The federal agency said a 3.3 per cent hike in food prices in May, led by beef and imtported fresh vegetables, was the major cause of a cost-of-living increase of 1.4 per cent over April.

The 9 per cent, 12-month rate was the highest since last December and a departure from the one-month moderation in April with resulted from the reduction of provincial sales taxes.

Prices of beef, which is the largest meat item for most consumers, rose by 10.5 per cent in the month and were 52.5 per cent higher than a year earlier. In recent years, however, beef prices have been largely depressed because of over-supply, producers say.

Fresh vegetable prices were up 22.2 per cent in May from April and were 39.3 per cent higher than in May, 1977.

The jump in food prices accounted for about seven-tenths of the over-all increase in the cost of living.

The 1.4-per-cent rise in the over-all cost of living was the highest since July, 1975, before mandatory wage-and-price controls were brought in by the government in October of that year. Food prices are largely uncontrolled by the program, which the government began dismantling in April.

Besides food, higher housing charges and costs of tobacco and alcohol increased the index. Non-food prices rose by six-tenths of one per cent in May, 6.2 per cent in the 12-month period.

The consumer price index, which is the most widely-used measure of inflation, stood at 173.6 in May, compared with 171.2 in April and 159.2 in May, 1977.

That means a standard selection of consumer goods and services costing $173.60 in May, would have been valued at $171.20 in April and $159.20 a year earlier in May.

The 3.3-per-cent rise in food prices compared with increases of 3.2 per cent in June, 1975, and August, 1973.

In July, 1972, food prices rose by 3.6 per cent.

In 1973, with food prices climbing at the fastest rate in two decades, the government set up the food prices review board to investigate the causes of the rise.

The fast rise in food prices continued over the next two years before some moderation in 1976 which helped bring down the inflation rate.

But since 1976, the over-all inflation rate, largely due to food and energy costs, has risen again. The government, in introducing controls in 1975, had hoped for inflation in 1978 of four per cent initially.

Now, officials have been talking of a seven-per-cent, 12-month rate by the end of 1978.

Tory financial critic Sinclair Stevens said in an interview that the government had underestimated the impact which devaluation of the dollar, now about 89 cents U.S., has had on inflation.

Many Canadian-produced goods, including beef, lumber, fish and metals are priced on continental basis, he said, meaning Canadian prices for those goods will have to go up.

If the government could show dramatic spending restraint and reduce its deficits, there would be a renewal of confidence in the country, a reduction of inflation and economic growth, he said. The government expects an $11-billion deficit this year.

U.S. Dollar Shaky

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar dipped to a new low in Tokyo today but opened steady on European money markets.

'TAKE YOUR LUMPS'

REGINA (CP) — Members of the Consumers Association of Canada were urged Tuesday not to come out swinging against higher beef prices.

C.M. "Red" Williams, head of the department of animal and poultry science at the University of Saskatchewan, said it was time for consumers to pay more for beef in exchange for a healthy cattle industry.

"You've had it so damned good for five years, take your lumps," Williams said.

And in London, Ont., Charlie Gracey, manager of the Canadian Cattlemen's Association, says Canadians are hoarding sides of beef for their freezers now like people used to hoard cans of beef for the pantry and this has helped to increase the price of beef.

"It's the old psychology of scarcity," he said Tuesday at a farm machinery seminar.

Best Buys In Food

The second of a series of weekly reports prepared by two UVic economic students on prices in 28 of Victoria's retail food stores was released today.

Purpose of these reports is to assist consumers in the Victoria area in deciding which food stores offer the best buys in the purchase of family grocery orders.

A basic food basket, listing 65 items important in the average family's shopping budget was used to record food prices in the Victoria food stores. The prices obtained have been "weighted" in proportion to their importance in the average family food budget as published by Statistics Canada, 1976, for a large B.C. city.

This week's report is the first to include a history of previous store performance. The public is urged by the students to consider a store's history, as week-to-week aberrations may occur. As the study develops, store performance over time should prove to be the better indicator of its price level.

To further public use of this index it should be noted that stores are listed in an order that would assist a shopper living in one area of Victoria in comparing neighborhood stores. The shopper should find the store in which he or she normally shops, and then note that the stores immediately before and after that store are located nearby. This allows the consumer to make the best use of the information as travelling across town to take advantage of the least priced store on this list may be impractical.

The percent of average beside each store is based on the average price of all 28 stores being 100. The store with the lowest price for the "food basket" is No. 1 and the highest No. 28.

The study, under a grant from the federal ministry of labor, will continue through August and results will be released each Wednesday.
